Burglary. On September 13 at 8:51 a.m. the sheriff's department received a report that a juvenile male had been found in the residence of a local man. The man, who rents the residence, found the 16-year-old male in his residence without permission and watching pornographic movies. The youth had allegedly entered the home and ordered videos through the renters satellite dish service. The theft loss has not been determined. Charges against the youth for burglary are pending.

On August 25 at 11:07 a.m. the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center received information from the Los Angeles Police Department, that Terri Abbiene-Haugen, 34, currently Reseda, CA, had been arrested on several Pennington County warrants. On September 8, Abbiene-Haugen was transferred into the custody of Pennington County and is being held at the Pennington County Law Enforcement center.

On September 8, Randy Dean McBride, 20, East Bethel, was arrested by the Anoka County Sheriff's department on five Pennington County warrants. It is alleged that McBride sold 20.8 grams of marijuana to a confidential informant on January 10, 1999, and 18.7 grams of marijuana to a confidential informant on February 9.

She was taken to Northwest Medical Center with a bump to the head.

On September 11 at 6:40 p.m. the sheriff's department received a report of an accident at State Aid 3 and County road 22. Beverly Ann Roisland, Thief River Falls, was driving a car east and trying to turn north. Adam Kristopher Swenson, Oklee, driving a car west, attempted to pass another vehicle and did not see Roisland attempting a turn and collided with the Roisland vehicle. Swenson was cited for improper lane usage. A passenger in his vehicle was taken to Northwest Medical Center with a bump to his head. There was substantial damage to both vehicles.

On September 11 at 12:38 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Seventh and Dewey. Justin Scott Carlson, Thief River Falls, was driving a car north, and Carey Noel Slininger, Thief River Falls was driving a vehicle west on Seventh Street, when the vehicles collided in the uncontrolled intersection. Charges, however, are pending against Slininger. Slininger also complained of a sore neck and was taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Police estimated damage to the Olson vehicle at $500. The 16-year-old female was cited for no driver's license, under 21 consumption, and illegal turn. There was an estimated $400 damage to her vehicle.

Assault. On September 11 at 9:04 p.m. an officer was dispatched to a residence following a report of a domestic disturbance. A charge of assault is pending against Rodney Melvin Nissen, 37, Thief River Falls, after he allegedly grabbed a woman by the neck and hit her in the face.

Drugs. On September 11 at 1:04 a.m. police received a report that a child had not returned home. The 13-year-old male was located and brought to the law enforcement center to be picked up by parents. The youth was cited for curfew violation and possession of drug paraphernalia.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Vay Rawertz of rural Red Lake Falls built this ox cart that was on display at Old Treaty Crossing Park during the Chatauqua last weekend. Rawertz has built three ox cars and assisted in the construction of a fourth. One is on display in the Turtle Mountains, a second at Fort Snelling, and the third at Old Treaty Crossing Park. It took about a month to build each of the ox carts which were were built from lumber gathered from his back yard. Rawertz donated the ox cart to Old Treaty Crossing Park in 1991. Rawertz is retired. He worked at John Deere in Thief River Falls for 15 years, and before that was a farmer.

Motorcycle Rider course to be held in TRF in October

A basic riding and street skills course will be conducted by the Minnesota Motorcycle Safety Center and MMSC.

Interested individuals must be at least 15 years old and possess a valid driver instruction permit or driver's license. Participants age 18 or older who bring a valid motorcycle permit, can fulfill the state motorcycle endorsement requirements, upon successful completion of the entire course. Anyone with an interest in learning to ride a motorcycle or sharpen current skills is encouraged to participate.

The course consists of 20 hours of training including 12 quality hours of "on-cycle" instruction. "Riders will learn basic riding skills, street strategies and advanced turning and braking techniques. Motorcycles are provided for each participant. Upon completion of the course, students are eligible for insurance discounts and dealer incentives," according to Karen Kedar, project director of the Minnesota Motorcycle Safety Center.

For more information and to register call MMSC at 612-784-1488. The course has been scheduled for October 1 from 6 to 10 p.m., and October 2-3 from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Sen. Moe says hunting season outlook good despite lack of funds for wildlife

by Sen. Roger Moe

For good reason, many people are looking forward to the start of hunting season next month. This should be one of the best fall hunting seasons in years, thanks largely to favorable weather conditions and good resource management. The weather last winter was mild, and most areas of the state have experienced good habitat conditions for wildlife over the past year or more.

We have been fortunate, as well, that our natural resources have been well managed. However, the adequacy of funding for wildlife management in the future is a concern. The major sporting groups strongly support stepped up wildlife and fish inventory, research and management efforts by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

In fact, an agreement had been reached to slightly raise hunting and fishing license fees to meet these needs, but a bill did not pass before adjournment of the 1999 Legislative Session. The Legislature and Governor Ventura are expected to make the fee increase for resource management a high priority in the 2000 Legislative Session. Due to the budget constraints caused by lack of a resolution this year, no moose season will be held in 1999.

Current reports from DNR on the status of various species and the hunting season follow.

Deer. Deer populations are recovering quickly from the effects of the two severe winters of 1996 and 1997. Even so, several more years will be required before herds are fully recovered in some areas. The firearms deer season will open Nov. 6, archery deer Sept. 18, and muzzle loader deer Nov. 27. The application deadline for antlerless and special hunt permits is Thursday, Sept. 9. The number of these permits issued statewide has been increased to 177,380, up 26 percent.

Waterfowl. The early September Canadian goose hunting season will be expanded this year by adding an extra week throughout most of Minnesota, and by opening the Northwest Zone for the first time. The season is set for Sept. 4 - Sept. 22, except in the Northwest Zone where it is limited to Sept. 4 - Sept. 15. This year, hunting over water will again be allowed in the West Zone (including the Lac qui Parle and West Central Zones), beginning on the second Saturday of the season (Sept. 11) and extending through Sept. 22. The bag limit will be five geese per day in most of the state, with two geese per day allowed in the southeast and the northwest.

Based on duck population status and the duck regulation packages proposed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the duck season is expected to be open from Oct. 2 through Nov. 30, with a six duck daily bag limit. The general goose opener is also expected to be Oct. 2, except in the West Central and Lac qui Parle zones, where the season will open later in October. The youth waterfowl hunting day is also tentatively planned for Sept. 18. The waterfowl season dates and bag limits will not be finalized until the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announces the federal framework from which states must base their regulations.

Grouse. Ruffed grouse are probably near the peak of their 10-year cycle, and sharptailed grouse counts increased over their entire range for the fourth consecutive year. The ruffed grouse season will be Sept. 18 - Dec. 31, and the sharptailed grouse season is set for Sept. 18 - Nov. 30.

Pheasants. Surveys to assess population trends of pheasants, gray partridge and other upland wildlife throughout the agricultural areas of Minnesota are not conducted until later this month, but information from Conservation Reserve Program study areas in southern Minnesota indicated an increase in pheasants seen this spring. The pheasant season will be held Oct. 16 - Dec. 19. The gray partridge season is set for Sept. 18 - Dec. 31.

Additional up-to-date information on hunting seasons from the Department of Natural Resources is available on the Internet at <www.dnr.state.mn.us>

A left turn yield on green is now permitted at Highway 59 and First Street in Thief River Falls. Prior to the change, a left turn was allowed only on a green light. Greg Gruber, signal engineering specialist for the Minnesota Department of Transportation, said the change will allow traffic to continue to flow through the intersection. A number of people contacted The Times recently to ask The Times to remind people making the turn to remember to yield to oncoming traffic.

The Strandquist Seniors met with five members present and Bonita Kasmierczak was a guest. Elphie Adlis served lunch and Evelyn Kujava won the door prize.

Elphie Adlis' daughter Jan and her children, Katori and Christopher are busy boarding up their home in Florida. They have been notified that the hurricane is expected to hit there on Wednesday. These are trying times as Katori is a quadriplegic and needs special care.

Betsy Thompson rounded up Pearl Thompson, Elsie Lofrooth, and me and chauffeured us to the Marlys Nelson Gardens near Oraylen on Thursday evening to see 8,000 plants and flowers and have a delightful dinner in her home after the garden tour. There were many other ladies there and all had a wonderful time.

The Thompsons had a great time at the Karlstad Nursing Home where they celebrated Donna Ronstrom's birthday on Saturday. All six sisters were there and two brothers, Isaac and Walter, besides lots of relatives and friends. It is a lot of fun when these oldies get together as we range in age from 73 - 93 years.

Pearl Thompson and her granddaughter Karon Thompson of Thief River Falls visited LaVonne Johnson this weekend and also at Elsie Lofrooth's home.

Reuben and Darleen Pringle of Barron, WI, were guests of Edward and Janice Carlson from Friday until Monday morning. Darleen is the daughter of the late Alfred and Agnes Carlson who lived in Strandquist and later in Karlstad. They attended the morning service at the Assembly of God Church and we were all glad to see them. Darleen spent her childhood around here. In the afternoon they went with Edward and Janice to Strathcona to the Threshing Bee where they met many other old friends including Isaac Thompson.

DPS provides checklist for furnace tune-up

September nights often bring a chill to the air, heralding the start of another heating season in Minnesota. To make sure your furnace or boiler is in good working order for the winter ahead, the Minnesota Department of Public Service (DPS) recommends that you perform a furnace checkup now.

"Keeping your heating system well maintained and properly adjusted is important regardless of whether the system is new or old," said Phil Smith, DPS energy specialist. "Your furnace contractor or other qualified service person should periodically check, clean, and tune your furnace."

The most important check, said Smith, is to determine whether the furnace is emitting carbon monoxide (CO) and if there is sufficient combustion air for the furnace to operate properly. A qualified heating professional should check for carbon monoxide. If CO is found, have the system thoroughly checked and put in good operating order. Homeowners may conduct their own combustion air test. The test is described in the DPS Combustion Air guide available at the number below.

Homeowners can perform several other procedures as well, said Smith. These include:

- Buy and install a CO detector.
- Clean or replace the furnace filter. The filter should be replaced monthly during the heating season.
- Check the belt between the blower and the motor and replace it if it is frayed or worn. The belt should give way to the touch by about one inch; if it doesn't, adjust the tension.
- Clean and oil the blower motor, first making sure that the power is off. Clean the blower monthly to remove dust accumulations from the blades and motor body.
- Vacuum register grilles and gently clean the thermostat.

A qualified professional should perform the following steps:

- Inspect and clean the flue, the chimney, and the connection from the furnace to the chimney. Look for obstructions, cracks or other deterioration.
- Check the burner performance and adjust if necessary. Clean burners to maintain efficiency and safety. For oil systems, check the fuel supply and the filter in the fuel supply line.
- Look for and remove any dirt, soot, or rust in the heat exchanger. Inspect for cracks, seam failure, and warping.
- Perform a flue gas analysis to determine the efficiency of your system.
- Test all controls for proper operation.

A furnace and boiler tune-up checklist and guides on home heating and combustion air are available from the DPS Energy Information Center. For free copies, call 651-296-5175 in the Twin Cities or 1-800-657-3710 from elsewhere in Minnesota, or by e-mail at infocenter@dpsv.state.mn.us. Copies of the guides also are available on the DPS web page: http://www.dpsv.state.mn.us.

Soybean Association Launches TMDL dialague

What is a TMDL (Total Maximum Daily Load) and how will it affect my farming operation? That is the question the Minnesota Soybean Growers Association (MSGA) will try to answer for its members through a special project launched this spring.

Three TMDL "work group" sessions will be convened this year to provide an opportunity to discuss Minnesota's TMDL program with the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) which has the primary responsibility for protecting water resources in the state.

USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service, the Minnesota Corn Growers Association, Minnesota Cooperative Extension Service, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, and various conservation districts and local watershed partnerships are also participating in the dialogue.

The Clean Water Act requires that states develop and implement TMDLs to ensure that water quality standards are met. TMDLs must be developed for pollutants that impair specific water bodies. The TMDL mechanism is a way to determine the amount of pollution a water body can assimilate, and still maintain the standards. In cases where more pollutants are entering the stream than can be assimilated, ways must be found to reduce both point source discharges and non-point source runoff, such as agricultural runoff. In cases where impairment can be linked to agricultural runoff, changes in practices within the watershed may be necessary.

In Minnesota, about 140 different water bodies within the state's ten river basins, which include lakes, rivers and streams, have been determined to be not attaining the standards set for them. A TMDL for each pollutant contributing to the impairment will be developed over the next ten years to bring the water body into compliance with the standard.

MPCA has determined that it must develop 171 TMDLs relating to mercury, ammonia, fecal coliform, turbidity and low dissolved oxygen caused by excess nutrients in the water.

The first TMDL work group meeting took place in St. Paul in April, 1999 and focused on how the MPCA will carry out the TMDL program in Minnesota.

"I can't emphasize enough the importance of working cooperatively with agricultural producers at the local level," said Howard Markus, MPCA's TMDL Coordinator. "We need their active involvement in solving water quality problems related to agriculture."

The second TMDL work group meeting was held in conjunction with the Minnesota River Basin Joint Powers Board summer conference in Redwood Falls. This meeting featured discussions with four local watershed alliances, which are addressing non-point source water quality issues with watershed residents and landowners on a cooperative basis.

MSGA president Roger Dale, Hanley Falls, and board member Gary Joachim, Claremont, are participating in the TMDL forums.

"Watershed partnerships within the Minnesota River basin are actively promoting land use practices to improve water quality," Dale said. "The accomplishments of these watershed projects show how important it is for growers across the state to join their local watershed groups and help strengthen this cooperative process".

As TMDLs are developed for specific pollutants within impaired watersheds over the next several years, adoption of alternate farming practices to reduce targeted pollutants may be necessary where ongoing locally-initiated efforts are not adequate to achieve water quality standards.

"Local watershed partnerships will decide on actions that must be taken by landowners to further reduce runoff and meet pollutant reduction goals set by TMDLs," said Joachim. "It is essential that growers contribute to this decision-making process. Growers need to get actively involved in their local watershed groups to have any impact".

Dale and Joachim both stress that TMDL implementation will be a locally driven process, and that MSGA will encourage more grower participation in local efforts to protect water quality.

According to MPCA and the watershed groups, input from local growers and commodity associations will be key in selecting the most achievable practices to reduce targeted pollutants within a watershed.

"Growers know what will work, and what makes sense for their area," Joachim said. "Growers can also help identify the kinds of incentives that will encourage adoption of practices."

The third and final dialogue will take place in Mankato in early December, when discussions will continue. They hope to find ways to increase their participation in local watershed planning, including TMDL development and implementation.

The Minnesota Soybean Growers Association is a non-profit, farmer-controlled membership organization established in 1962. Its goal is to assure profitable soybean farming by monitoring government policies and supporting research and market development activities.

Weather in northwest Minnesota seems to have gone sour on us. We were happy two or three weeks ago to have fairly good harvest weather and a lot of farmers around here have combined most of their small grain. Since then it seems Roy is lucky to catch the grass dry enough to mow a lawn or two before we get another long dragged out rain. In all this, I haven't seen a rainbow, but this morning we read our next Sunday's Sunday School lesson from Genesis 9:15 and 16, and that is the reason I look for a rainbow.

There are many farmers who can't get in their fields to lift the beets as they are standing in water. Trucks and machinery get stuck and if you tried walking in that prairie gumbo, your shoe size would double with each step you'd take. There wouldn't be too many steps before your feet weighed more than the rest of you; a disaster for most of us today. We don't want to get as big as "Big Red", though we love liver and onions!

I remember in the early 20s that my father, Ole Thompson, and our neighbor George Strandberg raised sugar beets. Mr. Strandberg had a Fordson tractor on which he promised to give me a ride some day when as he said in Swedish, "Ve ska fa schurra so de yust frazz efter"! That meant speed to me and that has been my gait since. There were bout 30 or 40 Mexicans who came every spring and lived in a house on the farm and worked in the beets. You talk about racism! The children talked a different language and only a couple of men came to do the business with my father. One Sunday, when we knew they were all gone to visit about 10 miles away with other Mexicans, Isaac and I ventured over and peeked through an open kitchen window. Lo and behold, there on the table was a tin can half full of beans and still in the can. We were sure there would be a few less Mexicans around after eating anything that was left in tin cans. Mom always had a dish ready to empty one of those things. Today most cans are lined and safe to eat out of them. When harvest time came, the Mexicans used their big machetes to top the beets and throw them into a wagon box to take them to the railroad to ship to the sugar plant. Today the highways are loaded with big semis hauling beets, and the work goes on until spring again.

A concert was held on Sunday afternoon by Nathan and Kim after which a pie social was held in the dining room. Monday, Labor Day, dawned beautifully with chapel service at 9:00 a.m., after which brunch was served and then many, including the Sustads, all packed and were ready to "hit the road" for home. Enroute home, LeRoy and Ruth stopped in Oslo and called on Dolly Paschke.

Profile Of Learning: "The Radical Mutation Of A Good Idea"

Katherine Kersten, senior fellow for cultural studies at the conservative Center of the American Experiment and a member of its board of directors, used the title of this editorial as the title of her review of the Profile which has its roots in a national movement for educational standards.

Kersten holds a bachelor's degree in philosophy from the University of Notre Dame, a master's degree in business administration from Yale University and a law degree from the University of Minnesota. She lives in Edina with her husband and four children.

A comprehensive critique of the Profile of Learning was written by Kersten for Center of the American Experiment in Minneapolis and excerpts were included in the Summer 1999 edition of American Experiment Quarterly. Like many others, Kersten feels that what were originally good intentions to improve educational performance of our nation's young people have been lost in the attempt at implementation.

This Saturday, September 18, additional citizen views on the Profile of Education and other related programs will be presented in a forum sponsored by concerned area parents at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls. The session will run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and include presentations by representatives of the Maple River Education Coalition (MrEdCo).

Michele Bachmann and Mike Chapman have no turf to protect, no snake oil to sell, no hidden agenda. They have sincere concerns about what is happening in education at federal direction across the country and they want to share those concerns with the people of Minnesota—most especially the state's parents and educators. We would encourage anyone concerned about their children and their children's future to attend, to listen and to ask questions.

In 1993 the Minnesota Legislature directed the state's board of education and what was then the Department of Education—now the Department of Children, Families and Learning (CFL)—to create a results-oriented graduation rule. Intent was to (1) establish clear and rigorous academic standards; (2) ensure objective and consistent assessment of student knowledge and skills; and (3) do this without imposing a particular method of instruction. As a result, parents, employers and post high school educational institutions would know that a student with a high school diploma had mastered a clearly delineated body of knowledge and skills.

Legislators accepted the CFL-created Profile of Learning in May of 1998 and Minnesota schools are now in the process of "embedding—as Center of the American Experiment puts it—Profile performance packages in their curricula. The high school freshman class of the 1998-99 school year is the first scheduled to graduate under mandates of the Profile.

Kersten points out that the Profile of Learning is based on the theory that education is not so much about what students know as about what they can do in real life settings. The theory maintains that process—how students learn—is much more important than content—what students learn. It asserts that a teacher's primary job is not to transmit knowledge, but to teach generalizable skills, such as how to access information, how to "think critically" and how to "learn how to learn."

This "experiential" theory encourages children to discover things for themselves, rather than to be directed by a teacher. It contends that education should focus on teaching students how to look up the information they need, rather than on memorizing facts in the context of traditional academic disciplines. Proponents portray it as new and "cutting-edge" and business people are often impressed by its heavy reliance on technology.

Kerstner insists that the theory is not new, that it has been a dominant influence in American schools for the last 70 years, taking on new guises as old ones are discredited. "Indeed," she writes, "the theory appears to be a primary cause of the very academic failure that Minnesota's current reform efforts are intended to remedy.

"Unfortunately," she continues, "the experiential theory is not consistent with the way human beings learn. Its central premise—that skills can be developed without a broad framework of factual knowledge—is flawed."

Defending the Profile of Learning, CFL states: "When knowledge level understanding of concepts is emphasized more than application of those concepts, students are often graded on their ability to remember information rather than on their ability to use the information to solve problems, analyze results and evaluate alternatives. Many educators are convinced that emphasizing application over memorization will better prepare students for adulthood in an increasingly complex world."

Kerstner says that "CFL's error lies in its view that knowledge (disparagingly referred to as "memorization") and problem-solving ability (critical thinking skills) are two different and separable things—that it is possible to do one without the other. In fact, to apply information, one must first know and remember it. It makes no sense to rhapsodize abut critical thinking while disparaging factual knowledge, for facts and the way they fit together are crucial to understanding, and thus to application. In short, one can't think critically about something unless one already knows a good deal about it."

Beyond the differences in theoretical views on how the Profile of Learning will (or won't) work academically is the concern that government will have undue influence on what teachers are required to teach and students are required to be taught. Along with that comes speculation that to achieve "equality" will require reduction of standards rather than increasing them.

Kerstner's research indicates that the Profile of Learning poses special threats to the education of disadvantaged children—who start school with far fewer verbal skills than other children—and of gifted children—who will be unable to develop their special talents because of the need to spend time and effort fulfilling the 24 content standards needed for graduation.

Perhaps we have overemphasized the need for graduation "standards" and "guaranteed learning." Perhaps it is sufficient to allow and to help good teachers to teach well. And perhaps we shouldn't be so willing to swallow new presentations of old theories so completely.

We keep thinking back to how "modern math" was to revolutionize mathematics education not so many years ago—and how those who experienced it were deprived of the basic knowledge they needed to be proficient in that subject.

The official "beliefs" of School District 564 state that "change is an opportunity for improvement." Those beliefs should also acknowledge that change does not guarantee improvement, and that not all change is for the better. Profile of Education may prove to be another prime example.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

Though highly political and certainly controversial, the Profile of Learning is the new educational system the State has already put into place in our public schools. The upcoming, September September 18, educational conference featuring speakers from MrEdCo will address questions regarding the Profile and teacher licensure rules.

MrEdCo and the organizers of this conference are by no means attacking the public schools, nor will this conference be a 'public school bashing.'

Anyone interested in the future of education in Minnesota's public schools under the Profile of Learning is welcome to attend; teachers, administrators and school board members are especially invited.

Respectfully,
Tami Chervestad Sparby
Barbara Chervestad

To the Editor:

On August 27, Greenwood Cemetery personnel called saying the flag that flies over the Veterans Memorial in Greenwood Cemetery was down. The rope had broken due to the wind and years of use. A city crew was ready to install a new flag and rope using their large truck, but all of the rain received in the area has made it impossible to do the job without damage to the lawn around the Memorial. Soon we hope, Old Glory will be flying again thanks to the city crew, cemetery personnel and the citizens that have called. 2793 appreciates your concern.

Sincerely,

"A meeting of the Girls Community club was held last Monday evening in the Legion clubrooms. The business part of the meeting was conducted by Miss Carolyn Melby, vice president of the club, in the absence of Miss Emily Fossum, president. It was moved and passed that the membership campaign between the Red and Blue factions should be continued for two more weeks to allow time for the cards which were out to be sent in and for a more careful canvass of the city. About 100 girls and prospective members were present and spent a most enjoyable evening dancing and getting acquainted. A delicious luncheon was served at 11 o'clock by the hostesses who were Mesdames H. M. Olson and A. H. Dorn and the Misses Jeanette Oftedal, Esther Werner, Nettie Ove, Anna Majeres and Inga Oftedal."

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, Public Health in Minnesota is a shared responsibility of state and local government,

WHEREAS, in recent years this system has experienced tremendous stress as funding streams have shifted,

WHEREAS, it is critical to assure a statewide system for basic health protection and

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Naplin and upon vote unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, The Pennington County Board of Commissioners understands the unique relationship between county and state government, with the county serving as the administrative arm for many state mandated programs and services; and

WHEREAS, requirements allowing for reverse referenda on property tax levy increases undermines the authority of locally elected officials and would allow a relatively small group of citizens to control decision making; and

WHEREAS, truth-in-taxation, constituent pressure and the accountability of local officials are the best and most appropriate constraint on property taxes; and

WHEREAS, reverse referenda elections would add increased costs for all parties; and

WHEREAS, the average annual change in the county revenues from 1990-1999, including state aid receipts, has been 3.3%, much below the increase in state revenues for the same period; and

WHEREAS, the "Price of County Government" has dropped 16% since 1990.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners urges the legislature to defeat proposals to allow reverse referenda on property tax levy increases.

Sunday liquor to be on TRF election ballot

• Thief River Falls City Council sets Year 2000 levy increase at 5%

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Sunday liquor will be on the 1999 Election ballot in November. Thief River Falls City Council approved a request of the Thief River Falls Licensed Beverage Association to place the issue on the November ballot Tuesday during the city council meeting.

While Jean Heinrichs, representative at large, said she hadn't observed any trouble with Sunday liquor in other communities where it was allowed, Ken Schmalz, representative at large, said he didn't object because he didn't see any problem with bringing the matter to the public to decide. He said he preferred doing it this way than the attempt last year made by local association members to have the law changed at the state level.

Frank Hamerlinck, fifth ward representative, and Dale Wennberg, third ward representative, were more concerned about the specifics of the licensure. Hamerlinck noted that the effective day of the ordinance would be up to the council. Wennberg noted that if approved, offering Sunday liquor would require purchase of a one-year special license that could cost as much as $200.

The issue that will be before citizens of Thief River Falls at the ballot in November reads: "Shall licenses be granted to restaurants, clubs, bowling centers, or hotels, with a seating capacity for at least 30 persons and which hold an on-sale intoxicating liquor license, for the sale of intoxicating liquor on Sundays for consumption on the premises in conjunction with the sale of food between the hours of noon on Sundays and 1 a.m. on Mondays in the City of Thief River Falls."

The issue before the citizens is worded exactly as state law allows. The city can be more restrictive than state law, but not more permissive. Although it was suggested that the city would be more restrictive, nothing was said about how restrictive.

Sunday liquor has been on the ballot five times since 1977. The last time it was on the ballot was in 1988. During the 1988 election, the Sunday liquor presented to candidates read: "Shall special licenses be granted to restaurants, clubs, bowling centers or hotels for the sale of intoxicating liquor on Sundays, for consumption on the premises in conjunction with the sale of food between the hours of noon and 10 p.m. in the City of Thief River Falls."

Sunday liquor has been defeated by voters in Thief River Falls every year it has been on the ballot: 1988 — 1,495 for to 1,988 against; 1987 — 1,210 for to 1,313 against; 1985 — 653 for to 1,356 against; 1982 — 1,308 for to 2,188 against; 1977 — 509 for to 1,689 against.

The city's maximum levy increase for 2000 was set at five percent.

At a recent meeting, city staff offered a preliminary recommendation for a tax levy increase of 5 percent. A tax levy increase of 5 percent would raise an additional $62,794 over last year's tax levy (roughly $12,500 for every one percent). The levy would itself, raise an estimated $1,318,682.

Tuesday night, Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim said even setting the levy increase at the state allowed limit of 13.4 percent wouldn't raise enough, but he would prefer that the council set the limit at 5 percent and learn to do without. Borsheim noted that the city provides many services, but citizens of Thief River Falls are also among the top five highest taxed in the state.

Wennberg said the city will have to cut a lot from its budget if the limit increase is going to set at 5 percent.

Hamerlinck said the city has good infrastructure and has spent a lot on it, and maybe it was time to let that level off and wait for the rest of the state to catch up.

The city was required to set the levy by September 15. In doing so, it also adopted the preliminary governmental budget for 2000, and set the date for the Truth in Taxation hearing for 5 p.m. on Tuesday, December 7.

The city council approved a cooperative wildlife damage agreement with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources for the Thief River Falls Airport.

The resolution allows the mayor and staff to execute an agreement which allows the city's animal control officer or designated official, and the DNR to eliminate problem deer at the airport. In executing the agreement, the city must come up with funds to put up a deer fence (10 to 12-feet high) on at least part of the property, and develop a plan to plant crops on the airport fields that don't attract deer.

City Public Works Director Ron Lindberg, said that the city is obligated to the deer fence regardless, because it was required in a letter of correction from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). He said that if the council approves construction of a cross-wind runway, cost of the deer fence could be included in the plans.

Lindberg said that deer harvested would not be wasted. The meat would be given to the Cooties Food Shelf.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said the process of eliminating problem deer from the airport would not happen quickly. He promised that it would be done in a careful manner, taking into account the proximity of homes and property in the area.

An individual attending the meeting spoke from the audience, noting that there wouldn't be a problem if an individual who lives near the airport and who feeds 50 to 60 deer each winter, could be convinced to allow hunters on his property.

Waterfowl expo at Agassiz on September 26

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is having a Waterfowl Expo on Sunday, September 26, from 1 to 5 p.m. The Waterfowl Expo is being held one day after National Hunting and Fishing Day and National Public Lands Day which is celebrated on Saturday, September 25.

Several activities are planned for Agassiz's Waterfowl Expo. One of the highlights of this afternoon will be the Simulated Action Firearm Education Training for Youth (S.A.F.E.T.Y.) computer-laser shooting system. Real shotguns and rifles shoot a laser beam at filmed wildlife in different hunting scenarios. The system records hunters shot locations telling them where the shot or bullet hit. Deer, pheasants, ducks, rabbits and turkeys are the species which can be shown with this system. People old enough to handle a gun properly will be given the opportunity to try the system. This system will be run throughout the afternoon.

Refuge personnel will give a program on waterfowl identification at 1 p.m. At 2 p.m. dog trainers Howard Thorson and Doug Schoenbom will demonstrate trained hunting dog bird retrieving with several breeds of dogs. At 3 p.m. waterfowl decoy placement and hunting techniques will also be presented by professional guide Doug Schoenbom. Howard Lipke, antique waterfowl decoy collector from Detroit Lakes, will have antique decoys on display all afternoon giving the opportunity to view many different kinds of decoys that were used in waterfowl

Pennington Co. Board sets levy increase at 4.9%

Pennington County Board of Commissioners set its levy increase at 4.9 percent at its meeting Tuesday. The levy increase will raise $185,994 with the total levy raising $3,985,381.

The preliminary budget was also approved by the board. "It was more difficult to balance the budget this year," said County Auditor Ken Olson. Olson noted that the county lost Homestead and Ag credit aid because of the take over by the state of the court administrator's office. Losing the fine money from the court administrator's office was particularly tough on the sheriff's budget. Increased needs were also observed in welfare, road and bridge, and law enforcement.

Olson said the county board took a hard look at the budget and didn't give any of the departments all of the funds they requested. Welfare received less than they requested as did road and bridge. A levy for the solid waste facility of $100,000 was completely eliminated. On the other hand, the levy increases needed to pay bonded debt for the highway building and new minimum security jail, were not as high as anticipated.

Unlike the levy, which by law, must be set by September 15, the preliminary budget is a blue print for the county and can be adjusted. This year's county budget calls for: $1,925,000 to be spent on revenue funds (a general fund), an increase of $100,000 over last year; $850,000 to be spent on road and bridge, an increase of $50,000; $1,458,000 spent on welfare, an increase from $1,390,908 last year; $127,780 to be spent for the solid waste bond, an increase of $5,000 over last year; $64,473 to be spent on the elevator and Long's bridge bond, a decrease from $66,146 spent the previous year; $96,110 spent on the Highway building bond, an increase from $86,146 spent last year; and $74,165 to be spent on the General Obligation jail bond, an increase from $70,431 spent the previous year.

Last year, the county board increased its levy by 9.5 percent and they were determined this year to keep the levy increase below 5 percent. By law, the county could have increased its levy by 6.4 percent. (Each percent of increase raises $37,993.)

Educational opportunities bloom with plants at Challenger school

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Once upon a time, tall grasses covered portions of the Midwest with pioneers, seeing it for the first time, describing the prairie as a "sea of grass." The wind blew the native plants creating gentle green waves where, in some areas, the grasses grew taller than a man. Hundreds of species of wildflowers provided splashes of yellow, orange, red, purple and other colors to the sea of grass.

Today, little of this area remains untouched by man as fields of wheat and corn cover most what was once pristine prairie.

While books can provide vivid descriptions of the native plants which once grew in areas of Minnesota, students at Challenger Elementary and Preschool have opportunities for more meaningful hands-on learning experiences.

Exciting bursts of color welcomed students and staff back to Challenger Elementary and Preschool when school started last month as the flowers that had been planted near the facility's main entrance were at the peak of their season.

The blooming wildflowers and perennials are the most evident result of a huge volunteer effort spearheaded by fifth grade teacher Tom Schafer and accomplished with the help of third grade teacher Al Buhl and numerous other persons and organizations.

Shortly after Challenger was built, the school district's Buildings and Grounds Department determined that it be unable to maintain plants other than grass at the facility. However, the district's Environmental Education committee had different ideas, and, according to Schafer, deemed the areas surrounding the school as "too good to let go."

Committee members included Schafer, Al Buhl, Sherry Miller, Deb Fulton, Paula Praska, Ken Wiggs, Jean Peterson, Sara Olson, Elizabeth Quick and Gary Tischer. They envisioned plantings that would not only add beauty to the school but provide opportunities for learning as well.

Tom says that the first task at hand was to develop areas of packed fill into ground that would "support plants besides weeds." Sand, peat and cow manure were filled into the soil, and Tom mentions Myron Peterson, Challenger's physical education teacher, as one of those who spent many hours preparing the soil.

He also notes that there was no budget for the project at the time, and that in its early stages, former principal Glenn Espe was able to come up with some money for them every year.

The beds near the main entrance of the school were planted with trees, wildflowers, grasses and cultivar perennials for the specific purpose of attracting birds, butterflies and bees. Because the root systems of perennials take two to three years to develop, they are finally maturing and providing an array of colors and beauty.

Beds in the school's preschool area include plants that encourage the youngsters to use all of their senses. They can touch the prickly seeds of cone flowers and soft, fuzzy leaves of lamb's ear and smell the leaves of the mint plants as their eyes feast on the bright colors of asters and black-eyed Susans.

Wood chips donated to the school by the city following the 1997 ice storm have been used to create walking paths through the beds, enabling the students to get close to the plants. Wide areas provide spaces where preschoolers and students can sit and hear a story or participate in a discussion.

A forest area features 1,700 native trees and shrubs planted by students and others with the assistance of the ACSC office. Three hundred fifty trees were donated by the Department of Natural Resources in conjunction with the Arbor Day program.

Fourth grade teacher Dave Peterson added bird houses to the site. Put up one evening, they are said to have been inhabited the very next morning.

Recently, a six-foot wide gravel path was laid which leads to the school's native prairie demonstration plot. The path was made possible by a grant from the Noper Foundation, and another grant from the Hartz Foundation will be used to extend the trail.

Eagle Scout projects by Jared Brandt and, recently, Matthew Dunich also enhance the demonstration plot area. Jared built the triangle which encompasses the plot, and Matt, who will receive his Eagle Scout award in a ceremony on October 10, built benches in the area.

Over the summer, an additional five acres of prairie grass and wildflower seeds were drilled down by the DNR in areas surrounding the school, and while the rows of these plantings are already visible it will take several years for their root systems to develop.

Expertise has been derived from a variety of sources, including Gary Tischer of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, who, says Tom Schafer, has provided invaluable help to the project.

Last winter, Tom and Al Buhl participated in the master gardening course offered in Thief River Falls by the University of Minnesota Extension Service. The course's requirements include 50 hours of community service. While a variety of activities can be used to fulfill the requirements, Schafer and Buhl chose to spend those hours and hundreds more working at Challenger school. Al says that Tom's hours were, in fact, "out the window" the very first week and that if Tom claims anything less, "He's being modest."

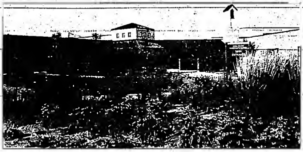
Both men have thoroughly enjoyed the time they have spent working on the various projects at the school and eagerly share their enthusiasm with their students. Seven large grocery bags filled with seeds harvested from the grasses and wildflowers wait at the front of Schafer's classroom to be scattered by fifth grade students this fall. Various plant experiments are enjoyed as part of the student's curriculum.

A web site planned by Challenger school will include photographs and descriptions of the many plants that occupy the grounds, affording students and others another avenue for learning experiences.

The ultimate goal of Schafer and Buhl is to create areas at the school which will be enjoyed by the entire community, and recently, they've had a couple of opportunities to show off the results of their labor. A well-attended garden tour sponsored by area master gardeners in August included a stop at Challenger, and school board members toured the grounds before their meeting last week.

Today's children will never have the chance to see the "sea of grass" that was described by their ancestors so many years ago. However, thanks to the efforts of Tom Schafer, Al Buhl and a host of others, the students at Challenger Elementary and Preschool as well as members of the community will have the opportunity to see, smell, touch and learn first hand about many of the native grasses and plants that once inhabited the area.

Challenger teachers and master gardeners Tom Schafer (left) and Al Buhl have contributed hundreds of hours to the various plant projects at Challenger Elementary and Preschool. They are shown standing in an area near the school's main entrance. The bed was planted with trees, wildflowers, grasses and cultivar perennials for the purpose of attracting birds, bees and butterflies to the area. Paths through the beds provide students with opportunities for hands-on learning experiences.



A black and white photograph cannot do justice to the beauty found this fall at Challenger Elementary and Preschool. A combination of trees, wildflowers, prairie grasses and cultivar perennials contribute to a colorful feast for the eyes while creating a fascinating learning atmosphere for students and adults.

...Not "High Strung" Enough

We all know that women hardly ever have heart attacks, don't we? Why should women have heart attacks - they don't have any worries. Men are the breadwinners, men pay the bills, men go out to fight the world every day. All women have to do is take care of the kids, cook a few meals and wash clothes. Most of them stay home and watch soaps all afternoon anyway.

Women don't have heart attacks. Most of them are so "high strung," so nervous, so excitable, that they act out all their frustrations and it doesn't build up like it does in men. Men "hold it in" and don't want anyone to see if they are upset. Of course it builds up into a heart attack in men. We all know that.

Not true. I can tell you it's not true because I had a heart attack last Tuesday, even though I'm a woman, and an excitable one at that.

Yes, I've always been told I was "high strung." (Don't you love that description, "high strung"? My mother was called the same thing. It always brings to mind a couple of aerial artists on an electrical high wire, dancing around like mad.) Anyway, many of the women in my family have been high strung, excitable, whatever. So... it runs in the family. I guess acting out my frustrations like the rest of the women in my family didn't keep me from having a heart attack. Maybe I didn't dance fast enough on the wire.

One can't help but wonder why some people get heart attacks and others don't. Is it genetic, is it diet, is it stress, is it weight, exercise or lack thereof, smoking, drinking, caffeine? I don't think anyone really knows. In fact, after listening to the cardiologists, I know they aren't positive of anything. From what I understood, there are some things that can raise your chances of having a heart attack, like cholesterol levels, lack of exercise, and smoking. But, short of cutting everything interesting out of your life, eating only (organically-grown) grass, exercising every hour that you're awake, and making sure your parents were perfect, those who know about such things don't seem to know what causes heart disease.

But tell me why Joe Blow down the street, who has smoked since he was eight years old, never eaten anything but food fried in bacon grease, and doesn't move out of his recliner, is alive and well at 84. And then tell me why 34-year-old Mary Doe from next door, who has never let alcohol or tobacco touch her lips, eats only home grown produce and a few organically grown chickens and fish and walks two miles every day, rain, sleet or snow, died yesterday from a heart attack.

I'm not saying I'm the perfect picture of health, but I'm certainly not the least healthy person. What did I do or didn't do to make my arteries clog up anyway?

Anyway, what I'm trying to say is if it can happen to me, it can happen to you. Watch those chest pains, get in to the doctor if they get worse, especially with exertion, and don't doubt your instincts. Forget about the junk that says you'll have a pain in your left arm and up into your neck and all the rest of that. Go to the doctor if you have a pain anywhere in your upper body that doesn't get better or go away in a reasonable length of time. My pains started like heartburn in my throat and moved to my right shoulder every time – and they were around for years that way. They only appeared on my left side after beginning on the right. Go figure.

Also forget about the fact that you might happen to be a woman and, of course, have no chance of having a heart attack. Never mind that you've suppressed pain for years what with the an aching back and feet, childbirth and menstrual miseries and now can't even tell where your pain ranks on a scale of 1 to 10 any more because you've lived with it so long. Never mind that you only do that simple housework, a little laundry, and press the remote button so you can watch your soaps while holding down a full time job, getting the kids to day care and school, attending all school functions, volunteering as leader and helper for all the other community and church activities around, and, being a woman, getting a little "high strung" every so often too.

Take care.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

The occasional huge tree which stands alone in the middle of a field makes a dramatic mark in our otherwise flat landscape. I have a soft spot for these lone trees, and for whoever it was that spared them from the bulldozer.

Sometimes it becomes obvious as I drive by that the tree was left standing simply because it straddled a property line. Neither farmer knew whose tree it was, so neither felt right tearing it down. More likely, each was hoping the other would take care of it.

Other lone trees stand right out in the middle of a field, which means somebody a while back decided he was willing to farm around the thing for the next thirty years, a decision I admire.

Once they survive the bulldozer, life isn't easy for lone trees. They are likely to be hit with farm chemicals, no matter which way the wind is blowing. They are more vulnerable to summer storms and winter winds than their colleagues in the woods. Passing equipment tears away at their roots.

In fact, most of the local lone trees that I remember from childhood have died off, one by one. The lone elm have been wiped out by disease. One of my favorite lone oaks was killed by herbicide this spring.

A lone pine tree which my grandpa planted forty years ago at the corner of the highway and the road to our farm turned a crispy brown during the tough winter of 1996. It looked stone dead. But the tips were alive, and new needles emerged by the next June. Today it is a richer green than ever before, having completed a comeback worthy of Randall Cunningham.

The toughest lone trees seem to be the cottonwoods. My nominee for king of all of the lone trees in this part of the world is a majestic cottonwood which towers over the north side of Highway 108 halfway between Pelican Rapids and I-94. It must be near a century old. It is perfectly proportioned and elegantly droopy, a real mammoth.

I imagine that a debate went on in the head of those clearing the land: Should I save this beautiful tree, or should I do what makes business sense? For some, the question was silly. Make way for progress!

Others let their sentiments rule, at least that one time. Every time I pass a lone tree, I think good thoughts about the nameless landowner who left a grand tree standing for all of us to enjoy.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Gabrielle Lee, Lincoln High School

First drafts, revisions, and edited papers fly as the Literary Arts class at Lincoln High School begins another season of columns for The Times. Literary Arts is one of the classes offered through the Northern Expressions School of the Arts, which operates as a school within a school at Lincoln.

This year's Literary Arts class presents a new cast of characters–or writers–as well as a new instructor. Contributors to the column will include Lisa McKercher, our only senior, along with juniors Taryn Pream, John Sylvester, Heidi Young, and me, Gabrielle Lee. You can call me "Gabby."

On the first day of school, I ran through the house adding last minute touches to my new school attire. Quickly I glanced in the mirror and appraised myself: new red and white checkered shirt, nicely accenting my new flared jeans. Meticulous white shoes completed my outfit. Realizing my friend Angie was patiently waiting for me, I dashed out the door. My first day of school had begun.

First period chemistry flashed by. Already we were preparing to conduct a lab the following day. Skeptical as to how I would be able to hang with chemicals, I made my way to Spanish II when the bell rang.

There are a lot of crazy people that you forget about over the summer--people you won't even know you've missed until they're sitting behind, in front of, or on either side of you in class. This was especially true in my Spanish class. The atmosphere was more like a fiesta than a class. After a brain-drain class like chemistry, it was just what the doctor ordered.

Following Spanish II was College Prep Composition. We went over all the rules and expectations. Then our teacher went into scare-you-to death mode. Late papers are not going to receive any grade higher than a D+. Kids started to look around for the exits. There are some of us who aren't easily swayed, however. Luckily, lunch "A" came to our rescue, and we were off to eat.

The cafeteria is a whole new dimension. Nothing smells the way it should, and yet half of the Lincoln High School population, myself included, eat there every day. It makes me proud to think that not even bulk can mess up French fries!

After lunch, I had my dreaded advanced Algebra class. There is a long history involving math classes and myself. I do not do well with numbers, tests, and least of all teachers who obsess over Pythagorean's theorem. To my surprise, 30 other students had the same fears. It struck me funny that they were all so quiet and seemed so scared. Hearing my boisterous laugh, everyone relaxed. Those who knew me greeted me, and a mindless noise and chatter that teachers despise started. Our teacher took it like a champ, though, and ran through her rules just in time for class to end. A first year teacher never would have made it that far.

Getting through almost all of the day with only two classes left, my spirits were lifted. The last classes of the day were my electives. These classes I chose because I wanted to. Arts School classes have been developed for the kids who want to differentiate themselves from the mainstream and swim in their own direction.

Fifth period I engaged in Literary Arts--the ideal class for the serious writer. With a teacher to student ration of five to one, the only way you could not learn is to try. Our learning environment is laid back and unrestricted. Not too many creative limitations or too much time wasted. We spent time analyzing renowned authors and their works. I wonder how my opinions will measure up. Should I concentrate on what the authors are saying or pick apart their choices of descriptive words? In the long run, I think that it will be a worthwhile pursuit. Writing can't be that hard.

On my way to World Geography, I had a sensation that it would be a fun year. Yet, after a day filled with class rules and general requirements, I was in no mood to sit and listen to the same thing all over again. Our teacher was in no mood to repeat it.

So we skimmed the basics and moved on. All the plans he was making sounded pretty cool. Later on in the quarter, all 30 kids would be creating their very own islands. Imagine, an entire island created by me and the culture that existed on it would be my own also. Then, he said we would all be presenting them to our class...one...at...a...time. My mind went straight to panic mode. I would need to sit through at least 29 island reports! If they weren't interesting to me I'd be fidgeting, biting my nails, or simply acting rude. I had to get out before it went too far! Naturally, I transferred into drama. I mean, at least if I get the urge to fidget in there, it's not rude--exactly.

After the final bell of that first day rang, I let out a sigh of relief. Only 173 more days to go.

ACTIVITIES
Up On The Treetop

As your little ones sing this fall tune, have them pretend to crunch, crunch, crunch through the leaves or go outside and collect leaves and crunch through the real leaves.

Up On The Treetop

Up on the treetop
Watch the leaves.
They are changing.
You can see.
Red and orange.
Yellow and brown.
Pretty soon they'll all fall down!

Crunch, crunch, crunch!
Walk through the leaves.
Crunch, crunch, crunch!
Walk through the leaves.
Up on the treetop
In the fall.
Leaves are changing.
Watch them all!

PARENTING TIPS
Feeding Babies

When it comes to feeding babies you may find as many opinions as people to talk to. It seems this is a subject everyone has some advice about. As a parent you will have to be the one to make the final decision as to what, when and how you will feed your baby. This is not to say that you should just do whatever you want to. But it does mean that you are responsible to find out some facts about babies and nutrition. After all we are what we eat. You will be shaping your child's eating habits and they will affect him/her for the rest of his/her life.

When your baby is ready for solid foods, remember that his/her needs and tastes are different from ours. Babies are not born liking their foods salted or sweetened. Adults teach children to like salt and sugar by adding it to their foods, because we like it that way.

All foods contain sodium. We need it to live. Table salt is really a mixture of sodium and chloride. There are 2,000 milligrams (mg.) of sodium in one teaspoon of table salt. The safe amount of sodium for children to eat daily is:

- •450 to 1,350 mg. at 4 to 6 years old.
- •325 to 975 mg. at 1 to 3 years old.
- •250 to 750 mg. at 6 to 12 months old.

Baby food vegetable and ham dinners can contain over 500 mg. of sodium in one jar. It is best to buy a jar of plain vegetables and a jar of plain meat and mix them yourself. Then there is no salt to worry about. When you do start your baby on table food, don't salt it.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

As you feed your baby, talk to him/her about what you are doing. The more words that you expose your child to the more likely he/she is to have an extensive vocabulary.

Health care alliance option for business owners

With affordable health care a growing concern for area employers and employees, the Northwestern Minnesota Civic Health Initiative will convene meetings in six area communities in its effort to help the region begin to build its small business health care purchasing alliance.

Meetings to be held will include: Tues., Oct., 5 at 7:30 a.m. at the Patch Restaurant in Warroad, at noon at the Kittson County Courthouse in Hallock and at 4 p.m. in the board room at Riverview Healthcare Assn. in Crookston; and on Wed., Oct. 6 at 7:30 a.m. at La Fond Restaurant in Warren, at 11:30 a.m. at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls, and at 3:30 p.m. at Uncle Bob's Restaurant in Fosston.

Legislation enacted during the last legislative session provided funding to organize health care purchasing alliances in northwestern and southwestern Minnesota, and the University of Minnesota-Crookston, through its Northwestern Minnesota Civic Health Initiative, is taking leadership in organizing area meetings.

Pat McLaughlin of the Employers Assn. will attend each of the meetings to discuss the problems that employers face when trying to provide health care coverage for employees. He will also promote a feasible solution for the problems, describing now as the perfect time for area small businesses to tailor a health-care-purchasing alliance to meet the needs of workers in this part of the state. McLaughlin's organization has 60 years of experience serving as a resource to 1,700 small and mid-sized businesses with matters such as human resources, training, safety and health care.

Liz Quam for the Advocates for Marketplace Options for Mainstreet will also make a presentation, explaining the Purchasing Alliance law and how it can help support an alliance in northwestern Minnesota.

Similar meetings conducted in the southwestern part last fall were deemed very successful, according to Barbara J. Muesing, Northwestern Minnesota Civic Health Initiative coordinator.

Disability accommodations for the meetings will be available upon request. For more information about the meetings or the Northwestern Minnesota Civic Health Initiative, call Barbara Muesing at (218) 281-8680. She can also be reached at her e-mail address: bmuesing@mail.crk.umn.edu.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. Can more than one wife receive Social Security on the husband's record at one time?

A. Only one wife (or husband) can receive spousal benefits at a time. However, to actually answer the question as the asker intended it, a current wife and an ex-wife can both receive benefits on the record at the same time assuming that each meets the requirements.

Benefits to divorced people, male and female, are potentially payable on the record of an ex-spouse whether the ex-spouse is alive or dead although requirements are a bit different for live and survivor types of benefits. In addition, when a current spouse is also receiving benefits, entitlement of the divorced spouse has no effect on the amount the current spouse receives.

As you can imagine, there are several very specific requirements that must be met before benefits can be paid. In general, however, when both parties are alive, a divorced spouse can get benefits on a former husband or wife's record if the marriage lasted at least 10 years. The divorced spouse must be 62 years old or older and currently unmarried. If the spouse has been divorced for at least two years, he or she can get benefits if the worker (the ex-spouse) is not yet retired providing that person has enough work history to retire and is at least age 62 or older.

Benefits payable on your own work record are also a factor in this situation.

In summary, if you have a marriage that ended after at least ten years, there is potential for payment of a divorced spouse benefit. Therefore, forget your ex-spouse's name if you wish, but keep his/her Social Security number for future reference.

Q. A year or so ago, the Social Security Administration mailed me unsolicited material about my Social Security record. Can I get another one with more current information?

A. Yes. You can request this information, now called the "Social Security Statement" (form SSA-7004) via the agency website at www.ssa.gov or by calling the national toll-free number at 800-772-1213.

Even if you don't request it, this information will be sent to you automatically during the upcoming year as part of the agency's plan to inform people about their individual Social Security records and agency programs.

Beginning October 1, the agency will send annual statements to about 125 million workers if they are age 25 and older and are not receiving Social Security benefits. About 500,000 statements will be delivered daily to about 10 million people per month, and workers can expect to receive their statements about three months before their birth months.

The four-page statement will contain an individual record of earnings for the person, a series of personal benefit estimates for retirement, survivors and disability to help with family financial planning and other program information.

Burglaries and thefts being investigated

Law enforcement officials are investigating a number of residential burglaries and thefts.

He was stopped by officers at First and Main. Two counts of theft under $250 are pending against 47-year-old Dale Benedict Capistran of Stephen. On September 16 Pennington County Law Enforcement received a report that Don Michael Hansen, 45, Apple Valley, was in custody in the Twin Cities on a warrant from Pennington County for theft over $2,500. The charges stem from allegations that Hansen took an Arctic Cat snowmobile from Arctic Cat without paying for it. While Hansen was being transferred to Pennington county he complained of a medical emergency and was taken to a hospital in Moose Lake. A short time after being admitted, Hansen escaped. He was located and placed back into custody a short time later. As a result, an additional charge of felony escape from custody is pending against Hansen.

On September 10 the sheriff's department received information that led them to a stolen key. A charge of possession of stolen property is pending against a 17-year-old male from Goodridge. The case remains under investigation.

Burglary. On September 14 at 11:44 a.m. police received a report of a burglary sometime in the past month. Someone entered a residential garage and took three 20-pound propane tanks and a Coleman 2250 watt generator. The theft loss was estimated at $440.

Valerie Lynn Nelson, Fergus Falls, was driving a 1997 Chevrolet Tahoe east when she lost control on gravel and the vehicle rolled in the ditch. Nelson complained of an injury to her arm. Damage amount was unknown.

Assault. On September 20 at 3 p.m. police received a report of an assault. A woman alleged that a man pushed and choked her. A charge of fifth degree assault is pending against 24-year-old Chad Timothy Nelson, Thief River Falls.

On September 20 after investigating a report of an assault received on September 16, a charge of assault in the third degree is pending against 23-year-old Donnie Navarius Beverly, Thief River Falls. The 19-year-old male victim had cuts to his face and head and received stitches to his eye.

Vandalism. On September 17 at 4:34 p.m. police received a report that a vehicle had been scratched with a sharp object. Damage was estimated at over $300.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

A hard rush by Crookston linebacker Landon Stromberg forced Thief River Falls quarterback Brad Bugler to get rid of this pass in a hurry during Friday's high school football game at Prowler Field. The Pirates controlled things on defense en route to a 12-0 win.

Northland bounces back

■ Pioneers are 3-1 after beating Bluejays 21-14

A week after laying an egg in a 31-7 loss at Ridgewater, Northland players were back in good graces with head coach Dan Willoughby Saturday following an impressive showing in a 21-14 Minnesota Community College Conference football win over previously unbeaten Minnesota West at Prowler Field.

Willoughby let it be known that he wasn't happy with the Pioneers' efforts against Ridgewater that cast a shadow of doubt over Northland's strength, despite season-opening wins over Central Lakes 28-26 and Fergus Falls 16-8. The victory over Minnesota West restored his faith in his team.

"We played well," he acknowledged. "I'm proud of the way they came back after last week. They (West) are as good as Ridgewater. After losing like we did at Willmar, to come back and play this well today is a real compliment to the kids."

It was the kind of game that could bring customers back through the gate: two evenly-matched teams who relied on big plays to break stalemates up front.

First break came when Mike Svojanovski, on his first pass attempt in relief of Northland starting quarterback Ben Mosack, hit a wide-open Matt Hitchen with a quick throw over the middle that the runningback turned into a 49-yard gain to the Minnesota West 6-yard line. That was just the spark Willoughby was looking for. Svojanovski, a sophomore from Swan Valley, MB, quarterbacked the the Pioneers the rest of the afternoon.

Two plays after the reception/run by Hitchen, burly fullback Scott Olsen scored from a yard out and Ryan Polzin added the kick for a 7-0 Northland lead with 16 seconds left in the first quarter.

Second big play of the day was supplied by Olsen, who turned an ordinary dive on a third-and-six in the final minute of the first half into an extraordinary 69-yard touchdown run. The hard-running 5-9, 245-pound freshman from Hillsboro, ND, bulled through the middle, pulled out of the grasp of a defender, who was left with a handful of Olsen's t-shirt at midfield, and broke into the open. He reached the end zone with just two seconds left in the first half. Polzin's kick made it 14-0.

"Olsen's our horse," acknowledged Willoughby. "He's tough to bring down."

Minnesota West responded with a big play of its own to chop the difference in half when, on a third-and-26 from the Bluejays' 9-yard line, Jesse Berg hit Mathias Wilson on a crossing pattern over the middle. Berg was able to spin out of the grasp of a defensive back at the 30 and sprinted the rest of the way to complete a 91-yard touchdown play. A kick by Dale Lewis made it 14-7 with 1:26 left in the third quarter.

A 31-yard Berg pass to Brian Whitacre that carried to the Northland 17-yard line highlighted a seven-play, 53-yard Minnesota West scoring drive that tied it 14-14. Benjamin Becker spun into the end zone off left tackle from six yards out with 5:38 to play.

With overtime looming, the final big play came from the Pioneers' special teams when Nick Waldal, a freshman from Plummer, blocked a punt with just 2:49 remaining. Waldal took advantage of a high snap that punter Eric Hall had to pull down, to gain an extra second on his rush.

Northland wound up with the ball at the Bluejays' 16, and three carries by Olsen put the ball into the end zone with 1:27 on the clock. Running off right tackle, Olsen gained six yards on first down, three yards on second down and scored standing up from seven yards out. He finished with 162 yards on 28 carries.

"It was a battle," noted Willoughby. "It told the kids it would go down to the end, and it did."

Post-game comments were delayed a bit as Willoughby tried to check on several Pioneers who were injured during the game – most of them on defense. "I kept looking over my shoulder to see who we had left," he said. "I don't know how many kids I would have had if we would have had to play any longer."

Pirates shut out Prowlers 12-0…

Crookston defense prevails

Crookston's defense dominated from start to finish, and the misfortune that kept the Pirates off the scoreboard early turned in their favor down the stretch Friday as they beat rival Thief River Falls 12-0 in high school football.

The Thief River Falls home opener was a match-up of 2-0 teams who played 40 minutes of scoreless football. But with the Prowlers limited to two first downs and 44 yards worth of offense through 3 1/2 quarters, it was a one-sided tie. They netted just 77 yards for the night.

Crookston's performance left quite an impression on Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "That's as good a football team to play on this field in a long time," he said. "They're exceptionally quick and physical. They're a machine. We tired everything we had, and they shut us down every time."

Despite dominating, the Pirates didn't get on the scoreboard until two four quarter Thief River Falls special teams mistakes opened the door for the visitors.

A clipping penalty on a punt return pinned the Prowlers back at the Thief River Falls 9-yard line 65 seconds into the final period, and for a team that had not been able to muster an offense, it was a hole from which they wouldn't climb out. In fact, four plays later Thief River Falls was back at the 1-yard line, and punter Brian Loe was kicking from the back of the end zone.

Loe was instrumental in keeping the Prowlers in the game with his punting, averaging 41.9 yards on eight kicks, including first half drives of 72, 58 and 47 yards. But this time the cramped quarters produced a 22-yard punt, putting the Crookston offense in position to break the deadlock.

It wasn't an easy score, however. It took a five-yard Elliot Erdmann run with a quick pitch to pick up a first down on a fourth-and-five play to keep the mini-drive going. The next snap produced the touchdown when Erdmann came out of the backfield and ran by a Thief River Falls defender who slipped on the slippery turf. He pulled in the 13-yard pass from Carl Hunt with 8:04 remaining.

"Their defense kept giving them good field position," noted Mumm. "And if your defense keeps doing that, sooner or later your offense is going to score."

The ensuing kickoff went out of bounds. The same thing happened at the start of the night when the Prowlers began a game-opening possession at their own 35. This time, however, Mumm elected to have Crookston kick a second time. It was a decision that backfired when Chris Coauette low line drive caromed off a Thief River Falls player and was recovered by the Pirates at the Prowlers' 37.

It took just four plays to double the difference to 12-0 as Hunt took a quarterback keeper 24 yards down the left sideline. The Prowlers stopped the Pirates a second time on a two-point conversion run, but they still faced a two-touchdown deficit with just 6:13 to play.

The breaks on the punt and kickoff helped ease some of the Pirates' early-game frustration. They rattled off five first downs and quickly reached the Thief River Falls 12-yard line on an impressive first possession that was suddenly aborted by back-to-back holding penalties.

Second Crookston possession looked even more promising when Loe's 72-yard punt was followed by a 73-yard Hunt pass to Tim Lindgren that carried to the Prowlers' 1-yard line. Lindgren had a step on the Thief River Falls defense when he caught the ball in stride at midfield and was headed to the end zone before being caught from behind on a touchdown-saving tackle by Zach Olson. Hunt tried to to score on a first down sneak, but coughed up the ball. It was recovered by the Prowlers' Josh Jensen inches from the goal line.

A second fumble recovery by Jensen at the Pirates' 32 with 7:45 remaining in the second quarter resulted in Thief River Falls' only first half possession in Crookston territory.

The Prowlers' offensive troubles continued in the second half. They never made it past the Crookston 44 until a late-game 15-yard Crookston penalty for roughing the quarterback gave Thief River Falls a first down at the Pirates' 30. It was an opportunity to still make a game of it, but instead, the Prowlers gave up the ball on downs at the 33 with 2:06 to play.

Erdmann, a 165-pound junior, finished with 111 yards on 23 carries. Defensively, Coauette, a 200-pound senior linebacker, was the Pirates' leader. "He (Coauette) is as good a linebacker as we've faced," said Mumm. "If he doesn't get a chance to play college ball, somebody's missing the boat."

Prowlers second in tournament

Thief River Falls turned in a second place finish Saturday at the Warren-Alvarado-Oslo Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

The Prowlers beat Tri-County 2-0, split a 1-1 match with Crookston and swept Stephen-Argyle 2-0 in the round-robin pool play portion of the tournament to earn a spot in the finals against Kittson Central. The Wolfpack won 2-0.

Becky Bray had 7 kills and Kylie Rogalla contributed 5 in Thief River Falls' 15-5, 15-4 tournament-opening win over Tri-County.

"We played really well," said Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche.

The split against Crookston included a 15-13 first-game win by the Pirates and a 15-12 second-game victory for the Prowlers. Bray had 13 kills and Rachel Mathson finished with 8. Ayla Donlin wound up with 22 assists.

"Crookston had already beaten us twice this year, so it was a confidence booster to split with them," noted Roche. "We played them tough."

Fourteen kills by Bray and 17 assists by Donlin carried the Prowlers past Stephen-Argyle 15-1, 15-5, clinching a spot in the championship match.

"Again, we played well," pointed out Roche.

Kittson Central picked up the key points in the 17-15, 15-11 title match win. Mathson and Bray had 14 kills each, and Donlin finished with 21 assists.

"It was a very close match," mentioned Roche. "We played well, but we just couldn't get the points when we needed them."

Results put the Prowlers at 6-6-1 for the year. "Overall, I thought we had a really good tournament," said Roche.

Pioneers take two of three home matches

Sandy Brekke, a freshman middle hitter from Win-E-Mac, had 10 kills and 12 blocks Friday to lead Northland past visiting Rainy River 3-1 in Minnesota Community College Conference volleyball.

The Pioneers out-scored the Voyageurs 15-11, 11-15, 15-5, 15-3.

Saturday, Northland split a pair of matches with Hibbing and the North Dakota State College of Science in a Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Triangular.

The Pioneers swept a 15-5, 17-15, 15-1 MCCC Northern Division-counting match from the Cardinals before losing a 15-9, 15-9 decision to the Wildcats.

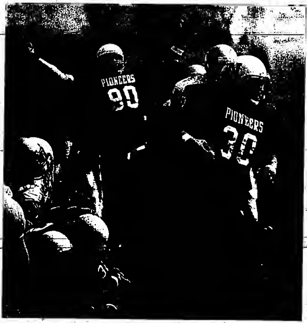
Weekend results left Northland 6-4 for the year. "I thought we played well," said Pioneers coach Mike Zachow. "I was happy. I didn't feel bad when he lost (to NDSCS). They're that good. They're a scholarship school. They do a lot of things that we won't see the rest of the year."

Northland has a Northern Division match against Central Lakes tonight (Wednesday) in Brainerd. They will compete in the Itasca Invitational Saturday at Grand Rapids, where a strong field includes the likes of Vermilion, the Northern Division leader; Rochester, a national tournament finalist a year ago, and North Dakota scholarship schools–Lake Region and Bismarck.

"It'll be a tough tournament, but hopefully it'll make us that much better, and help us when post-season comes around," said Zachow.

TRF Sports Boosters to meet 12-noon Thursday

A round-table discussion among club members will be featured Thursday during the weekly 12-noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meeting at the Elks.



A touchdown was signalled by Northland tight end Dan Zubich as teammate Scott Olsen stepped into the end zone against Minnesota West Saturday at Prowler Field. The one-yard run was the first of three touchdowns for Olsen, who carried the ball 28 times for 162 yards in the Pioneers' 21-14 Minnesota Community College Conference win.

Saturday football doubleheader…

Prowlers, Pioneers to meet Iron Range foes

A pair of Iron Range teams will be the opponents Saturday for Thief River Falls' first-ever high school/college football doubleheader at Prowler Field.

The back-to-back games will have Northland Community and Technical College playing Hibbing at 11:30 a.m. and Lincoln High School meeting Virginia at 3 p.m.

Originally, the doubleheader was scheduled as part of a dedication for the new football field at the Multi-Events Center. It was announced earlier that the playing surface at the new facility would not be ready for the 1999 season, but officials decided the NCTC-Hibbing and LHS-Virginia twinbill would go on as scheduled at the old site.

It was noted, however, that game times have been switched from the 11:45 a.m. and 2 p.m. kickoffs that appear on the published schedules.

Fans can attend both games for the price of one under a special promotion offered by Northland and Lincoln. Tickets, good for both games, are priced at $4 for adults and $2 for students K-through-12 and senior citizens with the School District 564 card. Northland students will be admitted free of charge by showing their school I.D. card.

The Prowlers are 2-1 following a 12-0 Friday loss at the hands of Crookston. They opened the year with wins at Spring Lake Park 13-7 and Hibbing 34-21. Virginia is 1-2 with a season-opening 27-6 win over Eveleth-Gilbert and back-to-back losses to Duluth Central 28-12 and Hibbing 35-7.

It'll be the third straight year the Prowlers and Blue Devils have met, with Thief River Falls winning the first two encounters 40-20 and 50-0. Levi Bennett, a 6-2, 235-pound offensive tackle, and Nick Bakhtiari, a 5-10, 165-pound wide receiver, headline a Virginia team that was 2-7 a year ago.

Northland, after an impressive 21-14 win over Minnesota West Saturday, is 3-1 for the first time. The Pioneers' best finish ever was 6-3 in 1993 when they started the year 2-2.

The Pioneers have beaten the Cardinals seven straight times, including a 24-20 victory last year at Hibbing. It will be the first of four regular season-ending MCCC Northern Division games for the Pioneers, whose first four starts were against Southern Division teams. Games against teams in your own division are worth two points in the standings, while games against teams in the other division are one-point match-ups. The Pioneers, who will follow the Hibbing contest with games against Vermilion at Ely, Itasca in Grand Rapids and Mesabi Range at home, are the only 3-1 team in the Northern Division.

Gators out-score Warroad

A first-game rally fell short, but Badger/Greenbush-Middle River finished with a come-from-behind effort in Game 4 that clinched a 3-1 Monday high school volleyball win at Warroad.

The Gators won 14-16, 15-3, 15-7, 15-13. They tried to come back from a 14-8 deficit in Game 1; they trailed 13-7 before pulling out the Game 4 victory.

"Consistent serving and defense won it," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian. "Offensively we were up and down."

The Gators' balanced attack featured Tabetha Blazek with 9 kills, Allison Johnson and Kara Gregerson with 6 each. Kelly Everson finished with 7 assists and Sarah Peterson collected 3 aces.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River is 4-5.

Cougars beat Nordics 36-14…

KCN wins match-up of top runningbacks

A match-up of two top-notch runningbacks produced a bundle of yards for Bret Homstad of Kittson County North and Bjorn Halvorson of Marshall County Central in a Friday high school football game at Newfolden. It also resulted in a 36-14 win for the visiting Cougars.

Homstad finished with 209 yards on 40 carries. Halvorson netted 183 yards on 36 attempts.

The Nordics, coming off a 24-22 upset of Kittson Central, fell to 1-2 heading into a Friday afternoon game against Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke in Grygla.

"It was definitely an offensive game," noted Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker. "Defensively, we did not do the job we did the week before."

Kittson County North had a 20-8 first quarter lead and carried a 20-14 edge at intermission after the first half clock ran out on a Marshall County Central scoring threat just outside the Cougars' end zone.

A pair of second half Kittson County North touchdowns turned it into a 22-point spread at the end.

Matt Waterworth supplied Marshall County Central with a second 100-yard runner when he netted 104 yards on 20 carries. The Nordics finished with 275 yards on 58 running plays. Zach Holthusen was 3-for-8 passing for 46 yards.

Kittson County North wound up with 308 rushing yards on 48 carries. The winners were 2-for-7 in the air for 45 yards.

"Offensively we moved the ball pretty well," said Parker. "We just need to finish. Defensively, we have to do a better job; we have to run and tackle."

Wolfpack takes 40-22 match-up with Blue Devils

Kittson Central out-scored Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 40-22 Friday in high school football.

It was the second loss of the year for the Blue Devils, who fell to Ulen-Hitterdal 14-8 in overtime in a Sept. 3 season-opener and had a second-week bye.

"It was exciting," noted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "It was fun to watch. "We played pretty well, but we had some injuries in the second half, and we just don't have the depth to overcome losses like that."

Marshall Tanner (120) and Alex Holte (106) both had over 100 yards rushing for the Blue Devils, who will play Marshall County Central Friday afternoon at Grygla.

Prowlers beat Otters, Cardinals

More matches. That's what Thief River Falls girls high school tennis coach Sylvia Sjoberg wants. The Prowlers posted identical 5-2 wins over Alexandria and Fergus Falls in a Saturday double-dual at Fergus Falls that pushed their record to 6-1, but they won't be back on the courts until this weekend with a Friday dual at Bemidji and the Saturday Brainerd Invitational.

"We just need to keep playing," said Sjoberg. "We seem to get better the more matches we play."

Double winners for the Prowlers against the Otters and Cardinals were Jenny Kimball (No. 2) and Eryn Clow (No. 3) in singles, along with Jenni Gonsorowski-Beth Padilla (No. 1) and Karen Christensen-Heidi Young (No. 2) in doubles.

"Everyone seems to be taking turns playing well for us," mentioned Sjoberg. "Eryn Clow has probably been our most consistent player."

Mustangs win with defense

■ RLCC beats Norman County West 13-6

The offense was having trouble, so Red Lake County Central relied on defense Friday to beat Norman County West 13-6 in a homecoming high school football game at Plummer.

"We weren't real happy with our first half," said Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "Defensively it wasn't bad, but we didn't do anything on offense."

The Mustangs' play after intermission included a little improvement on offense and a game-winning effort on defense, according to Brantl. "The second half offense was a little better, although we still struggled at times," he explained. "But the defense really stepped it up and did a great job in the second half."

Only Norman County West touchdown came with 4:01 left in the first quarter when Kris DeLong reached the end zone from two yards out.

That 6-0 edge stood up until Benji Kvasager went 29 yards with a Carl Dugstad pass, and Matt Hruby added a conversion kick for a 7-6 Red Lake County Central lead with 6:44 remaining in the third quarter.

That was enough for the Red Lake County Central defense, but Adam Koralewski broke off a 67-yard touchdown run 3 1/2 minutes later to provide an insurance touchdown.

Koralewski's long run made him the Mustangs' leading ground-gainer for the game. Wade Westlake netted 41 yards on 12 carries and Hruby finished with 30 yards on 7 rushing attempts. Red Lake County Central was limited to 152 yards on 25 running plays, and the touchdown pass was Dugstad's only completion in six attempts.

Westlake topped the Mustangs' defensive chart with 15 tackles, while Hruby had 11, Brent Nelson 10, Chris Lessard 9, and Chris Nelson 7, along with two fumble recoveries. Heath Roslen came up with two quarterback sacks, while Westlake and Chris Nelson had one each.

The 2-1 Mustangs will face unbeaten Clearbrook-Gonvick Friday at Oklee.

College golf…

Northland finishes second in Monday Lake Region meet

Two Northland Community and Technical College golfers tied for second in the medal standings and the Pioneers finished second Monday in a four-team field at the Lake Region Invitational at Devils Lake, ND.

The Pioneers were the only Minnesota school in the otherwise all-North Dakota field that saw Bismarck shoot a 306, Northland 319, Williston 340, and Lake Region 362.

Jayden Olson of Williston was meet medalist with a 74. Dominic Ste. Marie and Pete Vacha of Northland were second on the tournament score sheet at 76.

Rest of the Pioneers' scores included Justin Buhl with an 83, Jon Lee 84 and Dustin Stewart 86.

"We're improving every time out," reported Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "Some of the guys shot their best scores of the year."

The Pioneers were scheduled to play in the Central Lakes Invitational today (Wednesday) at Brainerd. The regular season schedule will end with the Madison Tech Invitational in LaCrosse, WI Sept. 29 and the Fergus Falls Invitational Sept. 30.

Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament and National Junior College Athletic Association Region 13 tournaments will be run simultaneously Oct. 4-5 in Mankato.

B/G-MR places fourth in Roseau Invitational volleyball tournament

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River split four matches and finished fourth Saturday at the Roseau Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

Host Roseau swept the Gators 15-5, 15-5 to start the round-robin pool play schedule.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River came back from a 10-0 deficit to beat Kittson County North 15-12, 15-5 and handled Kelliher/Northome 15-4, 15-8 to earn a spot in the third place match.

Warroad edged the Gators 15-11, 15-10 in the trophy round.

"We played pretty well in different areas in each match," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian. "We just have to put it all together."

Allison Johnson, Tabetha Blazek and Jessica Smith led the Gators' attack during the tournament, with Kelly Everson doing the bulk of the setting.

Fertile-Beltrami stops B/G-MR

Badger/Greenbush Middle River came up short on a two-point conversion attempt with 3:12 minutes remaining Friday and lost a 13-12 high school football game to Fertile-Beltrami in Badger.

A 6-6 first quarter tie turned into a 13-6 Fertile-Beltrami halftime edge when the Falcons' David Westhead converted a pass from Nathan Sammes into a 63-yard touchdown with three minutes to play.

It was the second long touchdown of the [illegible] for the winners who had earlier responded to a 1-yard Karen Waage touchdown run with a 75-yard kickoff return by Mark Halley.

Badger/Greenbush Middle River made it a one-point game on a 1-yard Waage run late in the [illegible] quarter, but couldn't punch in the go-ahead conversion.

It was the second straight [illegible] loss for the 2-1 Gators, who fell to Ada-Borup 14-6 a week earlier.

Billy Brazier rushed for 92 yards on 17 carries for the Gators, while Waage netted 72 yards on 19 attempts and Kurt Truscinski had 68 yards on 14 tries. All 232 yards of offense by Badger/Greenbush-Middle River came on the ground as the Gators played without injured quarterback David Truscinski.

The Gators' defense limited the Falcons to 91 yards rushing and [illegible] yards worth of passes.

Joey Dostal, Mark Borgen and Victor Kand all played well on defense, pointed out Badger/Greenbush Middle River coach Tom Sedlacek.

"We played so much better than we did the week before," noted Sedlacek, "but we gave up the two long touchdowns. It's a shame to play that well and still lose."

The Gators will be at Hawley Friday.

DNR NEWS

DNR Officer of the Year

State Conservation Officer Dan E. Book of Peterson was recently named Minnesota's Conservation Officer of the Year by the Shikar-Safari Club International as well as Minnesota Officer of the Year by the Midwest Fish and Wildlife Officer's Association. The awards which recognize excellence in conservation law enforcement were presented during a ceremony at Cabella's hunting, fishing and outdoor retail store in Owatonna.

"Sgt. Book is a consummate professional who strives for perfection in his job and his commitment to the community," said Bill Bernhjelm, the Department of Natural Resources Enforcement Division director. "He is successful in all aspects of his job, from consistently carrying a high case load, to helping out people in need, to protecting the state's natural resources. His work is symbolic of the outstanding law enforcement being done every day by Minnesota conservation officers."

Book, a 20-year DNR employee, has assisted in training other officers for more than 18 years. He provides programs, materials and guidance at all conservation officer candidate academy classes. Book's service highlights include organizing hunter safety classes for the Amish community in his area as well as arranging for the certification of Amish firearms safety instructors. Another example is Book's work with the Southeast Asian Outreach Project through the Lao Family Center in St. Paul.

In February, Book was recognized with another achievement when he was named the 1998 Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Conservation Officer of the Year based on his work in such areas as natural resources law enforcement; interdepartmental, interagency and divisional assistance and cooperation; overall professionalism; positive attitude; and community involvement.

Shikar-Safari Club International was formed in 1952 by a group of international hunters who organized to exchange experiences and ideas on worldwide conservation issues. Monies raised by Shikar-Safari Club International members are used to carry on various conservation projects throughout the world. The mission of the Midwest Fish and Wildlife Officer's Association is to work with others to conserve, protect, and enhance fish and wildlife and their habitats for the continuous benefit of the public.

Duck, goose hunting regulations finalized

Minnesota's duck and goose hunting regulations have been finalized for the 1999 season, according to Department of Natural Resources officials. The public comment period on waterfowl regulations for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service closed Sept. 3, and officials indicate there will be no changes in their original season framework proposal for the states.

The seasons in Minnesota will be the same as previously announced in August. Dates for the duck season are Oct. 2-Nov. 30.

Daily bag limit of six ducks is the same as last year except for a reduction in the scaup limit. The six-duck limit may not include more than four mallards (only two of which may be hens), three scaup, two wood ducks, two redheads, one black duck, one pintail and one canvasback.

Fall waterfowl hunting activity started with the annual Youth Waterfowl Hunting Day Sept. 18, which allowed hunters 15 years of age and younger to take ducks, one Canada goose, mergansers, coots and moorhens when accompanied by a non-hunting adult 18 years of age or older.

Regular season for ducks, geese and coots will open at 12-noon Saturday, Oct. 2, except for geese in the West Central and Lac qui Parle zones, which will open a week later, Oct. 9.

Except for opening day, when shooting hours are 12-noon to 4 p.m., shooting hours for all waterfowl will be from one-half hour before sunrise to 4 p.m. daily through Oct. 9, and then from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset beginning Oct. 10, through the season's end.

Canada goose seasons have been expanded in response to improved status of Eastern Prairie Population Canada geese that migrate through Minnesota. The season in the Lac qui Parle and West Central goose zones, which has been increased from 20 to 30 days, will run Oct. 9 to Nov. 7. The harvest index in the Lac qui Parle Zone has also been increased from 10,000 to 16,000. The season could close earlier than Nov. 9 if this harvest is reached. Daily bag limit is one Canada goose in these zones.

In the West and Northwest zones, the goose season will be Oct. 2-Nov. 10, with a limit of one Canada goose per day. In the remainder of the state, the goose season will run Oct. 2-Dec. 10, with a daily bag limit of two Canada geese.

Seasons for light geese (snow, blue and Ross' geese), white-fronted geese, and brant will be Oct. 2-Dec. 20, except the Lac qui Parle goose zone where the season for all geese will close the same date as the Canada goose season. Daily limit will be 10 light geese in combination, two white-fronted geese, and one brant.

Special 10-day December Canada goose hunt will be expanded this year to include the entire state except the Lac qui Parle and West Central goose zones. The December season will run Dec. 11-[illegible]. Daily bag limit will be five Canada geese, except in the Southeast Goose Zone where the limit will be two Canada geese per day. A $3 special goose hunt permit will be required to participate in the December hunt.

For a complete summary of waterfowl regulations, DNR officials said hunters should consult the 1999 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations and the 1999 Minnesota Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Supplement, available from license agents and DNR offices.

Waterfowl expo at Agassiz on September 26

hunting in past years in the United States. At 4 p.m. Howard will also present a program on the history of decoys. Throughout the afternoon the 1999 U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service "Status of Waterfowl" 20-minute video will be shown. This annual North American waterfowl survey is one of the oldest and most comprehensive in the world. Waterfowl breeding population numbers, wetland habitat conditions, fall flight forecast and history of the Service's waterfowl survey are all explained in the video. Also, the video pays tribute to the numerous biologists who helped develop and refine survey techniques through the years the survey has been completed. This year's population of breeding ducks rose 11 percent to 43.4 million birds, representing a 32 percent increase over the 1955-98 average. Fall flight duck population is projected at 105 million birds, a substantial increase over 1998.

The Thief River Falls Chapter of Ducks Unlimited will be serving doughnuts, cookies and refreshments throughout the afternoon. Door prizes, including prints, will be drawn for at 5 p.m. You do not need to be present for the door prizes. Brochures and pamphlets about waterfowling will be available from the Chapter.

Come and test your waterfowl identification skills by observing live ducks from roads and public use facilities on the refuge. Early fall plumage provides for challenging bird watching as new feathers lack color. But with the change of seasons colored feathers become more distinguishable. Observing ducks at this time of the year will help sharpen your duck identification skills before the opening of duck hunting season.

All of the presentations will be completed at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge Headquarters located 11 miles east of Holt, or 23 miles northeast of Thief River Falls, or 22 miles southeast of Middle River, or 18 miles west of Grygla, or 17 miles northwest of Goodridge on Marshall County road 7. In case of inclement weather all activities will still be completed except the dog retrieving and waterfowl decoy placement and hunting techniques which have to be completed outdoors. If further information is needed please call the refuge office at 218-449-4115, extensions 214 or 211.

Lindberg said he hopes to received reimbursement for damage and the cost of six weeks of clean-up. He said, if approved, 75 percent of the reimbursement would come from the Federal government, and 15 percent from the state. He didn't have an estimate of the damage available for the council.

In other business, the council: approved application for a new class B gambling license for the Thief River Falls Athletic Association at Handy Farms; approved a request to advertise for a part-time driver/collector position in the Sanitation Department; approved a salary progression raise for Jim Anderson, apprentice lineworker, and John Mezeski, park maintenance/arena worker; approved a recommendation to declare the cost of the 1999 Street Improvement Project to be assessed and the assessment roll prepared.

The conference was organized by local citizens who are concerned about the future of education in Minnesota's public schools. Video tapes of the conference will be available. For more information, call (218) 796-5842.

A large number of families attended the 20th anniversary celebration of School District 564's Early Childhood Family Education (ECFE) program on Sunday, September 19 at Challenger Elementary and Preschool. The THE TIMES SECOND FRONT

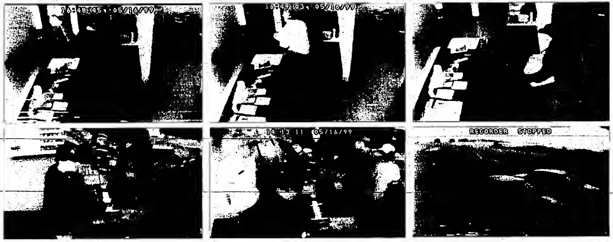
Volume 88, Number 38 Wednesday, September 22, 1999



Pennington County Sheriff's department is requesting assistance from the public in identifying the individuals responsible for the thefts that took place on May 16 at Petro Pumper in Thief River Falls. These pictures from surveillance camera at the store capture the individuals who are believed to be responsible for the thefts taking the safes (top pictures) and in the bottom pictures purchasing something at the counter. The final picture shows a Chevy Tahoe believed to have been used in the thefts. Anyone with information should contact law enforcement at 681-6161. One man, pictured in the white t-shirt, was described as about 25-years-old, six-feet tall, stocky to heavy build, with no facial hair. The second man, was described as shorter and younger than the other men, of medium build, wearing blue jeans, tennis shoes, and a dark color two-tone coat, and Nike baseball cap.

Region's unemployment decreases in July, but higher than one year ago

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate jumped to 2.9 percent in July, up from June's rate of 2.6 percent and from last year's rate of 2.5 percent. July's jump resulted from an increase in the pool of "job seekers" — the entrants and re-entrants to the workforce who were neither employed nor seeking in the previous month. The number of job seekers increased in response to the booming state economy, according to the Minnesota Department of Economic Security Research and Statistics office.

In Region One, which includes the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau, the rate of unemployment decreased from 4.7 percent in June to 4.5 percent in July. The overall rate of unemployment, however, was higher in July of 1999 than it was one year ago at 3.7 percent.

Of the seven counties in the region the lowest rate of unemployment in July 1999 was recorded in Roseau county at 3.3 percent, a decrease from 3.4 percent in June of 1999. The county with the highest rate of unemployment in July of 1999 was Red Lake at 8 percent, but even that was a decrease from 8.1 percent in June of 1999.

The seven counties in the region reported the following rates of unemployment: Kittson 6.2 percent, Marshall 6.9 percent, Norman 4.5 percent, Pennington 4.1 percent, Polk 4.1 percent, Red Lake 8.0 percent, and Roseau 3.3 percent.

The state's unadjusted unemployment rate was 2.6 percent in July, down from June's rate of 3.0. Historically, July's unadjusted rate has been below June's unadjusted rate. Both rates are below the national rates of 4.3 percent, seasonally adjusted, and 4.5 percent, unadjusted.

Region 11 (the seven-county Twin Cities region) maintained its position as the holder of the lowest rate at 2.2 percent, down from a revised 2.5 percent in June. The second-lowest was the region including St. Cloud (Region 7W) with a rate of 2.4, down from June's 2.9 percent. The region with the highest rate is still around Bagley and Bemidji (Region 2) with a rate of 5.0 percent, down from 5.7 percent; second-highest is the region around Roseau (Region 1) with a rate of 4.5 percent, down from 4.7 percent in June.

Olmsted, Washington and Dakota counties, all at 1.9 percent, joined Nicollet at 1.6 percent as the four counties with unemployment rates less than 2.0 percent for July.

A great way to warm your home and your heart.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota has settled down and tomorrow fall begins according to the calendar. The first week it sounds like we are heading into a real Indian Summer, and if so, I hope it lasts for a month or more. Last night frost warnings went on the air, but it didn't get below 32 degrees until 8:00 a.m. when it slipped to 28 or 29. At 11:00 a.m. one of Roy's four thermometers on the north side of the house was up to 48 and the one that the sun has been shining on for the past four hours is registering 60 degrees.

It sure is nice to have a Roy around that just doesn't like to take a chance and when it frosted a bit this morning I learned he had taken in the potted plants and covered the tomatoes. Not all the work for nothing if he can save them. There are so many tomatoes that are still green and if the reporters are well informed, we may have another week to let them ripen.

The Strandquist Seniors met on Thursday with two visitors - Adrienne Lofrooth and Bonita Kozmierczak. After visiting and tying on a quilt, they were treated to a delicious lunch by Iris Borggren. Evelyn Kujava won the door prize. They will meet again on Thursday and everyone is welcome. They have various things that are hand-made that they offer for sale now which would make lovely gifts. Get Christmas lists out and come take a look at some real beauties.

Don't forget to have your Sunday supper, September 26 between 4 and 6 p.m. at the Community Center in Strandquist where the AAL is sponsoring a benefit for the Lofroaths whose home was gutted by fire.

A special feature of the benefit for "Pete" and Shelley will be a "General Store" managed by their nieces and nephews. They are asking people to donate items such as baked goods, jam, jelly, relish, salsa, crafts and rummage type of things in good condition. Perhaps some merchants would donate some new things. Please price the items you donate and bring them to Bethesda Lutheran Church on Sunday morning, or to the benefit on Sunday afternoon. We thank you for any help you can give and come and enjoy the supper.

I received a letter from Joyce Sjodin of Crafton, relating the death of Arlet Bjorkman almost a year ago. She was kind enough to send me some particulars of it when she talked about it and learned that it wasn't known here. Arlet Dolores (Bjorkman) Des Longchamp passed away October 22, 1998 at 75 years of age. Arlet was born in Strandquist on January 14, 1923 to Erhard Bjorkman and Sylvia (Sjodin) Bjorkman and went to school in Strandquist. Sylvia and Arlet moved to Seattle where Arlet raised her family. One son, William Bates, three triplet daughters, Suzette Taylor, Annette Umess, and Babbett Hays, all living in Seattle. Arlet and her mother, Sylvia are buried in Evergreen-Washelli Cemetery in Seattle.

I'm glad to relay messages about former residents that have gone away from here, as memories are precious to friends.

Elaine Crovum visited her mom, Elsie Lofrooth on Sunday afternoon and they took a trip to Dean and JoAnne's home to celebrate their birthdays.

Robert and Cathy Thompson and Richard and Carol Thompson of Red Lake Falls spent Sunday afternoon at Isaac and Betty Thompson's home. Carol and some friends spent a couple of weeks in Sweden last month where I am sure she had a great time. She was practicing her Scandinavian language before she left but with both Norwegians and Swedes giving her lessons, I'll dare bet she had to switch to English. None of us could understand her when she went, and even with a couple of dictionaries it would have taken up most of her time just looking for the correct words to use. They must have had a good time as they tell it.

LeRoy and Ruth Sustad attended the 70th birthday observance for Evelyn Skjervon which was held at their son's home, Dennis and Joy Dill and hosted by family members.

Virgil and Marvelle Hjelle spent Sunday at Gonvick at the Clark Hjelle home to help grandson, Troy celebrate his 17th birthday.

On Monday, September 13, LeRoy and Ruth Sustad visited their granddaughter, Dawn and husband Cory at the hospital in Thief River Falls, where she had given birth to Tyson Marshall, another great-grandson for the Sustads.

The Miriam Circle met at 1:00 p.m. on Tuesday at Zion Church. Those who attended were Virginia Engen, Amy Hjelle, Emma Erickson, Janet Borg, and Joyce Erickson.

On Wednesday, September 15, LeRoy and Ruth Sustad drove to Moorhead, where they met relatives and toured the "Hjemkomst" museum. Second cousins, Larry and Audrey Anderson of San Diego, CA, his sister, Ardis Phillips of Haulton, WI, and friends, Donald and Lucille Asp of St. Paul were also there. The afternoon was spent touring the facilities. The builder of the ship "Hjemkomst" was Robert Asp who attended the Drotts country school with LeRoy, so it was an enjoyable day in every way to see and visit with old friends and relatives. Also at this location is a Stavkirke, a replica of the Hammerstad Norwegian stave church. This church was dedicated in June, 1998, and is open for tours and special events.

Liz Swanson received news on Monday morning of the birth of a great-granddaughter, born to Mark and Tami Whalen of East Grand Forks. Tami is the daughter of Glenn and Marion Halvorson of Warren.

Legislative Interest: First Politics, Then People

There's going to be another dental bill in this editor's future if Minnesota legislators continue on their present path of political partisanship. The need for repair will come from gritting our teeth in anger and frustration over the need seemingly felt by office holders to infuse politics into every available situation.

The most recent case in point was a public hearing held by the House DFL Committee on Rural Policy last Thursday in Bemidji. House DFL Leader Tom Pugh used the opportunity to slip a knife between the ribs of the Republican majority and give it an extra twist.

"I want to thank all the people who turned out to participate in this hearing, and I only wish the Republican leadership of the House could have heard their stories," Rep. Pugh was quoted to have said. The quotation was in a news release sent under the heading of the Minnesota House DFL Caucus. This was a DFL orchestrated event with invited DFL legislative participation that was held in Bemidji. Republican legislators weren't invited to come and listen.

"People who attended this hearing are in fact asking government to help them build a better future and a better community. Unfortunately, the House Republicans seem to be turning a deaf ear to these pleas from rural Minnesota."

Pugh noted that "Republican House Speaker Steve Sviggum has already announced his caucus will not consider any supplemental budget appropriations in the 2000 session, even though the state is expected to have another large budget surplus."

Aaarrrgh!!! Grit! Grind! Grit!

Here we are, months away from the start of the next legislative session, in a state with huge problems in its rural area and other problems in metro circles, and the state's most visible lawmakers are primarily concerned about taking turf positions and playing political games. Won't these people ever become mature enough to realize that the state legislative session is not an extension of grammar school recess? Grow up, already!

While adults with a true concern for the people should be concentrating on finding ways to cooperate and make life better for their constituents, these overgrown kids find it more fun to bicker, squabble, needle and insult. Little wonder the people of the state elected a governor who was associated with neither party.

We were disappointed to see Rep. Rod Skoe of Clearbrook, a first term legislator, included in the same news release as Rep. Pugh. Rep. Skoe, elected as a DFL candidate but who bleeds Republican when scratched, was much less antagonistic in his quoted comments. That is much to his credit. We hope in the future he will distance himself from the likes of Rep. Pugh who can only serve as a bad influence.

"We need to educate our metropolitan colleagues about the rural situation," Rep. Skoe said. "They are fortunate to live in an area with plenty of good jobs, plenty of good schools and plenty of choices in health care and transportation. But the economy isn't booming in all parts of the state. We need equal access to the economy."

Well, we doubt Rod really thinks people living in the metro area are all that fortunate— jobs, schools, health care and transportation benefits notwithstanding. If the truth be known, he would rather be knee deep in muck in his rice paddies than punching a time clock on the polished floor at General Mills; watching his kids board the bus to the Clearbrook school rather than joining thousands of faceless kids at some suburban knowledge dispensary; observing waterfowl instead of muggings. There are trade-offs to urban living, and we'll take the rural side.

Apart from that provincialism, however, we think elected officials owe their constituents more statesmanship and less partisanship. If they want to verbally bash one another after the session is over and the state's work has been honestly and admirably done, let them have at it. But first they should look at the issues with an open mind, honestly debate the differences and vote their preferences without this silly finger pointing and posturing.

Dentists must love politicians.

Government's "Quickly" Translates To "Never"

"We're hopeful to get a decision very quickly. We need to be working on a solution now and not waiting for the last minute. We can begin to work on it."

The speaker was Joe Westphal, assistant secretary of the army for civil works. His comments were made following a meeting he attended at the White House in Washington, DC, with James Lee Witt, head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and officials from several other federal agencies.

Westphal said the group hopes to have some proposals to present to White House Chief of Staff John Podesta in the next couple of weeks, but stressed that any solutions would only be in the preliminary stage. He declined to identify the specific ideas discussed at the meeting.

Topic of the discussion? Devils Lake.

Devils Lake in North Dakota? Yes, the same Devils Lake that has risen 24 feet over the past seven years, flooded 120,000 acres (187.5 square miles) and caused millions of dollars in damage. That Devils Lake.

Incredibly, U.S. Senator Kent Conrad of North Dakota says, "I think this is very positive. For James Lee Witt to hold a meeting on Devils Lake in the midst of Hurricane Floyd shows the importance he puts to responding to this threat."

It sure does show the importance he puts on response. With this kind of attention from FEMA, victims of Hurricane Floyd can expect to wait until 2100 for government help.

An Associated Press story by Frederic J. Frommer in the Grand Forks Herald included the above statements, along with the following:

"The Corps of Engineers this summer said it is proposing to begin construction of an outlet to the Sheyenne River if Devils Lake rises another six feet to 1,453 feet. That angered North Dakota officials who believe the corps is dragging its feet on the outlet issue.....Several hundred houses in the city of Devils Lake have been moved to drier ground."

Dragging its feet? Dragging its feet! Any less movement out of the Corps and it should add an "e" to the end of its name: Corpse would be more appropriate.

One would have to think, given any hope of even a shred of awareness and concern in federal government circles, that it would take something less than a 24-foot rise in lake level over a seven-year period to catch the right people's attention. More than 180 square miles, much of it farmland and/or residential property, under water! Waves lapping at the doorsteps or covering the floors of dozens of homes! People evacuating their property! Roads being built several stories high to connect higher points of ground and avoid areas from being totally isolated!

And a need is only now being discovered to work on a solution to a problem getting worse daily and not "wait for the last minute?"

Incredible!

Add to this helpful information the thoughtful consideration of Brett Hulsey, senior Midwest representative for the Sierra Club, who offered this sage comment: "Our concern is that we come up with a cost-effective solution that doesn't flood people downstream and doesn't hurt water quality downstream."

There seems to be only one process that will satisfy the Corps(e) of Engineers and environmental groups like the Sierra Club. It's called evaporation.

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER SEPTEMBER 21, 1899
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

IT IS NOT LEGAL
State Board of Health Cannot Enforce Vaccination.

"The Minnesota state board of health's rule requiring vaccination certificates in every district before admission to school cannot be enforced. Appeals to State Superintendent Lewis have been referred to Attorney General Douglass, who holds that no authority can be found for it. In view of the scare last winter and the scattered cases ever since, the state board adopted at its July meeting this rule to apply all over the state. Many districts have complied, but there has also been a good deal of opposition, as is shown by the inquiries of the state superintendent. Where parents have refused to have their children vaccinated the local boards were in a quandary. They did not wish to oppose the state board of health; many of them agree with the state board as to necessity of the precaution. On the other hand, there is a penalty for turning away from a school any child qualified for attendance, and they did not want to incur that penalty.

"The question was whether the ruling of the state board had such validity that they could refuse admission to the schools under it. General Douglass finds that the right to require vaccination as condition precedent to admission to school is not expressly conferred to the statutes and does not exist except by express grant."

The proposed assessment roll is on file for public inspection at the City Administrator's Office. The total amount of the proposed assessment is $134,000.00. Written or oral objections will be considered at the meeting. No appeal may be taken as to the amount of an assessment unless a signed, written objection is filed with the City Administrator prior to the hearing or presented to the presiding officer at the hearing. The Council may upon such notice consider any objection to the amount of a proposed individual assessment at an adjourned meeting upon such further notice to the affected property owners, as it deems advisable.

If an assessment is contested or there is an adjournment hearing, the following procedure will be followed:

1. The City will present its case first by calling witnesses who may testify by narrative or by examination, and by the introduction of exhibits. After each witness has testified, the contesting party will be allowed to ask questions. This procedure will be repeated with each witness until neither side has further questions.
2. After the City has presented all its evidence, the objector may call witnesses or present such testimony as the objector desires. The same procedure for questioning of the City's witnesses will be followed with the objector's witnesses.
3. The objector may be represented by counsel.
4. Minnesota rules of evidence will not be strictly applied, however, they may be considered and argued to the Council as to the weight of items of evidence or testimony presented to the Council.
5. The entire proceedings will be tape-recorded.
6. At the close of presentation of evidence, the objector may make a final presentation to the Council based on the evidence and the law. No new evidence may be presented at this point.
7. The Council may adopt the proposed assessment at the hearing.

An owner may appeal an assessment to District Court pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Section 429.081 by serving notice of the appeal upon the Mayor or Administrator of the City within 30 days after the adoption of the assessment and filing such notice with the District Court within 10 days after service upon the Mayor or Administrator.

Stop DRUG USE Before It Starts.

Statistics show that drug use is starting at a much younger age than ever before. Studies also show that parents don't think their children are the ones using drugs. The fact is, though, that your children are in danger unless you do something about it now.

Talk to your kids about drugs. Ask about their friends. Pay attention to behavioral changes and to their school grades. Keep your kids out of trouble before it begins.

Irish music group to open TRF entertainment series

Thief River Falls entertainment series for 1999-2000 will get off to a rousing and raucous start Saturday, October 9, at 7:30 p.m. when Will Millar & Some Mad Irishmen will open the four-concert series.

Sponsored by the Thief River Falls Concert Association, which has brought a wide variety of high caliber professional entertainment to Thief River Falls for many years, the series will include Neal & Leandra on Tuesday, December 7; 5 Guys Named Moe on Thursday, March 9; and the Glenn Miller Orchestra on Wednesday, May 5.

Admission to each of the presentations will be by season membership only, and all of the concerts will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Season memberships are now available at $25 for adults and $10 for students with a family membership available for $60.

Memberships may be purchased at the Thief River Falls Times office, Kezar Music, SuperValu and Hugo's supermarkets and from Cindy Tsukichi by calling 681-3344. They may also be ordered directly from the Thief River Falls Concert Association, P.O. Box 312, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

A summary of the entertainment programs for the 1999-2000 season is as follows:

Will Millar & Some Mad Irishmen
Saturday, October 9

For 30 years Will Millar was leader of The Irish Rovers and has recently moved on to new adventures. He and Some Mad Irishmen have recently completed a cross-country tour of the United States and Canada and a recent tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Millar himself is a concert performer, composer, poet, singer, historian, storyteller, author, TV host and humanitarian. Record sales of his song The Unicorn exceeded 8,500,000 copies worldwide. His newest album of songs from his roving years include The Unicorn, Black Velvet Band, Lord of the Dance, The Orange And The Green, Steal Away, Annie Laurie, Sweet Sixteen, Goodnight Irene, Irish Blossom Special, Danny Boy and Wasn't That A Party.

After the Irish Rovers parted ways, Will gathered up his guitar, mandolin, banjo and tin whistle and took off in a new direction. After recording a collection of Celtic melodies, he assembled a group of the finest, funniest and most talented Irish performers this side of Ireland.

Canola Production centre will relocate to TRF area

Located for the past two years on the Richard Magnuson farm about [illegible] the Minnesota Canola Production Centre (CPC) will be relocating to the Thief River Falls area for the 2000 and 2001 growing seasons.

The Canola Production Centre is an 80-acre research centre devoted to conducting farm scale trials. It will be located approximately three miles south of Thief River Falls on land owned by Ken and Connie Mehrkens along Highway 32.

Information gleaned from trials conducted by the centre is intended to offer producers scientific, easily adaptable information to help them produce canola more efficiently and profitably.

Trials thus far have yielded valuable information regarding such things as varieties, fungicides, insecticides, seeding rates and time of swathing.

According to the council office in St. Paul, 11 varieties of canola were planted at the centre near Roseau this spring. Seeding was late due to the cold and wet spring, but the crop is reported to be quite good in spite of the adverse conditions.

Work on the production centre is coordinated by Dave LeGare, an agronomist at the University of Minnesota at Crookston. If weather conditions permit this fall, it is expected that one of the first trials on the centre south of Thief River Falls will be a fall dormancy test. Canola with a polymer coating will be seeded in the fall for germination in the spring.

Established by the Minnesota Legislature in 1998, the council is an international partnership involving the Minnesota Canola Council, the Canola Council of Canada and the University of Minnesota.

"Wet growing conditions in our major production area made the 1999 crop year particularly difficult for Minnesota canola growers," says Beth Nelson, president of the Minnesota Canola Council. "We are hoping that moving the production centre to the Thief River Falls area for the next two years will generate further interest in canola, and help the industry rebound from this past year."

In 1998 about 200,000 acres of canola were planted in the northwestern Minnesota area. That total had been expected to increase to about 250,000 acres this year but instead dropped to approximately 80,000 acres due to the adverse field and weather conditions.

Canola is an oilseed which has the lowest saturated fat content of any major oilseed. It is used as a cooking oil and in the manufactured food industry.

Nelson was quick to credit local businesses which have stepped forward to serve as sponsors for the Canola Production Centre.

"The local support we've been able to generate for this has been great," she said. "It clearly shows the commitment these businesses have to area producers."

Local sponsors include Northern State Bank, Evergreen Implement Co., Northern Motors, Thune Insurance Network, Farmers Co-Op Grain & Seed Association, North Country Radio, Nelson Equipment, Inc., Westside Motors, Cenex Farmers Union, First National Bank and Anderson Power & Equipment.

Brenda Lunke and Jason McGregor will reign over Marshall County Central's homecoming festivities this week as the school's 1999 Homecoming Queen and King. They were crowned at a coronation program at MCC on Monday evening.

School board turns down girls hockey co-op with Crookston

Monday night, School District 564 board of directors turned down a request by a parent from Crookston to approve a Crookston-Thief River Falls co-op in girl's hockey. Fund-raising in the district is also attracting scrutiny of the board.

LaDonna Peterson of Crookston explained that her daughters and other students at Crookston were interested in joining the girl's hockey program in Thief River Falls. She explained that they did not have enough students to support a sanctioned team in Crookston and that some of the students requesting the co-op with Thief River Falls had participated in the girl's hockey program in Thief River Falls in prior years, and had participated in hockey camp last summer. Specifically, three girls wanted to participate in the 19 and under program, and two more were interested as well. Peterson said, however, there were only two for certain who would make the commitment to drive to Thief River Falls for every day practices.

The girl's hockey program in Thief River Falls has been met with enthusiasm since it was sanctioned last spring. The team's coach said 30 girls had expressed interest in the 9-12 program. State high school association rules allow each team to field 23 players and two goalies. In addition, Thief River Falls is developing a strong feeder program. The coach said he was not [illegible] a recommendation. He does have a number of concerns, including the fact that while the district has co-ops with other schools, those schools will not have teams in the future, as stated by Peterson. In this case, Thief River Falls could be training hockey players for a Crookston.

Thief River Falls Area Hockey Association had enough concerns, however, to recommend that the request be denied by the school board. Sally Erickson, TRFAHA board member, said there are enough numbers in Thief River Falls to support a good program, and since the district has a good feeder program they should have an opportunity to participate. In addition, TRFAHA felt other options should be pursued within Crookston.

Randy Twistol, board member, said he understands the reason for co-ops with other districts and that Thief River Falls does have co-ops

TRF Education Foundation elects Swanson to its board

At its annual meeting Monday, September 13, the Thief River Falls Education Foundation elected Curt Swanson of Route 5, Thief River Falls, to its board of directors for a three-year term. He will fill the board position formerly held by Heidi Hoks.

Reelected to three-year terms were Roger Hible and Dave Onkka, both of Thief River Falls.

Paul Ihle was reelected president with Steve Olson as vice president and Onkka as secretary-treasurer. Others serving on the board of directors are Maryel Anderson, Tim Erickson, Laura Nelson and Sharon Russell. Executive director is Judy Dimich.

Mrs. Dimich said that the board was pleased to report a 51 percent increase in grants and scholarships awarded during the year just completed in comparison to the previous year.

Grants were made for computers and software, musical instruments, new engines for the Lincoln high school small engines course and calculator-based laboratory equipment for the science department at Lincoln. Despite the increase in grants awarded, the amount of grant requests still was much greater than the amount the foundation was able to financially support.

The Thief River Falls Education Foundation is a non-profit foundation designed to support education in this community by providing financial assistance to School District 564 staff in implementing programs and opportunities for the community's children.

Membership in the Foundation is open to anyone interested in promoting this mission, including parents, community leaders, alumni and friends of education. For more information contact the foundation office at 230 South LaBree Avenue or call 681-8711.

Peat mining operation asks expansion permit from Corps

Hawkes Company, Inc. of Grand Forks, ND, has made application to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for expansion of its peat mining operation in Sections 11 and 12 of New Maine township in Marshall county over the next seven years.

The request is for a permit to discharge dredged material in wetlands adjacent to Judicial Ditch 21 to allow continued harvest of an additional 200 acres of mineable peat on three sites south of County Road 6 about five miles west of Middle River.

The Corps had previously authorized peat mining from eight nearby sites totaling about 439 acres. The project comes under the regulatory jurisdiction of the Corps of Engineers because Judicial Ditch 21 is a tributary to the Red River of the North, a navigable water of the United States.

The previous permits were issued at several different times and the approved areas have either been mined out and reclaimed or depleted with the remaining peat of low quality. Most recent of the permits was issued Jan. 6, 1997, to mine peat from four previously disturbed sites totaling 269 acres of mineable peat.

According to the Environmental Impact Statement (completed by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in 1996), the company is currently mining and processing peat at a rate of approximately 25,000 cubic yards per year and predicts an annual increase of 10 to 20 percent in this production rate, based on a past annual increase of 10 to 20 percent in peat sold.

Sites proposed by the company to be mined under the new permit would be Sites 7, 10 and 11 on a map of the area.

- Site 7 is a 120-acre tract that is owned by the company and may have as much as 100 acres of mineable peat (the EIS states there are 60 acres of mineable peat).
- Site 10 is an 80-acre tract being leased from the State and must be opened by March 31, 2001, to keep the lease valid. It has about 70 acres of mineable peat (the EIS lists 60 acres).
- Site 11 is an 80-acre tract owned by a neighbor and has the potential of about 30 acres of mineable peat (this site was not included in the EIS). The company has purchased the south 300 feet of this site to accommodate for the proposed drainage ditch and mining road that goes to Site 7.

The expansion involves clearing the three sites of brush and other vegetation, removing the topsoil containing the root zone, and placing it in rows about 10 to 30 feet wide at the base. The windrows are placed along the perimeter of the mined areas and on the outside edge of the perimeter ditches. The windrows would be leveled into the mined area after mining is done or left in upland areas.

Once the peat layer is exposed, it is allowed to dry. To speed the process, a spring harrow is used to loosen the peat. Once the peat is dry

A total of eight trapping units will be awarded to qualified trappers through a sealed bid system. Under this system, applicants make a sealed monetary bid on one or all units. Only one unit will be awarded to each trapper.

All successful bids require full payment by or on Friday, October 22. Minimum bids are $25 per unit. Applicants interested in bidding are not to include any money payment with their bid. Applicants must have appropriate State trapping and small game licenses and a minimum of two seasons of trapping experience.

Permittees are allowed one helper and can help trap only when accompanying the permittee on the refuge. Permittees are encouraged to trap predatory mammals prior to Thursday, November 4. On the day before and during the firearms deer season, November 5-14, trappers will be allowed to drive only on roads open to deer hunters.

Inspection of the trapping units is allowed and encouraged between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, September 27 through October 8, 1999. Sealed bids must be hand delivered or post marked no later than October 8. Application forms, refuge regulations and refuge maps showing unit locations are available at refuge headquarters. Successful applicants will be notified by Saturday, October 16. All successful applicants will be required to meet at refuge headquarters with Refuge Operations Specialist Gary Tischer or Dave Bennett prior to the first day of setting traps. An appointment will need to be arranged by the successful trappers to schedule a meeting time during regular refuge hours.

Species open to trapping include mink, muskrat, raccoon, skunk, red fox, beaver and otter. Two otter per unit or trapper will be permitted during the otter trapping season. Otter and beaver trapping will be restricted in several areas. All other wildlife species are protected.

Additional information relative to special permit conditions should be obtained before bids are submitted by contacting Refuge Operations Specialist, Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, Middle River, MN, or by calling 218-449-4115, extension 214 or 211.

Diagnosis is key step in controlling oak wilt

Oak wilt is a disease that's fatal to oak trees and can spread quickly from infected trees to healthy trees, according to Chad Behrendt, plant pathologist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Homeowners who want to protect their oak trees need to learn to accurately diagnose oak wilt so they can keep the disease from spreading.

"It's easy to confuse oak wilt symptoms with other oak tree problems," Behrendt said. "Insect damage from the two-lined chestnut borer, anthracnose, drought and other environmental factors can all produce symptoms similar to oak wilt."

Oak wilt typically causes yellowing, wilting or browning of the leaves in the upper canopy of an infected tree, Behrendt says. Eventually, these leaves fall from the tree. As the disease continues to infect the tree, wilt symptoms continue to move down toward the base of the tree. Individual leaves may also appear wilted, with leaf margins turning yellow, brown or olive green while the base of the leaf remains healthy and green.

In contrast to oak wilt, anthracnose causes spotting, curling and browning of the leaves in the lower canopy.

"Oak wilt can cause brown streaking under the bark in the sapwood," Behrendt says. "If you see brown streaking in the sapwood, you can be confident that oak wilt is present."

Those who suspect that oak wilt has infected one of their trees, but are not certain, Behrendt recommends getting a positive diagnosis. A city forester or tree care professional may be able to positively identify the disease, or can submit a sample for laboratory analysis.

The University's Yard and Garden Clinic has experts to answer questions on horticulture, plant disease and insect problems between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays. Call 888-624-4771 from outside the metro area. There is a $5 fee, which can be billed to a major credit card.

The clinic is one of the services available through Yard and Garden Line. Free recorded messages on a variety of topics are available 24 hours a day from Info-U. At no charge, callers can request a call back from a Master Gardener volunteer in their county or can speak to a wildlife or water quality expert.

Five O'Clock Shadows to be offered at NCTC

Five O'Clock Shadows, a one-act, one-person play described as "compelling, poignant and humorous,...which challenges the male experience," will be presented by actor/playwright Stephen O'Toole Thursday, October 7, at 1 p.m. in the theatre at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

The presentation is open to the public and free of charge.

"The play is not about male bashing, but rather is a gentle challenge to men to look at some of the destruction and abuse stemming from gender myths," states Keisy Blowers, director of the New Venture Center at NCTC, which is sponsoring the production.

The play is a rich blend of fictional sketches and true life stories illuminating the family and societal influences that often force men to become insensitive, lonely and violent creatures," she added.

Among questions raised by the one-man production are:

- What is unhealthy competition?
- What is fatherhood?
- Are men success objects?
- Can men be intimate?
- How do we learn about sex and sexuality?
- What is privilege?
- What is responsibility?
- Who are our heroes and mentors?

Blowers said the hour-long performance contains three sections:

(1) Playing, which looks at unhealthy competition, camaraderie and fear of intimacy in friendships;

(2) Wanting, which examines father/son relationships, rites of passage into manhood, career and success and isolation;

(3) Searching, which focuses on pornography and male sexuality; homophobia, substance abuse and crisis addiction; privilege and responsibility.

After the performance, O'Toole serves as facilitator for a dialogue about issues raised in the play. This provides a safe environment for men and women to freely express their thoughts and opinions on gender issues and to enlighten one another, Blowers said.

O'Toole has a BA degree in speech and economics from St. Norbert College and a master of fine arts degree in theatre arts from the University of Minnesota.

A co-founder of Recovery Productions, he performed Life on the Rocks and Higher Education over 300 times. He founded Process Theatre Company in 1993 to produce "theatre that supports healing from interpersonal and societal dysfunctions."

Art auction set at North Dakota Museum of Art

A live auction of 33 art objects will take place Saturday, October 2, beginning at 6 p.m. with live music and a cocktail buffet at the North Dakota Museum of Art on the University of North Dakota campus in Grand Forks.

The event is open to the public with tickets priced at $25 in advance and $30 at the door. Art includes sculpture, glass, prints, ceramics, photographs and jewelry as well as paintings in watercolor, acrylic and oil.

Artists determine a reserve bid on each work, which is kept confidential. These amounts must be reached for a work to be sold. Any profit beyond the reserve amount is retained by the museum and will be used for its programming and exhibitions. Absentee bidding is available by order form or telephone.

To receive an auction catalog, order tickets or register for absentee bidding, call 701-777-4195.

A tribute to friends, life's hard earned lessons and tears

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Many consider autumn with its brilliant hues of reds, oranges and yellows to be the most beautiful time of year.

On Saturday it was this reporter's intention to hit the road, enjoying the magnificent fall foliage along the way.

First, I was going to drive to Detroit Lakes where the Moving Wall, a replica of the Vietnam Memorial, was at Detroit City Park for a week and available for viewing until today (Wednesday, September 30) when it will be moved to its next destination.

From Detroit Lakes, I was planning to motor to Gonvick where the Gonvick Diamond Jubilee Pumpkin Growers were having their 6th annual weigh off.

I don't really know why I wanted to see the Moving Wall. The war that would become known as the Vietnam Conflict began when I was in grade school and ended when I was a young adult.

The young men that were being drafted were several years older and weren't part of my world at that time, and while the war had its place in the current events that were discussed in school, it was far, far away and not nearly as important as the state of my nail polish or color of the dress I would wear to Friday night's dance.

Later, when maturity narrowed the age gap, I became acquainted with a few men who had served in Vietnam. Some spoke of the humorous day-to-day happenings that occurred while they were there. Others said nothing of their experiences. No one spoke of the horrors of war.

Although I still know few of the historical facts surrounding the Vietnam Conflict, I appreciate the 58,220 names engraved on the memorial. Each represents a human being whose life was cut short and a family — fathers, mothers, siblings, grandparents, wives and children — whose lives would never be the same.

My desire to attend the pumpkin weigh-off was not so profound. According to a story in the Tri County Canary, the event was being hailed as the biggest weigh-off in the state with prizes between $100 and $1,000 being paid to the top ten pumpkin growers.

The article stated that this has been a difficult summer for growing pumpkins. Too much rain was a factor as were days of excessive heat, occurring during the short two-to-four hour period when the female pumpkin blossoms should be pollinated. However, because of the prize money involved growers were serious, fertilizing like crazy to make up for the dismal growing conditions. It was reported that one contest pumpkin would weigh over 800 pounds if a small crack didn't grow to the point that it disqualified the pumpkin.

I like pumpkin and enjoy eating just about anything made with the big squash. Once when I was a serious domestic engineer, I cooked a "real" pumpkin and made two pies from scratch. Usually, however, I use canned pumpkin for culinary endeavors and enjoy the "real" thing for fall decorating.

The fact that the growing season had been poor and might lead to a pumpkin shortage intrigued me as I recalled another year when conditions were similar. That year I waited too long to make my purchase, and there wasn't a pumpkin to be found in Thief River Falls the day before Halloween. It was devastating, and I was certain that my then preschool age sons would be left with lasting scars from having gone a year without having pumpkins to carve into Jack-o-lanterns.

Anyway, if pumpkins so large that they required major construction equipment to move weren't enough, the story about the Gonvick weigh off mentioned a rumor that Governor Ventura might even be stopping by the event. Although the governor dislikes reporters and I doubt my ability to outrun his Lincoln Navigator, I thought that a glimpse of him combined with the sight of mammoth pumpkins might make for an interesting Saturday afternoon and, perhaps, provide me with inspiration for an upcoming story for The Times or Northern Watch.

Life events, however, changed my desire to roam the countryside on Saturday, and I spent the better part of that day and the next in bed, my mood as dismal as the overcast skies.

On Friday afternoon, I returned from a coffee break to discover the obituary of a friend on my desk at The Times. Shocked, I lost the professional demeanor that I try to maintain as grief washed over me and I sat at my desk and sobbed.

A short summary of Darrel Sande's life appears on the obituary page of this issue of The Times, and my husband, oldest son and I attended the memorial service held in his honor on Monday.

As we travel through life, circumstances afford us the opportunity to meet many different people. I met Darrel about 27 years ago during a six-month period when I lived in Thief River Falls for the first time. It was around 7 a.m. when I returned to town to discover that I had left my keys to my mobile home at "home" in Fertile where I'd spent the weekend. Due to be at my job at Northern State Bank at 8 a.m., I needed to get into that house to get ready for work. I have no recollection of where I went or who I called for help but remember that it was Darrel who came to my rescue and teased me unmercifully as he picked the lock and was my knight in shining armor that day. Evidently, he was an acquaintance of one of the few people that I knew in town at the time.

Circumstances brought us together again a few years later when I married Marv. Darrel and Marv worked together.

As it turned out, Darrel worked for Marv and me from 1978 until 1990, becoming a fixture in our daily lives as well as a treasured friend.

Ours was a service-oriented business, and Darrel was the repairman. Every morning he usually brought rolls to go with the coffee I'd made, and we'd go over his daily service schedule. He was always happy, teasing and playing practical jokes.

His good natured personality spread to customers who, although they weren't necessarily happy when they called for service, were almost always left satisfied and usually laughing after Darrel's visit.

Darrel's ability to fix things proved handy in other areas also, and he was the one I relied on to diagnose and sometimes repair my car, unplug my sink or seek out and fix a potentially hazardous wiring problem.

If there was one thing that was irritating about the man, it was the fact that he never said "yes" or "no." When you told him he "had to" do something, he would say "I'll try." Although he hesitated to make a firm commitment, he got the job done and could always be counted on.

While he was dedicated to the work he did, he was even more committed to his family, and I will never forget the day his first granddaughter was born in Arizona. Waiting for news of her birth, he was as nervous as a first-time father, and once Jenna was born, plane tickets were quickly purchased and Darrel and his wife were gone. When the proud grandpa returned to work a couple of weeks later, he was armed with envelopes of photographs and stories to accompany each one.

Darrel loved all children, including mine, and several times, he and his wife, Bev, took our boys to their cabin on Union Lake for long adventure-filled weekends.

During the years that Darrel and Bev were raising their own sons they sometimes acted as unofficial foster parents to friends of their boys. They were kids who weren't getting along with their own parents and needed a place to stay for what was usually a couple of days.

One of those young men, however, spent the better part of his high school career staying with the Sandes for reasons that are unbeknownst to me. Twenty years later, he spoke eloquently at Monday's memorial service about the impact Darrel had had on his life, teaching him lifelong lessons about commitment to family and friendship.

For me, Darrel Sande was a kind, gentle, funny friend whom I loved. Unfortunately, however, I hadn't seen him very often in recent years since he'd retired and I'd gone to work. Instead, the visits I'd planned were on the "someday" list, and, perhaps, that's why my tears were so plentiful.

Darrel's untimely passing teaches me one more of life's important lessons. "Someday" is not a day of the week, and if we have something that's important that we want to do or say, we best do it or say it while we have the chance.

There's a little inside joke among the editorial staff at The Times about certain items, habits, emotions and even stories being a "girl thing." It started when I pretended to take offense when an employee at the paper referred to a certain model of automobile as being a "girl's car."

With this week bringing Marv Lundin's retirement, staff going away party and reception, I was planning to explain away the tears that I will undoubtedly wipe away as a "girl thing."

Because he's so looking forward to it and deserves it, my feeling bad about Marv's retirement is totally selfish.

In a little over two years, he has taught me so much about the craft I aspire to, always sensitive to my feelings and ego. In my estimation, I haven't soaked up enough of his vast knowledge, and my time, under his guidance, wasn't long enough.

More important, he has become my friend and I will miss seeing him at work.

As I attempt to wrap up this rambling story, and offer Marv Lundin what may be a huge challenge in editing it, I don't know if the poor growing season will leave us with a shortage of pumpkins or not. I do know that in the course of a lifetime it won't matter.

People matter and friendships matter, and when it comes to tears, they're not a "girl thing," but an important way that some of us humans express emotion. A clipping that was left on my desk last week tells me that they may be even more, and I'll share it with you in closing.

The clipping is from the column of Pastor Kwen Sanderson which appears in The Thirteen Towns. Rev. Sanderson borrowed the piece from Frederick Buechner's meditation book, Listening to Your Life.

"You never know what might cause them. The sight of the Atlantic Ocean can do it, or a piece of music, or a face you've never seen before. A pair of somebody's old shoes can do it. Almost any movie made before the great sadness that came over the world after the Second World War, a horse cantering across a meadow, the high school basketball team running out onto the floor at the start of a game. You can never be sure. But of this you can be sure. Whenever you find tears in your eyes, especially unexpected tears, it is well to pay close attention.

"They are not only telling you something about the secret of who you are, but more often than not, God is speaking to you through them of the mystery of where you have come from and is summoning you to where, if your soul is to be saved, you should go next."

Sorenson family to host threshing bee Saturday, Oct. 2

When you hear the tractor start up and see Lloyd Sorenson grin from ear to ear as his eyes light up, you will know that the old time harvest has begun at the Sorenson farm near Plummer.

The threshing bee, rescheduled from an earlier date due to rain, is set to begin at approximately 11 a.m. on Saturday, October 2.

Admission is free for everyone, and the Sorenson family encourages anyone who would like to participate with collections of the past century or musical talents to help make the event more festive. Crafts are welcome also.

In a relaxed atmosphere guests enjoy a feeling of past and appreciate the equipment on display. If enough vehicles show up a short parade will be held at 1 p.m. Games will begin at 2 p.m., and a team of horses, musical entertainment and food, served by the ladies of Salem Lutheran Church, will be available throughout the day.

The Sorenson family invites any and everyone to its event and say that while the show is simple and run by few, they hope that others will enjoy it. The farm is located five miles east of Plummer on the paved road, two miles north and one-quarter mile east. From Salem Lutheran Church, it is three miles west, two miles north and one-quarter mile east.

Those who wish to exhibit machinery or vehicles or share their talents are encouraged to call 465-4376 and let them know you're coming.

For those who enjoy the day with the Sorensons, remember that the show's not over until Lloyd throws in his straw hat!

A new foot bridge for the Jacobson Trail on Elm Lake WMA arrived Thursday and was unloaded at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. Unfortunately, the placement of the bridge will not be completed until next summer when conditions along the trail become dryer. The purchase of the bridge is a joint project between the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association (MDHA) and the Minnesota DNR. Extension service to offer home buyers series

Buying a home is one of the most important decisions that a person makes today, and to help prepare home buyers the University of Minnesota Extension Service and Minnesota Housing Finance Agency will offer a "Home Stretch" home buyer workshop on Tuesday through Thursday, October 12-14.

Sessions will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the meeting room at the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls.

The three-session workshop is designed for first-time home buyers of low to moderate income; for homeowners ready to finance a contract for deed or for persons who are simply interested in exploring the possibilities of home ownership.

Participants will gain an understanding of the home buying process, including what type of house they can afford, what lenders look for in a buyer, how to eliminate the barriers of home ownership and what kind of mortgage assistance programs are available.

A certificate of completion will be provided to participants who attend all three of the sessions. Many lending programs currently require completion of a home buying workshop to be eligible for their lending products.

The registration fee for the workshop is $5 per household, and interested parties are encouraged to register early as seating is limited. To receive a registration brochure with more information, call the Pennington County Extension office at (218) 683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116. Registration deadline is Friday, October 8.

FAP seeks support for Baby Bucks Incentive Store

The Family Advocacy Program (FAP) seeks the support of community businesses, agencies, groups and individuals in the establishment of a Baby Bucks Incentive Store.

The store will encourage the development of responsible behavior by allowing pregnant and parenting teens to earn gently used clothing, toys and baby equipment from the FAP using "Baby Bucks." Also, the savings will help to relieve the burdens faced by pregnant and parenting teens faced with balancing multiple roles. Some of the ways Baby Bucks can be earned include: attending parenting classes, participating in "Teen Connections" support group, having good school attendance, receiving good grades, referring new clients who are in their first trimester of pregnancy and donating gently used items to the incentive store.

The following items are needed: gently used or new children's clothing (sizes newborn-5T), children's blankets, children's towels, children's jackets, children's bedding, equipment, toys, diapers and wipes and more.

The Family Advocacy Program was established in April of 1997 to provide support to pregnant and parenting teens in Pennington county. As the result of multiple collaborative efforts, FAP has had a very positive impact on pregnant and parenting teens with students; exhibiting improved school attendance, improving their grades, demonstrating positive parenting skills, learning to make good choices, learning money management skills, setting goals, planning for the future and /or making a transition into college.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

I write this the evening of the autumnal equinox, September 21. I just walked out to the county highway, which runs straight east and west, and watched the sun set right down the center line. It was kind of like being at Stonehenge.

The last time the sun set right down the center line on the county highway was March 21, the vernal equinox, the only other day of the year which is exactly as long as the night.

The similarity between the two days ends with their length. Today was clear, mild and colorful. But March 21 up here means nothing more than ice, snow, and, if it's warm enough, slush and mud. The colors of late winter are gray and tired.

Today, I nibbled on fresh everbearing strawberries, picked some very ripe cherry tomatoes from the dried up vines, popped some marble-like groundcherries from their papery husks, and ate way more fall raspberries than anybody has a right to.

Last March 21, I was just happy to crack open a fresh can of pork and beans.

Apples, vegetables, fresh fruit, rich colors, green grass, football, baseball, crisp air, so many of the best things of life happen in the autumn.

Then, with the first storm of November, it all ends. Road reports, wind chills, survival gear and headbolt heaters become a way of life. The World Series fades from memory. The Vikings just plain fade.

By March, things can get so bad that otherwise sane people tune in by the millions to watch people with pituitary gland irregularities toss an orange ball through a hoop. The phenomena is called "March Madness," according to psychologists. The illness is an advanced form of "cabin fever."

There are a few good things about winter. A roaring fire in the fireplace is a good thing a couple nights a year. Thanksgiving dinner is worthwhile.

Christmas can be endured. Cross country skiing consumes about three afternoons per winter. And, one can always go to the mall and walk in circles.

But let's face it. Most people are ill equipped to deal with the long, cold months. Doctors up here hand out Prozac like candy, but it does little good.

I sense people getting crabby in November, it doesn't end until April.

Little worries become big worries. Disagreements become fights. Some resort to sleeping all day, others seek refuge in strong drink.

They say our weather keeps the riff raff out. Well, I don't know who Riff and Raff are, but they have the right idea. I suspect they've moved to Arizona. I'd like to know if they have an extra room available for a few weeks.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Lisa McKercher, Lincoln High School

So this is high school, huh? Four weeks of the school year have already come and gone. Don't get me wrong--it isn't that I'm not excited, not to mention a little afraid, to graduate from high school and begin something new. The one thing that dawned on me in these last few weeks is that this is my last year of high school. Sure, the announcements for scholarships and ACT deadlines confirm the inevitable: we are seniors. But to tell the truth, it hasn't been the office that is making it a reality; it's been the atmosphere of my class.

The Class of 2000. Maybe we haven't always done what we should have or been as motivated as people would like, but in the end I like how everything has turned out.

Take the girls for instance. The ever-existing "cliques" seem to be fading more and more each year. It's not as much who you hang out with anymore; it's who you actually are. I think we're realizing that's the way it should be.

I saw a group of senior guys stand up for a sophomore girl the other night. It wasn't the fact that they threatened to beat another guy up if he didn't apologize to her that impressed me. It was the fact that they knew what was right and what was wrong and stood up for someone they didn't even know. Everyone always said to give the boys time and they'll grow up. Most of them must have taken advantage of that time, and speaking on behalf of the girls, we can tell.

Going to a varsity football game has also taken on a whole new meaning. It's no longer a social event where I have to ask who won at the end of the game. Those are my classmates on the field now. We don't feel that we have to go to support them.

We go because we want to and have fun doing it. Just go to a varsity volleyball game, and you'll see what I mean. Ask Pete Radniecki where he'll be on a volleyball night and you'll get a quick answer. Not only do the football players show up at every home game, they lead the cheering section just as well as anyone with pom pons could.

Everyone seems to have a schedule this year which is nothing like anyone else's. We're all off in different directions and don't see each other as much as we'd like. Friends considered "close" are not another, "Hey, how's it going" in the hallway. It's all rather sad considering that after this year I'll probably never see half these people again. Then again, it turns out O.K. because we're doing the things we want and need to do. Everyone understands that.

As for right now, I'm going to enjoy living at home, expenses paid. I'm going to go to school, games, and anywhere else with my classmates and laugh and have fun. This is what I'll remember. This is high school.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...What Are We Going To Do?

By now we all know that Marv Lundin is retiring as editor of The Times. What are we going to do without him?

Marv has been "The Times" for as long as many of us can remember. He has been the quiet, unobtrusive fellow with the camera at important events in our lives, the quick-moving little fellow glimpsed out of the corner of our eyes at city affairs, the soft voice on the phone asking questions. We all knew he was "The Times." I bet some of us didn't even know his name at first – he was just "The Times."

How many of us have pictures stored in scrapbooks and boxes in our closets that Marv took of our families, of ourselves, of important pieces of our lives? I bet Marv would be amazed at how long some of his work is going to last. I have one special picture of my two oldest children flying kites that Marv took one windy April afternoon. I have "proud fish" pictures my sons had taken on the corner of The Times building; five children's school pictures of graduations, plays, musicals, sporting events, special commendations; gap-toothed smiles of boy scouts and girl scouts; pictures of special events we attended as a family; places that were special to us; things we did that happened to be of community interest; more pictures than I can count.

Before I actually knew him, I was always terribly in awe of Marv, as were many other people. He would appear and disappear in our lives like a genie, taking pictures, collecting information, and then hurrying off to create wonderful pictures and write wonderful stories about us that would magically appear in the newspaper. It didn't enter my head that he might have a life outside of the newspaper.

I went to work for The Times at a difficult time in my life. I took a job there as typesetter (one of the "back room" crew). The only time I saw Marv was when he brought back special copy to be set. I was completely frightened of him – after all, he was "The Times." Over time, I learned he had infinite patience with newcomers and was the smartest man with words I had ever known. He never made a mistake!!! If anyone, anywhere in the place, had a question about grammar or punctuation or the turn of a phrase, it was, "Ask Marv." Everyone asked Marv.

Later that year I started night classes at Northland College and continued to work at The Times during the day. One of my classes was English 101, which involved basic writing techniques and review of grammar and punctuation. I wrote and I loved it. Back at The Times, Ellen Spray the "Society" editor, gave notice of her retirement. Timid and frightened, I asked her about her job – what she did, was it hard, did she think I could do it. Upon her advice, I hitched up my trousers, so to speak, and, trembling like a leaf, actually dared to go to The Big Editor's Desk and speak to Marv Lundin about Ellen's job.

He wanted to see some of my writing (thank goodness I had some – from English 101), and then gave me three obituaries and three weddings to re-write. May I remind you that there were no computers or even electric typwriters at The Times in those days? I wrote my three obituaries and three weddings on an old manual typewriter in the accountants' office in my spare time. Marv hired me. I was so thrilled that it didn't enter my head that I should have a raise with my promotion, and went on working for the huge salary of $3.25 per hour for quite some time before anyone realized I should be making a little bit more than that.

After I stopped thinking all writers up there in the front office were gods, I started to enjoy myself. Marv and the other guys had great senses of humor and I laughed more during those early writing days at The Times than I have at any other job I've had. I also learned how to write from Marv, learned how to take passable pictures and develop them (without getting my sleeve caught in the developing machine and having to cut it off – the sleeve, not the arm). I learned how to use words gently so they wouldn't hurt, how to turn a phrase so it would say what needed to be said without being cruel, how to write a story without invading privacy, and how to understand that "off the record" meant "off the record."

Over the years, Marv has heard many "off the record" secrets and kept them well. I think that he has quietly, gently, earned the respect of the entire community with his diplomatic editorial style, and he has taken good care of us, praising us greatly for our good deeds and being gently discreet with those we considered to be bad. We're really going to miss him.

But of course we will see him around as he heads in and out of town on his hunting and fishing expeditions, or shows his woodworking at the fair, or treats his grandchildren to ice cream, or stops at the nearest convenience store for sunflower seeds, right?

Enjoy your retirement, Marv, you deserve it!

Rev. Paul Olson

Rev. Paul Olson opens crusade in TRF October 24

Rev. Paul Olson, an internationally known evangelist from Minneapolis, who has attracted thousands to his crusades around the world, will open a four-day crusade at New Life Assembly of God Church, located at 246 Kendall Avenue North, Thief River Falls, on Sunday, October 24-27, at 7 p.m. and daily at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Rev. Olson relates crucial issues of the day to the fundamental truths of the Bible in a way that even children can understand.

He has logged over a million air miles through more than 100 countries, stirring crowds of up to 50,000 with his message. An estimated one million people in 40 countries have heard his daily international radio broadcasts; his mass evangelism crusades in the Third World have impacted entire nations, notably through numerous churches born of "instant congregations" responding to God's word.

SOCIAL SECURITY Q&A

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. Is the Social Security card a form of identification or not? I heard it both ways.

A. The Social Security card is not intended to be a form of identification, and the Social Security Administration does not consider it to be one. It does on constitute identification for us and really should not be used as such by others. However, the decision to accept a Social Security card as a form of identification is the privilege of individual businesses.

Q. I am a young widow receiving Social Security through my deceased husband's record because of our young children. How long can I receive benefits?

A. Usually, one is able to receive monthly benefits until the youngest child in your care reaches the age of 16. Remarriage before that time would end benefits to you but not to the children, and your own current earnings could also have an affect on benefits payable to you.

Monthly survivor benefits might continue for a longer period of time if one of your children is severely disabled enough to receive benefits as a disabled adult child.

PARENTING TIPS

Discover Fall

Many wonderful opportunities for quality time are waiting for you outside. Try to set aside some time in which you and your child can take advantage of them. Changes are taking place every day. Remember that what you know and take for granted is new and amazing to your child. Help your child discover things by being interested in what he sees, hears and touches.

Go for a walk, explore your yard and your neighborhood. Look for and talk about the changes that are taking place. Children do not automatically make use of their five senses. They need us to guide them and make suggestions.

Talk about the leaves, what color are they, how do they sound when your walk through them? What happens when you touch dry, brittle leaves? Can you smell any burning leaves? As you help your child see and notice the little things you will also help him to later discover the big things. Who knows, maybe one day your child will be another Columbus!

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Use words that will help your child to describe what he hears, sees, smells, touches and tastes. Listen when your child talks about his/her discoveries.

CORRECTION:

Times staff inadvertently left out the rest of the story on the County board levy appearing on the front page of the Wednesday, September 22, edition of The Times. The "rest of the story" is as follows: Residents of Pennington county will have an opportunity to express their opinions regarding the preliminary budget at the Truth in Taxation Hearing. By law the county's hearing is set on December 2. Pennington county will hold its hearing at 5 p.m. in the county courthouse. The public is welcome and encouraged to attend.

Property valuations

State mandated property valuation increases have concerned and upset many residents in Thief River Falls in the past couple of years. County commissioners and city council representatives have little or no say in these increases. According to the county auditor's office, the state has mandated a 10 percent increase on commercial land and structures in Pennington county, along with a five percent increase on residential and seasonal property in Sanders and Smiley townships, and a 10 percent increase on residential and seasonal property in Norden township.

Property valuations are affected by a number of variables, such as tax classification variables and the market. Truth in Taxation Hearings are held to give taxpayers an opportunity to express their concerns about governmental budgets. The opportunity to challenge property valuations is provided taxpayers in the spring of every year during the Board of Review.

Crossroads holds annual meeting, elects chairperson

Dean Dalen turned over the gavel and responsibilities for chairperson of the Crossroads Displaced Homemaker Program to Laurie Panek at the annual meeting of the board of directors on September 9 at the Evergreen Eating Emporium in Thief River Falls.

Also recognized were board members Dean Dalen, Sandra Peterson and Lynell Wayne for their service to the Crossroads program.

Incoming board members are Mike Jorgenson, Kathie Johanneck, Kelsey Blowers and Paul Adams. During the annual meeting, officers were elected: Board Chair Laurie Panek, Vice Chair Kate Schmalenberg, Secretary Penny Grove, and Treasurer Gayle Peterson.

During the meeting, Sue Dupree, director of Crossroads, gave the annual report. The guest speaker was a former displaced homemaker, who spoke about her success since being a program participant.

Crossroads is also announcing that they have received a grant from the Minnesota Department of Economic Security, Workforce Preparation Branch, to be used to train participants for employment. Funds may be used for training expenses such as tuition, books, fees or driver's licenses. The training program chosen must lead to a higher wage job. Funding is limited.

Displaced homemakers who could benefit should call Crossroads at 681-8158 for more information.

CORRECTION:

A cutline under a pictured in the Wednesday, September 22, edition of The Times incorrectly identified the winner of a ceramic doll given away by the Thief River Falls Lioness club as Michelle Bauer. It was Kimberly Bauer, daughter of Clinton, not Clifton, and Karen Bauer of Thief River Falls. The Times regrets the error.

Duane Brawn

NCTC Foundation established Duane Brown scholarship

A new scholarship has been established at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. This scholarship was established through a gift from Kevin Brown and Kristi Appell in memory of their father, Duane Brown, and will be awarded to a freshman or sophomore student pursuing a career in the automotive field.

Duane Brown was a long-time faculty member at Northland Community and Technical College. In 1961-62, he attended the Area Vocational School in Thief River Falls in the automotive department. He began his teaching career in 1969 at the Thief River Falls Area Vocational-Technical Institute, which is now part of Northland Community and Technical College. Brown was also the first person in Thief River Falls to become certified by the National Institute for Automotive Excellence (ASE).

"Duane was dedicated and hard working," said Dr. Orley Gunderson, president of NCTC.

Norm Halsa who taught with Duane Brown and was a close friend said, "He inspired a lot of students throughout the years."

The scholarship will live on as a testament to Duane Brown and the inspiration that he instilled in his students.

Why don't you have lists of your movies?-Because of the suggestions made to us to keep lists, we have several lists. We always keep our catalog of movies we own out on the videos section. This is updated once yearly. However, beside it, we keep a list of the videos we have purchased this year. We also make listings of special subjects of movies upon request. For example, right now, we have listings of classic movies, family movies and musicals available for the taking. Come into the library and see what we have to offer.

Goodridge students complete three-month reading program

Forty-six Goodridge students from pre-school through seventh grade completed the three-month summer Read*Write*Now program for the months of June, July and August. The program was directed by Connie Moe, third grade teacher in the Goodridge school system.

In addition to the students who completed all three months of the program, eight others completed either one or two months of the reading emphasis event. Depending on the student's age, the project involved either reading or being read to for a minimum of 20 minutes a day for 20 days of the month. Calendar charts were provided for students to use in recording their reading efforts.

Drawings were held among those who completed the full three months of the program and the winners in each grade were given $50 savings bonds donated by Northern State Bank and certificates from Pizza Hut.

Bond winners were Brody Marquis, first grade; Emma Heaton, second grade; Breanna Tharaldson, third grade; Otto Rubischko, fourth grade; Crista Bontum, fifth grade; Joshua Tharaldson, sixth grade; and Kacey Miller, seventh grade.

Other winners during the award drawing were Rachael Kiesow, basketball; Devin Drangstveit, soccer ball; Adelle Prestebak, Scrabble game; and Taylor Drangstveit, football. Thirty books were given away by drawing and all participants in the program received a free book this summer.

Recognized for completing the full three months of the program were the following:

Preschool—Brea Naeseth.

Kindergarten—Arianna Paulson, Devin Drangstveit, Katey Tharaldson, Kember Anderson, Matthew Anderson and Brady Bakken.

First Grade—Amy Halvorson, Brody Marquis, Christopher Peters, Robbie Miller and Rachael Frederick.

Second Grade—Taylor Drangstveit, Emma Heaton, Adrian Prestebak, Timothy Nelson, Sara Philipp, Beth Philipp, Rachael Hanson and Heather Phelps.

Third Grade—David Hanson, Breanna Tharaldson, Jordan Anderson, Rachael Kiesow, Brett Bakken, Rachel Nelson, Sabine Frederick and Misty Wallenberg;

Fourth Grade—Adelle Prestebak, Tiffany Hanson, Kelsi Wikert, Otto Rubischko and Kayla Tharaldson;

Fifth Grade—Crista Bontain, Stephanie Drangstveit, Katie Olson and Tami Cullen.

Sixth Grade—Amy Ball, Marie Dahlen, Joshua Tharaldson and Brittany Hanson;

Seventh Grade—Tyler Downs, Alesia Limesand, Nathan Peters, Kacey Miller and Danielle Frazer.

Completing one or two months of the program were Justin Stanley and Alexandra Wiseth, first grade; Mitchell Stanley, and Marshall Mickelson, third grade; Justin Wiseth, fourth grade; Michael Swanson and Nickolas Mickelson, fifth grade; and Elizabeth Nelson, seventh grade.

"Students who do not read over the summer are more likely to lose the reading gains they have made during the school year," Mrs. Moe said. "Research suggests that when children read as little as 20 minutes a day outside of school their reading skills improve significantly."

Children participating in the program selected "reading partners" to assist them. Duties of the partners were to encourage their partner to read daily; listen to their partner read aloud; and encourage and remind the partner to record writing activities, titles of books read and minutes spent reading or writing.

Reading partners of older students were also asked to meet with the student at least once a week to discuss what the student has been reading and to read with their partner. Reading calendars were signed by the students and their reading partners at the end of each month and sent to Mrs. Moe.

Special activities for program participants included a summer picnic for Read*Write*Now students in the Goodridge and Grygla school districts; a book exchange so students could exchange books with a friend; and a trip to the Franklin middle school pool in Thief River Falls for a swimming outing.

"We were extremely pleased with the program this year," Mrs. Moe said. "Some of the grades had three-fourths of their students participating. That's really good when you consider how busy the summer schedule can be for students."

Read*Write*Now program participants who reached their goals for the months of June, July and August were recognized recently at the Goodridge school, along with students who completed one or two months of the program's goals. The program involved children from preschool though seventh grade who were read to or who read for at least 20 minutes a day for 20 days a month. Students recognized are pictured above. They say memories are golden, well maybe that is true.
But, we never wanted memories,
We only wanted you.

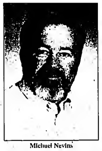
Waterfowl Ass'n. chapter is formed at Middle River



Michael Nevins

Wild Goose chapter of the Minnesota Waterfowl Association was formed at Middle River at a meeting Tuesday, September 14. Gordy Johnson of Middle River has been elected president of the chapter.

The association also announced that Michael Nevins of Bemidji has been added to its field staff and will work with new and existing chapters of the MWA to expand their conservation efforts in Minnesota. He will work from the Bemidji area.

Chapter president Johnson said that a membership information booth will be operated during the 25th annual Goose Festival in Middle River this weekend to sign up members for the chapter. The organization will also sell 500 raffle tickets on a special Browning shotgun laser engraved specifically for the Wild Goose chapter.

"Minnesota Waterfowl Association is pleased to have a new chapter in the heart of goose hunting territory," states Mike McGinty, executive director of MWA. "The funds raised by the chapter will benefit wildlife in Minnesota and a sizeable amount will be available for funding local projects."

McGinty said that nearly every community in the state has wetland habitat of some type that could benefit from protection, restoration or enhancement.

"We are trying to answer that need by expanding so that an MWA chapter can be started in each community statewide," he said. "Since 1967, MWA has represented the interest of concerned waterfowlers as well as protecting and restoring precious wetland habitat. It has received state and national recognition, including the Wetland Conservation Award recently presented by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service."

For more information on MWA or the new Wild Goose chapter, contact Gordy Johnson at 218-222-4401.

78 donate blood at drive sponsored by Eagles Aerie

Eighty-four people volunteered to donate blood and 78 were able to give during the blood drive sponsored by the Eagles Aerie 2368 September 9 at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls. Five of the donors gave blood for the first time.

Rod Sletten and Sandy Hible coordinated the drive for Aerie 2368 and assisted with recruiting donors, publicity and registering donors. Refreshments were served by the Eagles Auxiliary. Others assisting were Lillian Rux, Roger Hible and Scott Klopp.

Donations are considered especially precious before and after a major holiday such as Labor Day, when use is traditionally high but potential donors are busy with late summer and holiday activities, according to Rhonda Elletson, community relations representative for United Blood Services of the Upper Midwest.

Elletson thanked those who donated and said their cooperation "is a vital element in our responsibility to maintain a safe and available supply of this life-giving community resource."

Donations help meet the needs of many patients in 43 area hospitals served by United Blood Services.

Ag council has $200,000 for ag education

November 1 is the deadline to apply for the Minnesota Agricultural Education Leadership Council's grant program, which will be allocating up to $200,000 for the advancement of agricultural education.

"Any non-profit organization, or an individual sponsored through a non-profit entity, is eligible to apply under the grant program which is designed to reinvigorate agricultural education," states Patrick Plonski, MAELC executive director.

He noted that MAELC will for the first time accept grant applications targeted for any aspect of the K-12 education system. Formerly, MAELC's grant program was geared exclusively toward secondary and higher education systems.

The grants will be awarded by January of next year. Schools, non-profit organizations, local chambers of commerce, agricultural commodity organizations, institutions of higher education, or any other organization with ideas for improving agricultural education are encouraged to contact MAELC offices for more information and/or to obtain a grant application.

Since its creation in 1997, the council has provided $229,500 in grants for the revitalization of agricultural education in Minnesota.

Northland runningback Matt Hitchen followed blocks by Kevin Baugher (58), Ben Henson (57) and Dan Zubich Jr. (90) on this carry against Hibbing during Saturday's Minnesota Community College Conference football game at Prowler Field. Hitchen had a 23-carry, 154-yard afternoon in helping the Pioneers out-score the Cardinals 50-43.

Pioneers out-score Cardinals 50-43

There's a good chance the next Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division Offensive Player of the Week will come from Saturday's Northland vs. Hibbing matinee match-up in Thief River Falls. The problem, however, will be to single out one player for the honor. In a game that featured 13 touchdowns, 93 points and 1,106 combined offensive yards, there was more than one worthy candidate.

Northland emerged a 50-43 winner behind the likes of fullback Scott Olsen, who carried the ball 24 times for 237 yards and two touchdowns; halfback Matt Hitchen, who had 23 carries for 154 yards and two touchdowns; and quarterback Ben Mosack, who was 7-for-12 passing for 105 yards, threw for two touchdowns and ran for another

Hibbing countered with quarterback Eric Albrecht, who completed 14 of 30 passes for 306 yards and a touchdown, while also scoring twice himself; halfback Keenan Wells, who carried 21 times for 136 yards and two touchdowns; and wide receiver Chad Olson, who caught four passes for 133 yards and one touchdown.

Northland won it by scoring three times in the fourth quarter to wipe out a 42-28 Hibbing lead. The winning touchdown was a 2-yard run by Hitchen with 1:14 remaining that finished a 9-play, 71-yard drive.

It was the most points ever scored by a Northland football team and the most points ever scored in a Northland football game. The Pioneers finished with 614 yards of offense and the Cardinals had 492.

The come-from-behind win pushed the Pioneers' record to 4-1. The Cardinals didn't look like a winless team, but the standings show them 0-5. It was the 1999 Northern Division debut for both teams.

Northland coach Dan Willoughby wasn't surprised at the competitive match-up that belied the differences in records. "I thought it would be a dog fight," he said. "We knew they were a good football team, despite their record. We went after a lot of the same players they did when we were recruiting, so we knew what kind of talent they had. We were just fortunate to come out on top."

Olsen's numbers did not come as a surprise. The 5-9, 245-pound freshman from Hillsboro, ND, already had two Player of the Week awards to his credit. But for the first time, the Pioneers complemented his charges through the middle with an outside running game – by Hitchen, a 6-0, 190-pound sophomore from Fertile-Beltrami.

"We knew they would be stacking up the middle trying to stop the fullback," explained Willoughby. "We had to get something on the outside. And Matt gave us that. He ran well. He ran hard. And that opened things up on the inside when we went to the quick traps with the fullback."

Mosack, a 6-8, 178-pound freshman from Staples-Motley, was also a factor. The season-long starter wound up watching most of the game from the sidelines a week earlier when Mike Svojanovski came off the bench to jump-start the Pioneers' offense in a 21-14 win over Minnesota West. But he was back in form against the Cardinals, completing five of his first six pass attempts, and throwing for two first half touchdowns.

Scoring started on the first series of the day when Northland went 65 yards in eight plays – without Olsen on the field. Mosack went to Hitchen on a short toss over the middle that was turned into a 31-yard gain to the Hibbing 11 and then dumped a 5-yard touchdown toss into the hands of tight end Dan Zubich Jr.

Hibbing's defense produced the next touchdown when Dantrell Hadley picked off Mosack at the Northland 19 and had nothing but open field in front of him. A break on the conversion put the Cardinals ahead 8-7 when a blocked kick was picked up and run into the end zone by Adam Peterson.

A 10-play, 76-yard Northland drive that began with 2:16 left in the first quarter ended with Mosack scoring on a quarterback sneak one play into the second quarter. Hitchen had successive carries of 11, 34 and 11 yards to set up the one-yard score by Mosack.

It took Hibbing all of two plays and 62 seconds to regain the lead, 15-14, when Albrecht, scrambling to avoid a hard rush, found Olson downfield. He wrestled the ball from a defensive back at the 58, spun, and broke away on a 76-yard touchdown play.

Next Hibbing possession was also a two-play touchdown drive as Albrecht located Derek Leino behind the Northland defense on a 48-yard first down throw and Wells bolted untouched through the middle for a 32-yard score.

The Pioneers benefitted from consecutive 15-yard Hibbing penalties to initiate a scoring drive that cut the difference to 22-28 on a 9-yard Olsen drive up the middle with 8:07 to play in the first half.

Mosack's passing put Northland ahead 28-22 at halftime as he picked up first downs with 8-yard throws to Kelly Fossum and Jesse Adelman, then put a pin-point 31-yard pass over the shoulder of Fossum, a 6-8, 180-pound sophomore from Thief River Falls, who made a finger-tip catch as he crossed the goal line with 1:15 remaining.

Three third quarter Hibbing touchdowns seemed to put the Cardinals in command as Albrecht finished a 9-play, 84-yard first-possession drive with a 2-yard quarterback sneak; Wells had a 29-yard run to the Northland 26, and then ran over a defender on a 12-yard touchdown run; and after a second interception by Hadley near midfield, Wells bounced out of the grasp of tacklers on a 41-yard touchdown run to make it 43-28 with 33 seconds left in the quarter.

However, the tables turned over the final 15 minutes, starting with Hitchen scoring from a yard out on the first play of the fourth quarter – the end of a quick 4-play, 67-yard drive.

Olsen then produced a highlight film 76-yard run off a simple dive play. After finding himself in the open, Olsen shuttled-stepped his way behind blockers on a slow-motion weaving pattern that carried to the Hibbing 12-yard line. He stepped into the end zone untouched on a 2-yard run with 10:13 to play – a touchdown that was followed by a two-point conversion when Olsen ran over two defenders at the goal line to tie the game 43-43.

Northland's game-winning drive began when a 13-yard Mosack-to-Zubich pass was followed by a 25-yard Olsen run that took the ball to the Hibbing 33. Devin Pavlacky turned a fourth-and-inches situation into a first down with a 2-yard gain to the 10, and Hitchen shredded tacklers on a 14-yard run that set up his tie-breaking touchdown.

Willoughby had a sigh of relief when it was done. "That quarterback (Albrecht) is scary," he said. "His scrambling really opened things up for them. We knew what we were supposed to do to contain him, but we couldn't stop him. He's one of the finest athletes we'll see all year."

Part of the problems on defense, mentioned Willoughby, were injury-related. Two starting linebackers from the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River cooperative high school program – sophomore Daryl Wockenfuss (concussion) and freshman Derrick Olson (knee) – were on the sidelines. "We're scrambling because of injuries," said Willoughby. "We had defensive backs playing linebacker, and they were having trouble because they just haven't had enough reps there. It led to some confusion on our part, and opened up those short passes for them."

TRF, Bemidji meet Friday

Bemidji will be Thief River Falls' 1999 high school homecoming football game foe Friday at Prowler Field. Game time has been moved up to 6 p.m. to accommodate the homecoming dance.

The Lumberjacks are 1-3 following a 39-21 loss to Detroit Lakes – the third time this fall the young Bemidji defense has given up five or more touchdowns.

A tough early-season schedule found the Lumberjacks losing to Brainerd 53-35, beating Minnetonka 14-13, then losing to Moorhead 33-14 and Detroit Lakes.

Bemidji was 8-2 and a Section 8AAAAA finalist a year ago, but lost 21 seniors off that team to graduation.

Thief River Falls is 3-1 with wins over Spring Lake Park 13-7, Hibbing 34-21 and Virginia 34-16, along with a loss to Crookston 12-8.

A year ago Bemidji handled Thief River Falls 40-13.

Northland to end year with Thursday games

Final three regular season football games for Northland Community and Technical College will be Thursday night affairs – this week against Vermilion at Ely; Oct. 7 at home against Itasca; and Oct. 14 vs. Mesabi Range in Virginia.

Members of the media who cover the local athletic programs will be the guest speakers Thursday during the weekly 12-noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meeting at the Elks.

Gators are winners in TRF tournament

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River arrived with a sub-.500 record, but the Gators left Thief River Falls with the championship trophy Saturday at the annual Northern Lites Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

The Gators came from behind to beat Marshall County Central 7-15, 15-13, 15-7 in the title match. The two teams met in a regularly scheduled contest earlier in the week that was won by the Nordics 3-0.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River began its championship run with a 10-15, 16-14, 15-9 win over the host Prowlers in the round robin portion of the tournament that was followed by a 15-9, 15-11 sweep of Warroad.

Norman County West came from behind to beat Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 5-15, 17-15, 15-12, leaving the Gators and Prowlers, who beat Warroad and Norman County West, atop the Pool A standings with 2-1 records. The results of their early-morning match was the tie-breaker for the trophy round pairings.

The results lifted the Gators to 7-7 for the year.

"We had a good day," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian. "We played our best in the first match against Thief River Falls and the last match against Marshall County Central."

It was a solid team effort, according to Adrian, who said the Gators' performances were highlighted by the serving of Jessica Smith and Sarah Peterson; setting by Peterson, Kelly Everson and Angie Reese; hitting by Tabetha Blazek and Larissa Holm; defensive efforts at the net by Kara Gregerson and Allison Johnson; and the strong all-round effort by Melissa Madoll. They played without injured Vanessa Reese.

Marshall County Central came out of Pool B with wins over Bemidji 15-5, 9-15, 15-13; Red Lake County Central 15-9, 15-18; and East Grand Forks 12-15, 15-10, 15-13.

"You work so hard all day to get into the finals, and then you're disappointed when you lose," offered Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "But overall, we played really well. Our team defense was good all day. We beat some tough teams in the pool play, and that showed us we could lift our game to another level."

After winning Game 1 in the title match, the Nordics played the Gators to a 13-13 second game tie before losing the serve. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River then took control in Game 3.

"We didn't play too bad in the first game," noted Jorgenson. "We lost the serve late in the second game, and then wound up making a lot of mistakes in the third game that we hadn't made all day. I think we got tired."

Thief River Falls, after losing to Badger/Greenbush-Middle River, came back to sweep Norman County West 15-7, 15-11 and Warroad 15-8, 15-3. A third place match against a Bemidji team that swept the Prowlers 3-0 earlier this year, resulted in a 15-3, 15-9 Thief River Falls win.

"We had a really good day of volleyball," said Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche, who was most happy with the Prowlers' offense that was led by setter Ayla Donlin and hitters Rachel Mattison and Becky Bray. "Ayla did a good job getting the ball to our hitters, and Rachel and Becky were both superb," she said.

Defensively, the Prowlers weren't quite as consistent, admitted Roche. "We had our ups and downs on defense," she said. "That's kind of the way we've been playing all year."

The win over defending champion Bemidji was a tournament highlight, mentioned Roche. "They beat us earlier, but we pretty much took control from the start this time."

Thief River Falls is 9-7-1 for the year.

Red Lake County Central beat East Grand Forks 15-9, 15-12 to start the day, but fell to the Nordics and let a first-game advantage slip away when Bemidji rallied for a 2-15, 15-7, 18-16 victory in pool play.

That put the Mustangs in the fifth place match, where they beat Warroad 15-9, 15-11 and left with a 18-5 record.

Northland is second at Itasca Invitational

Three wins in the round-robin portion of the tournament put the Northland Community and Technical College volleyball team in the finals of the Itasca Invitational Saturday, where the Pioneers fell to North Dakota power Bismarck State 15-18, 15-12.

It was the second meeting of the day between the two teams, with Northland surprising Bismarck the first time around 6-15, 15-13, 15-13.

The Pioneers beat another North Dakota team, Lake Region, 15-7, 15-13, and defeated Minnesota Community College Conference rival Itasca 15-9, 15-13 in other round-robin matches.

"We were amazingly good," he said. "We served well, we blocked well, and we passed fairly well. We worked on blocking a lot during practice, and it really showed."

The efforts against Bismarck highlighted the Northland efforts, noted Zachow. "They're a (NJCAA) Division I scholarship school. They played well, and we played well. It wasn't a case of catching them by surprise. We played them at their best, and beat them. But it's tough to beat a really good team twice in the same day."

Northland, 3-3 in the MCCC, will be on the road this week with Northern Division matches at Fergus Falls tonight (Wednesday), Hibbing Friday and Rainy River Saturday.

A group of Virginia defenders gave chase as Thief River Falls runningback Nick Drees cut upfield during Saturday's high school football game at Prowler Field. Drees carried 19 times for 169 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Prowlers past the Blue Devils 34-14.

Prowlers turn back Virginia

Half of Thief River Falls' starting halfback tandem was missing, so Nick Drees shouldered most of the offensive load in a Saturday high school football game against Virginia. The 5-9, 165-pound senior responded with a season-best 169-yard rushing effort that led the Prowlers past the visiting Blue Devils 34-16.

Two of Drees' 19 carries went for touchdowns. Adam Haviland also scored twice for the Prowlers, who were without junior Brian Loe, their top ground-gainer to date, sidelined due to a possible concussion.

The win in the rare Saturday afternoon contest that followed a wild 50-43 Northland Community and Technical College win over Hibbing in the first half of the Prowler Field doubleheader, boosted Thief River Falls' record to 3-1 heading into a Friday homecoming match-up with Bemidji that features a 6 p.m. kickoff.

It wasn't the Prowlers' most scintillating performance of the year, admitted Thief River Falls head coach Jeff Mumm. "The fire just wasn't there," he said. "We're not a good enough football team to be able to just show up and play. We have to feed off enthusiasm and intensity, and it just wasn't there today."

The Prowlers scored the first two times they had their hands on the ball, but the 12-8 start did not lead to a blowout over a 1-3 Virginia team that trailed only 20-14 at halftime.

"We did not play a great first half," admitted Mumm. "It wasn't pretty. But I thought we played better in the second half. We got into it a little more."

Virginia gambled on the game's initial possession by going with a fake punt on a fourth-and-one call from the Blue Devils' 37. Whatever chance the play had in succeeding was sabotaged by a fumble.

It took the Prowlers just six plays to score. Drees carried the first five snaps, with a 16-yard burst through the left side taking the ball to the Virginia 6. An illegal procedure penalty wiped out a Ben Myers touchdown run, but Haviland, a starting defensive end who picked up more time in the offensive backfield in Loe's absence, bounced off tacklers on the left side to score from 11 yards out exactly halfway through the first quarter.

A second punting situation produced another disaster for the Blue Devils when a high snap gave defensive end Josh Gallagher just enough time to block the kick. A 15-yard Virginia penalty was tacked on to the end of the play, giving the Prowlers the ball at the Blue Devils' 19.

Four plays later Drees scored standing up from three yards out for a 12-8 lead with 15 seconds left in the first quarter.

Thief River Falls' first punt attempt also failed to get off the ground, with a dropped snap setting up the Virginia offense at the Prowlers' 37. A 25-yard run by Casey Nelson was the big gainer in the seven-play scoring drive that ended with Ryan Kuss taking a quick pitch to the right corner of the end zone. Derek Shoden added the conversion kick.

It took just two plays and 53 seconds to get that one back as Drees went 63 yards for a touchdown after stepping out of a tackle at the Prowlers' 42 and breaking into the clear. A Brad Bulger pass to Nate Trontvet on the conversion made it 20-7.

Virginia came back with a nine-play, 76-yard touchdown march – a drive that appeared done after just four plays. But a punt snap that sailed over the head of Nelson was picked up and advanced 18 yards for a first down at the Blue Devils' 42. Corey Nelson then broke off a 23-yard run and Kuss netted 19 yards on two carries before Casey Nelson ripped through the Thief River Falls defense on a simple dive play that went for an 18-yard touchdown, making it 20-14 with just 16 seconds left in the first half.

It didn't take Thief River Falls long to make amends for its less-than-inspired first half effort. Just four plays into the third quarter, Bulger found a wide-open Brett Johnson in the Virginia secondary with a pass that went 56 yards for a touchdown.

A 15-play, 77-yard touchdown drive that began with 4:47 remaining in the third quarter and ended on a 2-yard Haviland run with 18:11 to play put the game away. Back-to-back Bulger passes to Gallagher that covered 18 and 12 yards got the drive going. Three straight runs by Myers netted 14 yards and took the ball to the 2-yard line, where Haviland took over.

Final points came from the Thief River Falls defense when the Blue Devils' only pass completion of the day went for a two-yard loss and a safety as Trontvet tackled the receiver in the end zone with 6:09 remaining.

Another defensive highlight was a pair of fumble recoveries by Josh Jensen – duplicating his efforts in a 12-0 loss to Crookston the previous week.

"It wasn't our best game, but we're not going to trade it in," said Mumm.

Defensive stand sparks MCC

■ Nordics beat Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 30-12

Marshall County Central turned in a first half-ending defensive stand that protected a 12-6 lead, then took over in the second half en route to a 30-12 Friday high school football win over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke. The matinee match-up was played in Grygla.

The Blue Devils, after recovering a Marshall County Central fumble at the Nordics' 20-yard line, had a first-and-goal situation from the 8 with 30 seconds to go in the second quarter. But they were stymied by a penalty and a wall of defenders as the clock ran down.

"That defensive stand at the end of the first half fired us up," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker. "We came out of the gates pretty slow, but once we got into it, we did pretty well. They (Blue Devils) played a good first half, but we came out in the second half and started playing well."

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke opened the scoring on a 18-yard first quarter Alex Holte pass to Chad Johnson.

Marshall County Central came back to score on a 1-yard Bjorn Halvorson run and a 14-yard Zach Holthusen run in the second quarter for the six-point halftime edge.

Halvorson added a 2-yard touchdown run in the third quarter, and Matt Waterworth had a 20-yard fourth quarter score as the Nordics opened up a 24-6 scoreboard gap.

Two long-range touchdown runs completed the scoring – a 53-yarder by the Blue Devils' Corey Ostby and a 47-yard breakaway by the Nordics' Jacob Anderson. The two teams were a combined 0-for-6 in the extra-point department.

"We played great in the first half," mentioned Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "But we didn't do anything in the second half."

Marshall County Central is 2-2. The Blue Devils are 0-3.

A balanced Marshall County Central ground game featured Waterworth with 99 yards on 15 carries, Halvorson 91 yards on 20 attempts, and Anderson 70 yards on 7 tries. The Nordics, who finished with 309 yards on 55 running plays, were 0-for-4 passing.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke could muster just 168 yards on the ground with Ostby's long run making him the Blue Devils' leading ground gainer. Dustin Marquis carried 13 times for 47 yards. Holte was 3-for-11 passing for 45 yards.

Defensively, the Nordics' charts showed Waterworth with 15 assisted tackles, three unassisted stops and a fumble recovery. Halvorson had 10 assisted tackles and three unassisted stops, while Barry Pederson had a hand in 10 tackles and a quarterback sack.

The Blue Devils' line play, according to Wilebski, was led by Nathan Sletten on defense and Clifton Johnson on offense.

Friday, Marshall County Central will take on East Grand Forks Sacred Heart in Newfolden and Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke will play Kittson County North in Goodridge.

B/G-MR beats W-A-O 3-1 in Monday match for 8-7 season mark

Melissa Madoll came up with 11 kills and Jessica Smith had 9 Monday as Badger/Greenbush-Middle River celebrated Parent's Night with a 15-4, 8-15, 15-4, 15-6 high school volleyball win over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

Sarah Peterson and Kelly Everson both finished in double figures in assists with 11 and 10, respectively, for the winners. Smith led the Gators with four service aces.

"We played well at the start," pointed out Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian. "We let up a little bit in the second game, but we regained our composure and played well at the end."

The victory put the Gators over .500 at 8-7. They will go on the road to play Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke Thursday.

Thief River Falls Invitational scheduled Monday...

Prowlers run in Crookston meet

Thief River Falls competed Monday in the Crookston Invitational boys and girls high school cross country meet. The Prowlers will run at East Grand Forks Thursday before making their only home appearance of the 1999 season Monday.

Monday's Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational will be held at the Thief River Golf Club. The meet starts with the junior high girls race at 4:30 p.m., followed in order by the junior high boys, junior varsity boys, varsity girls, and varsity boys races.

"A beautiful day for running," said Thief River Falls coach Chad Persons after the Crookston meet. "However, due to a couple of injuries, the girls could not put a complete team on the course. The boys competed well in a small meet."

Ashleigh Anderson led the pack-finish effort by the Thief River Falls girls. Seth Harlow turned in a solid performance as the Prowlers No. 1 runner in the boys race, where eighth grader Jesse Sich was the team's No. 2 finisher.

"I would like to see some movement in the pack from our third, fourth and fifth runners," noted Persons. "I believe it will come with more workouts."

Hawley handles B/G-MR 31-6

Hawley kept Badger/Greenbush-Middle River off the scoreboard until the final play of the game Friday as the Nuggets beat the visiting Gators 31-6 in high school football.

It was an impressive performance on the part of Hawley, according to Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "They're better than us," he said. "They played an exceptional game, and we helped make them look good. They handled us on the line. We couldn't get rid of the blockers, and their backs are quick. They were through the holes before we could get a hand on them."

It was 24-0 at halftime and 31-0 before the Gators' Josh Smith scored from two yards out on the last play of the game.

Billy Brazier carried the ball 15 times for 91 yards to lead the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River ground game that netted 197 yards. The Gators did not pick up any yards in the air.

Hawley finished with 314 yards of offense, 299 of it on the ground.

Defensively, Neibauer said the Gators got strong games from Brazier and Justin Howard on the corners, and Victor Kaml in the line. Hawley was just 1-for-10 passing, and the Nuggets directed their ground game away from Kaml, pointed out Neibauer.

It was the Gators' third straight loss after a season-opening win over Fosston. They will be at Red Lake Falls Friday.

Red Lake County Central falls to Clearbrook-Gonvick...

Bears score off RLCC turnovers

Two turnovers were pivotal Friday in a 28-15 Clearbrook-Gonvick high school football win over Red Lake County Central. The game was played at Oklee.

Trailing 7-6, the Bears turned a possible two-touchdown third quarter deficit into a 12-7 lead when Matt Berg, picked off an errant Red Lake County Central pitch and went 90 yards for a touchdown.

Next Red Lake County Central possession also ended with a turnover – a fumble recovery that led to a 28-yard Paul Gustafson touchdown run and a 20-7 Clearbrook-Gonvick lead.

"We were up 7-6 in the third quarter, we were driving, and we had the momentum," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "If we could of scored there it might have been a different game. But it was a big stop on their part. It turned the game around. Then when they came back and scored again, you could see our heads start to drop."

A fourth down Chris Nelson sack was the key play defensively that led to a 17-yard Wade Westlake touchdown run and Matt Hruby conversion kick to give the Mustangs an early 7-0 edge.

Scott Swanson's 10-yard run late in the first quarter pulled the Bears within 7-6.

The 20-6 Clearbrook-Gonvick third quarter lead became a 28-6 spread on a 9-yard Gustafson run with 11 minutes to play. Westlake got the final touchdown on a 5-yard run with 3:24 remaining.

The loss put the Mustangs at 2-2.

"Overall, I thought we did improve from the week before," noted Brantl. "Our defense was there all night, and our intensity was better."

But the turnovers proved to be the big plays.

Westlake finished with 67 yards on 14 carries, Andy Gustafson netted 63 yards on 14 attempts, and Hruby picked up 42 yards on 9 carries. The Mustangs wound up with 172 yards on 43 running plays, to go along with 77 yards on 5-for-9 passing by Carl Dugstad. Benji Kvasager caught two passes for 36 yards, and Rex Kvasager caught up with a key 22-yard catch.

Brent Nelson was in on 12 tackles and had a fumble recovery to lead the Mustangs' defense. Chris Nelson had a hand in 9 tackles and had a fumble recovery. Westlake, Hruby, Cole Mickelson, and Adam Korulewski were all involved in 7 tackles. Hruby had a fumble recovery and Benji Kvasager had 6 tackles and an interception.

Red Lake County Central will be at Norman County East Friday.

Hunting Prospects

Overall 1999 Minnesota hunting prospects for pheasants, Hungarian partridge and cottontail rabbits look good, according to results of August roadside wildlife counts recently completed by the Department of Natural Resources.

Range-wide, the number of pheasants seen along the August roadside count routes did not significantly change from 1998, according to Al Berner, DNR Farmland Wildlife Populations and Research Group leader. However, Berner said that counts in the eastern half of the pheasant range declined 36 percent while those in the west increased 51 percent from 1998.

Although the breeding population of pheasants after the mild winter was up 25 percent to 50 percent, wetter than normal conditions during the nesting and brooding season in the eastern half of the pheasant range significantly reduced pheasant production there, Berner said.

"Pheasant hunting prospects are similar to 1998 and 1995 when we harvested about 400,000 roosters," Berner said. Despite the reduction in pheasant counts in the eastern half of the pheasant range, there are still several areas of the southeast, south-central and southwest with relatively high counts where hunting prospects are good, he said.

Number of Hungarian partridges seen along the August routes was similar to 1998. Like pheasants, their numbers declined in the eastern half and increased in the western half.

The count of 21 partridges per 100 miles is similar to that in 1991. The chances of flushing a covey or two while pheasant hunting should be better, particularly in the southwest and south-central regions, Berner said.

Cottontails observed per 100 miles driven this August increased 49 percent from 1998, and are at levels similar to those experienced in 1990. Berner expects hunters to harvest more than 110,000 cottontails in the 1999-2000 season. The best areas for cottontails will be in the southern half of Minnesota.

Jackrabbit numbers still remain at very low levels, despite a 42 percent increase in jackrabbits counted per 100 miles driven. The best areas for jackrabbits are in the western third of Minnesota.

She received the award from DNR Commissioner Allen Garber Aug. 27 at the Minnesota State Fair.

Three sentenced on felony convictions in district court

Juan Gabriel Barrios, Crystal City, TX, Myron Dean Sunram, Thief River Falls, and Galen Wik, Pennington county, were all sentenced in District Court last week on felony convictions.

Barrios, 21, was sentenced on a felony conviction for controlled substance crime in the fifth degree. The charge against Barrios stems from a traffic stop during which he struggled with a sheriff's deputy when asked to turn over something in his hand. In the process, Barrios put what was in his hand in his mouth and swallowed. Barrios was taken to Northwest Medical Center after he admitted swallowing 20 pills of Ritalin, a prescribed drug for which he did not have a physician's prescription. Barrios was ordered to pay a fine and costs totaling $285, and serve 90 days of a 13 month sentence. He was placed on supervised probation for five years.

Myron Dean Sunram, 22, Thief River Falls, was sentenced on a felony conviction for assault in the fourth degree. The charge against Sunrum stems from a July 14 incident during which he spit on a corrections officer. He was ordered to pay a surcharge and costs totaling $35, and was sentenced to 13 months in jail which was stayed for five years. He was placed on supervised probation for five years, ordered to undergo HIV testing in six months and then again in one year, and to pay for the victim to be tested for HIV as well.

Galen Robert Wik, 48, Pennington county, was sentenced on a felony conviction of assault in the second degree. The charge against Wik stems from an incident July 8, during which he forced his way into a residence, grabbed a kitchen knife from the kitchen and threatened a woman at the residence. Two men in the house were able to get the knife away from Wik and force him out of the residence. Wik was ordered to pay a fine and costs totaling $760, and serve 12 months of a 36 month sentence. He was also placed on supervised probation for five years.

Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of Jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

enough, a pneumatic (vacuum) harvester removes about one-eighth inch of dry peat per day. The total amount of peat eventually removed varied in depth from one foot to four feet deep. The peat is stockpiled on the site and then loaded into trucks that transport it to the applicant's customers, who include landscapers, golf courses and others.

Conditions of the permit continue to be use of a stable ditch design and construction to minimize erosion and downstream turbidity, and to implement a specified reclamation plan. At a minimum, this restoration involves plugging all new drainage ditches, excluding judicial ditches, and leaving the final elevations of the site below pre-project contours. Sedimentation ponds are also proposed for construction as required by the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency to minimize downstream water quality impacts.

Drainage ditches proposed for the three new sites would be excavated with a top width of seven feet and a depth of three to four and one-half feet with a 1.5:1 (horizontal: vertical) sideslope. Wildlife crossings would be placed every 500 feet along the ditch with 3:1 sideslopes. Additional field lateral ditches with the same dimensions as the drainage ditches may be placed through the mined area about every 200 feet, as needed.

Hawkes Company, Inc., proposes to construct windrow berms along the east and south sides of Site 10 to prevent drainage from other parts of the fen into the new drainage ditches. Similar berms would also be constructed along the east and west sides of the branch of JD 21 to prevent increased drainage into it.

The surface water from the ditches on the east side of Site 7 and from Site 10 would be routed through a one-foot diameter culvert that would cross the JD 21 branch ditch. The water would then be routed into sedimentation ponds before the water is released into JD 21.

Interested parties are invited to submit written facts, arguments or objections by October 8. These statements should bear upon the suitability of the location and the adequacy of the project and should, if appropriate, suggest any changes believed to be desirable. Comments received may be forwarded to the applicant.

Send comments to: Regulatory Branch, St. Paul District, Corps of Engineers, 8896 E. Gull Lake Drive NW, Brainerd, MN 56401-9051. E-mail comments may be sent to: Jeffrey.A.Koschak@mvp02.usace.army.mil.

Any person may request, in writing and within the comment period, that a public hearing be held to consider the application. Requests for public hearings must state, in detail, reasons for holding a public hearing. A request may be denied if substantive reasons for holding a hearing are not provided or if there is otherwise no valid interest to be served.

The decision on whether to issue the permit will be based on the probable impact, including cumulative impacts, of the proposed activity on the public interest, according to Juiett Denton, chief of the Minnesota Permits Section of the Corps of Engineers.

with other schools regarding other activities. However, Twistol said those programs don't cost $1,500 per student to participate as here, and the other co-op arrangements are with schools he considers within the community's customer base.

Carl Clark, board member, was the only board member supporting a co-op. Clark asked what makes this request different than co-ops with other districts. He said he thought that if the district said no, the district should rescind all co-ops. But he does not agree that the district should be saying "We stand alone." The district could be in Crookston's situation or the situation being experienced by other districts, in the future, he said. He also raised the point that it is a public school, and a public school activity should be available to public school students.

Board chairman Steve Young suggested that there were unique reasons such as numbers, space, time limitations, and limitations on lockers and equipment.

Lyle Olson, board member, said he could see no advantage to a co-op to students in this district. Olson also said he thought it would be unfair to taxpayers in Thief River Falls to have to help support athletes from other districts.

Jean Larson, board member, was more concerned about some of the practical matters. Larson said it would be political suicide to approve a co-op in the face of a recommendation from TRFAHA to do the opposite. The school district needs TRFAHA and without its support, the district wouldn't have the programs it has now.

Clark and Barb Kalinoski, board member, couldn't accept the argument that the district would be subsidizing student athletes in Crookston with this program. Kalinoski said she couldn't accept the argument because so much of the district's funds come from the state. Kalinoski said she did accept the argument that they will have a team in the future, and Thief River Falls should not be training their future players.

Sheryl Novacek, Spanish language instructor at Lincoln High School, requested permission of the board to pursue fund-raising to support a trip to Costa Rica for students. Although, Novacek eventually received permission from the board to proceed with planning and fund-raising for the trip, the issue of fund-raising in the district was initiated.

Supt. Jerry Robichesu said he was attempting to get a handle on all of the fund-raising activities taking place in the schools. It wasn't the first time Robicheau and board members have discussed the issue, but possibly due to more complaints this fall, a policy is now in the works.

Although Jean Larson directed most of her concerns about fund-raising activities toward fund-raising for a school party at Franklin Middle School, her comments raised questions about what should the purpose of these activities, and the school board's role in approving these activities.

Currently, the fund-raising activities in the district are not required to receive school board approval.

The school board recognized the following: Jodi Bendickson, adaptive phy ed teacher at Challenger who has been selected as a region finalist for the Minnesota D/APE leadership award; and Brodin's for donating $200 to the Prowler Girls Swim Team.

The following personnel items were approved from the Consent Agenda: a request for leave of absence without pay for Cliff Mattson, bus driver, effective January 31-February 25, 2000; recall Carol Ihle from unrequested leave of absence as temporary counselor long-term sub at Franklin Middle School; the transfer of Esther Gallagher from Franklin as building secretary to part-time Franklin Middle school building secretary; the employment of Elizabeth Quick as .80 FTE English as a Second Language teacher in the district; the employment of the following as part-time Area Learning Center Teachers at the Roseau site — Jeff Olsen, Nadine Aronson and Desi Klimish; the employment of Angie Stine as pool assistant at Franklin; the employment of Fodda Haj as minority student tutor in the district; establish and post for one additional Sixth grade football coach; Jeff Johnson as assistant sixth grade football coach; Crystal Skoglund as FMS softball coach.

The school board approved a request from Evangelical Covenant church to use one school bus and trailer for a youth trip to Knoxville, TN.

The school board accepted a grant in the amount of $130,000 for the After-School Enrichment project effective September 1 through December 31, 2001.

The school board approved the renewal of a lease with Thief River Linen for space in the District Service Center for the period from November 1, 1999 through December 31, 2000.

The school board approved a request of the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association to use the Lincoln High School cafeteria on Sunday, October 17, from 8 a.m. to noon for a referee clinic.

The next meeting of the school board has been scheduled for October 11, at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the District Service Center.

Irish music group to open TRF entertainment series

Neal & Leandra
Tuesday, December 7

Neal Hagberg and Leandra Peak met at Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter where he was a pre-med biology major from Montevideo and a quarterback on the football team and she was a master's degree student in Spanish from Louisville, KY. He went on to get a master's degree in theology and music was a hobby for them.

They married in 1989, a year after they produced their first recording entitled Rocky Road, and began touring the country when they signed with Columbia Arts Management.

Audiences comment on the remarkable blend of their voices, compelling songwriting and wit and intimacy of their performances. A California music critic wrote: "They take often fresh and unexpected turns with the standard topics: life, love and the problems that come when one has too much or not enough of either or both."

5 Guys Named Moe
Thursday, March 9

Not one of these performers is named Moe and only four members of the group are guys. But the song 5 Guys Named Moe is on the repertoire of Jake Reichbart, Eric Nyhuis, Myron Orant, Glenn Bering and Mary Seelhorst. Their performance is said to be "an eclectic mix of swing, ranging from old vocal standards to jazz instrumentals, western swing and free-wheeling be-bop.

A review from Grand Valley State University in Allendale, MI, states: "The program they presented was varied in style, laced with humorous asides and filled to the brim with music hot enough to ward away the winter's chill."

In early March in northwestern Minnesota, we'll take heat any way we can get it, and this group should be an enjoyable source.

Glenn Miller Orchestra
Wednesday, May 3

In 1942 Glenn Miller disbanded his famous orchestra shortly after it nosed out Tommy Dorsey as the "Best Sweet Band" in the Downbeat poll. Miller enlisted in the army, eventually founded the Glenn Miller Army Air Force Band to entertain the servicemen, and disappeared Dec. 15, 1944, when his plane went down over the English Channel on a flight from London to Paris.

The orchestra was formed by the Glenn Miller estate in 1956 in response to popular demand and is the most sought-after big band in the world today for both concert and dance engagements. Still considered the greatest band of all time, it plays an average of 300 live dates a year around the globe to millions of fans.

The band plays such favorites as Moonlight Serenade, Little Brown Jug, Tuxedo Junction, In The Mood, Chattanooga Choo Choo, I've Got A Girl in Kalamazoo, String of Pearls and Pennsylvania 6-5000.

This concert alone might be worth the price of the local concert association season membership.

Details on disaster programs in region explained

With all the disaster declarations being made, it's difficult to explain what each offers. The office of Congressman Collin C. Peterson has released information detailing what the various disaster declaration programs offer.

Certain counties in and around Minnesota's Seventh District have been designated by FEMA or USDA as eligible for disaster assistance. The following is a detailed list of who is eligible and where to call for information.

- FEMA registration at 1-800-462-9029.
- Disaster Information Helpline at 1-800-525-0321.
- Small Business Administration at 1-800-359-2227.

Presidential Disaster Declaration 1283 (FEMA) was issued as a result of severe weather, high winds and flooding that occurred between July 4 and August 2, 1999. Individual assistance, public assistance and hazard mitigation is available.

Presidential Disaster Declaration 1288 (FEMA) was issued for severe ice storms, flooding and heavy rains that occurred between March 1 and May 30, 1999. Assistance available includes public assistance and hazard mitigation.

Agriculture Disaster Declaration (USDA announced September 16, 1999) was issued for heavy snowfall, excessive rainfall, flooding and hailstorms from April 1, 1999 and continuing. Assistance available to family-size farm operators eligible to be considered for low-interest emergency loans from the Farm Service Agency. Assistance from the Small Business Administration will be available in the coming weeks for non-farm businesses eligible to be considered for Economic Injury Disaster loans. Contiguous counties are also eligible but not in the Seventh District include Koochiching, Cass, Itasca and St. Louis.

School Dist. 564 joins academic excellence group

School District 564 which operates the Thief River Falls schools has joined the Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation's Academic League for the 1999-2000 school year.

The league provides assistance to public and nonpublic schools in planning and delivering organized challenges, recognitions and enrichment opportunities for their elementary and secondary students. Implemented in 1989, the league provides a framework which enables schools to involve students in a multitude of activities.

Program director Newell Searle of the Academic League said the league increases student achievement, primarily through the use of academic activities such as Odyssey of the Mind or Academic Decathlon.

"School District 564 should be commended for joining other districts in a visible support of valuing these kinds of activities as integral parts of their community's offerings to its children," Searle said. "When communities encourage and support academic activities and publicly recognize academic achievements, everyone benefits."

MAEF is a nonprofit, public-private partnership created by the 1983 legislature to be the primary advocate for promotion and recognition of academic excellence in all schools and communities in the state.

Big New Elevator Is Put Into Use

"While not yet completed in all details, the huge new elevator built on the Soo Line right-of-way by the Farmers Cooperative Grain and Seed association received its first grain Saturday, Charles Kotaska, manager, stated today. The structure, located about a block north of the Osborne-McMillan terminal elevator in North township, is 122 feet high and has a capacity of 78,000 bushels.

"Sheet-iron sheeting is now being applied on the exterior of the building, and the work is expected to be completed during the next few weeks."

Emergency Polio Drive In Pennington County Nets $751

"The emergency polio fund drive conducted this month for the benefit of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and which comes to an end Friday, netted $751 in Pennington up to Tuesday, it was announced today by Rev. D. T. Beadle, treasurer of the county chapter. He added that the chapter has paid out more than $1,200 for treatment of local cases to date this year, with additional bills still coming in. No new cases have been reported in the county during the past several weeks."

Bell Telephone Company Is Engaged In Big Project Here

"Work was recently started by the Northwestern Bell company on cable and other line additions to the Thief River Falls system that will involve the expenditure of about $30,000. The construction job will include placing about three and one-half miles of underground and aerial cable containing up to 2,424 wires, more than a half mile of underground conduit, and approximately nine and one-half miles of open wire. The recent enlargement of both local and long distance call-handling equipment in the Thief River Falls central office has been necessary to handle the steadily growing volume of calls. Local calls, for example, have climbed from 8,300 to 12,500 a day since the end of the war. In this same period, out-of-town calling has increased about 35 percent."

Mercury Slumps To 22 Above Early Wednesday

"This locality experienced its first hard killing frost of the fall season Wednesday morning when the mercury dropped to 22 above zero, Station KTRF reported. Balmy autumn temperatures prevailed last weekend, a high of 79 being recorded Saturday and 76 on Sunday. No precipitation was recorded during the week."

Thoughts On "30" As Countdown Ends

by Marvin Lundin, Editor

When I took my first newspaper job at the age of 18 at the Warren Sheaf office in Warren, I didn't have the slightest idea it would be the first day of 45 years in the journalism profession. Now it seems impossible that those years have passed and the decision to retire is about to be fulfilled. This is my last editorial as editor of the Thief River Falls Times.

Anyone who has had a long-term association with something and then lost or given up that contact probably knows better than I the feelings involved. Quite frankly, the period leading up to the final day on the job has been so hectic there has been little time to give it much emotional consideration. Perhaps that is also for the best.

While I am sure I will miss some of the aspects of the job a lot, it is fair to say I have no regrets about deciding to retire. For all of my working life I have never considered any personal possibilities that would require a large block of time. Deadlines and publication dates were sacred. Our family never took a vacation longer than a week, and that usually when the office closed for a week and all employees had vacation at the same time. Everything revolved around whatever days of the week the papers were published (those publication days changed over the years) and private schedules were adjusted to make sure the demands of "paper day" were met.

That always meant working at the office the night before publication day and the question at home was never if I would be late but how late I expected to be. Most of the time I didn't know; what had to be done dictated the time. It might be 10 or 11 p.m., usually midnight or later, often 2 or 3 a.m. I don't think we ever really questioned it; it was just part of the job. We did it because it had to be done.

Those were not the only nights worked in a week, of course. There were always evening meetings and events that had to be covered, and if they occurred on scheduled work nights it only meant I had to work that much later to make up for the time lost by attending. In those years when we had a Monday publication it meant leaving Sunday family activities early to work Sunday night in preparation. We were never, ever staffed to the extent that the work could be done in a "normal" 40-hour week. There were many times the 40-hour mark was passed on Thursday with Friday and the weekend yet to come.

I remember one night in particular when I was called out three times for separate traffic accidents, scarcely getting home before the next call came. After the third response I simply gave up on sleep and went to the office to develop film, print photos and assemble information for the stories and photo captions.

I recall these things not as complaint but as my own rationale for retirement when there is still much I enjoy about my job. The ability to utilize time at my own schedule is too great a temptation to resist.

If there is one word that could be used to sum up all the things I have enjoyed about newspapering, however, that word would be "people."

I expect that what I will miss most in retirement, apart from the daily contact with some really great co-workers, will be coverage of our area's young people. It has been a marvel to see the development of children first met in elementary school programs or 4-H club projects as they progressed through high school and into college or the community. It has also been a privilege to watch the second generation— children of some of those children—go through the same development process.

Every few years—sometimes in successive years, occasionally in the same year—students come along who demonstrate exceptional ability in music, speech, art or athletics at an early age. Some showed remarkable development and maturity. They stand out in memory. We have noted that a few grade classes have high percentages of students who excel in academics as well as the above-mentioned activities while other classes seem collectively less blessed.

Being in the news media compels a person to be attentive to the day's happenings and builds an awareness of what is going on around us. It gives us reason to ask questions, to seek greater information and to share what we learn.

In small papers like ours, the necessity to do a little bit of everything in news coverage also allows us to have greater control over publication of the photos we take and the stories we write. One of the joys of the job has been to place in the community spotlight through photos and feature stories some of the people who are everyday residents of the area but have a fleeting brush with recognition for something special they do.

There have been lasting contacts made with good people because of this job, and it has been a thrill to have some call or write during the last few weeks, including calls from Alaska and the south coast of Texas. All of these calls and notes of memories and good wishes are truly treasured.

In retirement I will no longer have the attention given to those in the media by people in the public eye. Had I not been editor of the newspaper, I would not be on a first name basis with state and federal elected officials, be invited to participate in conference calls with U.S. Senators or get to visit with celebrities. Such attention has nothing to do with the individual and everything to do with the position. It goes, as they say, with the territory—just as the late nights and the constant deadlines do.

Many people I have talked to recently seem to attach more significance to my job than I ever did. I never aspired to be a "personality" or wield any special influence. My written opinions were simply that, and readers could choose to agree or disagree. In my dealings with news sources and the public I tried to be honest and open and responsible and decent. I hope no one found me to be otherwise.

In my last editorial as editor of the Northern Watch this Saturday, I plan to comment about some of the changes observed during my 45 years in this business.

Someone who was considering retirement a few years ago lamented that "you're nobody in a hurry when you retire." It occurred to me that such is the case only if you choose to believe you are "somebody" before you retire. I don't expect to take any feeling of loss into retirement with me.

In the newspaper business it has been traditional to write "30" at the end of a story to indicate to the copy editor or typesetter that the story was complete and there was no more to come. Now it's time for me to write it one last time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

Goals 2000. Profile of Learning. School to Work. Grad Rule. Grad Standards. What is it? Where does it come from? Who does it affect? Who is paying for it? Why? How?

These questions and more were answered on Saturday, September 18, at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls. Michele Bachmann and Michael Chapman, representatives of Maple River Education Coalition (MrEdCo) presented thought-provoking questions and provided documented answers on the federal and state-mandated values-oriented "curriculum."

If you missed this conference and would like to know more about what's going on today in Minnesota's public education system, two excellent books are now available at the Thief River Falls Public Library. None Dare Call It Education by John A. Stormer and The Seamless Web by Allen Quist are must-reads for anyone concerned about the state of education in Minnesota today. After reading these, you will never be the same. Guaranteed.

The weather in northwest Minnesota is putting a lot of stress on the farmers who haven't quite finished combining the small grain. Because some nights more or less rain showers have come, farmers have to decide if they have time to go to town for another cup of coffee, or if they should dress for the field in case the sun would dry things in the early forenoon. That's why aprons were invented for women who were determined to go to town rain or shine. When they had "picked up the house", and did their telephoning, all they had to do was shed the apron.

The frost made an end to the dahlias for the year. On Saturday, there were only enough for two bouquets for Sunday morning at the church and later to the nursing home. It is nice to see how much the folks there (at the nursing home) enjoy things from the outdoors. The mums fared better, so I may be able to find some of them.

When I brought the dahlias in, a number of ladybugs were hiding in them. When they began looking for the curtains, Roy reminded them and me that bugs are not welcome in this domicile. Hazel rescued one and took it out to the farm to eat aphids off her plants. We heard there are both good and bad ladybugs and we are trying to find out what kind we have. Roy is sure they are all alike and refuses to befriend any of them. Hazel defends them until they are proven guilty.

Sunday evening, hundreds of neighbors, relatives and friends gathered in Strandquist for a fund raiser for Lowell and Shelley Lefrooth to help after the fire that had severely damaged their home. At a time as that, every bit helps.

Elphie Adils says they (Senior Citizens) will meet again on Thursday. All are welcome.

On Friday evening, Tracy and Kim Kraft of Minot, and children Kevin, Annika and Amanda, came to spend the weekend with Elphie and Stanley Adils. On Sunday, they were joined by Betty and Mike Johnson of Warroad. Later Kelly Rogalla and children Alissa, Lauren and Robert of Thief River Falls came to have coffee with them. The Krafts returned to Minot after dinner, and the rest visited until evening. It's great when the children come home.

News from Florence Strom in Florida was that she and her daughter, Wanda, and her husband, Ronnie were safe when Hurricane Floyd came roaring by. They left their home overnight and were happy when they returned to find two trees down next to Ronnie and Wanda's new home, but no other damage to either place.

Pearl Thompson and her granddaughter, Karen Thompson of Thief River Falls visited Elsie Lefrooth on Sunday afternoon. In the evening, they attended the fund-raiser in Strandquist for Lowell and Shelley Lefrooth. After church in Karlstad, they spent the evening at Elsie's home.

Robyn Purath scholarship applications now available

Applications are now being accepted for the second Robyn Purath Memorial Scholarship award. This education scholarship fund was established through a cooperative effort of the Minnesota Cattle Women (MnCW), the Minnesota State Cattlemen Association (MSCA) and the Minnesota Beef Council, in memory of Robyn Purath, the 1996 Minnesota Beef Queen. Robyn, the daughter of Gary and Pat Purath of Red Lake Falls, lost her life in an automobile accident while enroute to FarmFest in Redwood Falls, Minnesota in August 1996.

The scholarship was originally funded by beef producers and individuals through contributions. This year, the scholarship fund received a big boost when Applebees restaurants added an additional $5000 to the fund as the result a special May is Beef Month 'Steak in Education' promotion.

To be eligible for the scholarship an applicant must:

1. Be preparing for a career in education--elementary, secondary or extension.
2. Be attending an accredited two or four year college or university.
3. Be a Minnesota resident.
4. Have completed at least one semester or quarter of study.
5. Applications must be postmarked no later than November 1 and sent to: Juanita Reed-Boniface, Chair, Purath Scholarship Committee, 2462 Lake George Dr. N.W. Cedar, MN 55011.

A selection committee will review applications and select the recipients. The scholarships will be presented to the winners at the MSCA/MnCW convention in December at the Raddisson Hotel in Bloomington.

The 1998 winners were Kendra Carlson, Sandstone, MN, and Kevin Wulf, Hancock, MN.

Applications forms are available from the Minnesota Beef Council Office, Suite 426, 2850 Metro Drive, Minneapolis, MN 55425 or from Juanita Reed-Boniface at the above address.

The Minnesota Beef Council is a promotion and research board organized under state statute and certified by the Beef Promotion and Research Board to collect a mandatory $1 per head assessment on all cattle sales. The council is directed by a elected board of 16 beef and dairy producers and invests funds in promotion, research and educational programs on behalf of Minnesota's 36,000 cattle producers.

Deadline nears for farmers to protect AMTA acres

Producers have until September 30 to request farm combinations that might be needed to protect the Agriculture Marketing Transition Act (AMTA) contract acres.

During the last CRP sign-up, many producers successfully bid land into the CRP program. Most of these new CRP contracts will become effective October 1, 1999. Once the new CRP contract becomes effective it will be necessary to reduce AMTA acreage, if the total of the AMTA acreage and the CRP acreage exceed the cropland for the farm.

Some producers may be able to save some or all of the contract acreage by combining other land they will operate for fiscal year 2000, if the combined land meets the definition of a farm. If a producer will be operator on a farm that is going into CRP, and will also be the operator on other land next year, it may be possible to combine all the land into one farm so the AMTA contract acres can be moved to another tract and not lost to the farming operation.

The primary requirements for these combinations are:

1) Provide the FSA County Committee with adequate documentation to allow them to make the proper determinations as to who the operator is.

2) Provide a copy of a lease for at least one year.

3) Farms with AMTA contracts can only be combined with other farms that have AMTA contracts.

4) All required signatures must be received in office by September 30, 1999.

Situations where producers bid whole farms into CRP would only qualify to be combined if the combination involved other land the CRP operator was going to operate.

For more specific information, contact the Marshall County FSA office at 218-745-4251.

It looks like the humming birds have hitched a ride on the Canadian geese. I saw a flock of them flying south, and their bottle of nectar that Roy keeps filling is not getting less in it. Now the yellow jackets have taken over and we don't cater to them. There was a big nest of them in the tall stumps across the street when they were removed last week. Since then, we have been pestered with lots of unwanted yellow visitors which I am sure Roy isn't going to put up with for long.

National Wildlife Refuge week observed at Agassiz

Agassiz National Wildlife refuge east of Holt is joining with other refuges in the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service system to celebrate National Wildlife Refuge Week October 10 to 16, according to Gary Tischer of the Agassiz refuge staff.

In addition to being open during regular office hours during the week of October 10-16, Agassiz refuge will have its office open Sunday, October 10, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Dennis Hunt of Detroit Lakes will present a program on goose hunting from 11:30 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Hunt is considered one of the premiere goose hunters and seminar speakers and has written five books on goose hunting. His program topic will be Goose Hunting—Doing It The Right Way.

Following the program videos of the National Wildlife Refuge system and the 1999 U.S. Fish and Wildlife Status of Waterfowl 20-minute 20-minute survey video will be shown. This annual North American waterfowl survey is one of the oldest and most comprehensive in the world, Tischer said. Waterfowl breeding population numbers, wetland habitat conditions, fall flight forecast and history of the Service's waterfowl survey are all explained in the video.

In recognition of National Wildlife Refuge Week, posters and bookmarks will be distributed at the refuge office. This year's poster and bookmark display a desert scene. Posters and bookmarks were a joint project of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Audubon Society and the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation.

Bratwurst, hot dogs, potato chips and other refreshments will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., or until the food is gone. Food and refreshments are provided by the Agassiz Audubon Society at Warren. All activities Sunday will be in the office building at refuge headquarters.

This year's observance is the fifth annual National Wildlife Refuge Week leading up to the system's 100th anniversary in the year 2003. A flying blue goose symbol represents the National Wildlife Refuge System. All national wildlife refuge boundary signs have the blue goose symbol placed on them, Tischer added.

The National Wildlife Refuge system is the only one of its kind in the world, dedicated specifically to wildlife and habitat conservation. Since establishment of the first national wildlife management refuge, Pelican Island in Florida, established in 1903 by President Theodore Roosevelt, the national wildlife refuge system has expanded to 516 refuges. Total acreage of the national wildlife refuge system is a little more than 92 million acres. Size of the refuges vary from the 0.5 acre Mille Lacs NWR on Mille Lacs Lake in Minnesota to the 20-million-acre Yukon Flats NWR in Alaska.

Since the celebration of the 500th refuge established in West Virginia in 1994, every state in the nation has a national wildlife refuge. Mission of the refuge system is: "To provide, preserve, restore and manage a national network of lands and waters sufficient in size, diversity and location to meet society's needs for areas where the widest possible spectrum of benefits associated with wildlife and wildlands is enhanced and made available."

Through the establishment of national wildlife refuges, a diversity of habitats has been acquired, protected, restored and managed for the enhancement of wildlife and the continuing benefit of the American people, Tischer said. Most refuges are located along the four major north-south waterfowl migration flyways. Other refuges serve as sanctuaries for endangered species or for other species requiring unique habitat.

National Wildlife Refuge Week is timed to coincide with the annual fall waterfowl migration, so millions of birds are sure to fly into most refuges in the lower 48 states on their way south. With a North American forecast of 105 million ducks migrating south, birdwatching should be at its best.

"Ducks and Canada geese will be most abundant and visible from Marshall County Road 7 and township roads adjacent to the refuge boundary at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge," Tischer added.

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is located 23 miles northeast of Thief River Falls, between Holt and Grygla. If additional information is needed, call 218-449-4115, extension 214. For additional information on National Wildlife Refuge Week and a brochure with a complete map of the refuge system and basic visitor information for every refuge, call 1-800-344-9453 or visit the Internet home page at http://refuges.fws.gov.

Prescription drugs expected to remain in adequate supply

Consumers concerned about availability of their prescription drugs on or after Jan. 1, 2000 are urged by Minnesota pharmacists to fill their prescriptions as they normally would—five to seven days before their supply has been used.

They also recommend that consumers keep their last prescription vial in the event that some pharmacies experience minor interruptions as a result of the transition to the new millennium. Minnesota pharmacists have been working with their pharmaceutical suppliers to assure an adequate supply of prescription medications before and after Jan. 1, 2000.

Reliable sources in the pharmaceutical supply industry say that there is safely a substantial, 90-day supply of prescription drugs available in the system. The industry has emergency response plans in place and extensive past experience using these plans in handling disruptions caused by severe weather, transportation or other unforeseen occurrences.

Minnesota law requires that a hard copy of all prescriptions dispensed will be kept on file at the location where the prescription is originally filled for two years so that, in the event of a power or computer failure, pharmacists will have a filed copy of the original prescription.

Consumers are advised to keep their most recent medication vial for pertinent refill information-in the event that computer access to records is temporarily interrupted.

Minnesota Pharmacists Association says there is no need for consumers to stockpile prescription medications. Stockpiling or hoarding drugs can lead to shortages of certain drugs and cause greater supply problems than the actual Y2K-related interruptions.

Patients should also be aware of their health care plan's policy regarding prescription filling and refills. Cost of prescriptions filled outside of plan parameters is an uncovered health benefit for which the patient is entirely responsible.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
APRIL 27TH, 1999 6:00 P.M.

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls, Tuesday, April 27, 1999 at 6:00 p.m. Members present: Bob Carlson, Charles Naplin, Donald Jensen, Arden "Bud" Comstock, and Oliver "Skip" Swanson. Members absent: none.

Linnae Enge and Ray Safranski made a request that the County be the fiscal agent to accept funds from charitable gambling funds that would be received to purchase one day carnival passes for children that may not get one otherwise. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to authorize the County to be the fiscal agent for the program called "A Day at the Fair". Motion unanimously carried.

Barb Bello, Court Administrator and the staff of the Court Administrator's Office appeared before the Board to make several requests. Those items include: salary adjustments for their office, to increase their work week from 37.5 to 40 hours per week, the need to re-write personnel policy and to offer part-time employees health insurance benefits. The Board took the request under advisement.

Jim Rogalla, representing the Marshall County State Bank, met with the County Board to discuss his concerns about flood insurance being required on property owners because a more detailed map of where the flood plain is located is not available. He has been working with a property owner that will be required to pay $419.00 per year in flood insurance because FEMA has now determined they are in the flood plain. The only way to prove if his home is in the flood plain or not is to have a survey done at a cost of approximately $2,700.00. The County Board referred Jim Rogalla to the Red Lake Watershed District to inquire about them doing the survey.

Howard Person discussed the forms that will be used to do the feedlot survey. Troy Schroeder will be the individual conducting the survey. Howard will draft a letter that will be sent to all feed lot owners prior to Troy doing the survey.

Howard Person and Rick Nordhagen appeared before the County Board to discuss the Solid Waste Facility and the Stipulation Agreement with Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and the Office of Environmental Assistance. It was noted that White Earth is no longer delivering solid waste to SWIS PENNCO and that Hubbard County will no longer deliver waste after September 1999. Howard had checked with the Grand Forks landfill regarding SWIS PENNCO's bill and was told it had been slipping behind. The MNPCA and OEA have indicated they will start negotiations on the Stipulation Agreement. Pennington County could now start negotiating a new compost management contract with SWIS PENNCO. Also discussed was giving away some of the finished compost.

Howard then requested that $500.00 of SCORE or feedlot money be used for part-time summer help in the Extension Office. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to authorize the use of $500.00 of SCORE or feedlot funds to supplement the wages of the summer assistant in the Extension office bringing the total funds available to $2,000.99. Motion unanimously carried.

Tom Williams and Chuck Tuthill representing the Thief River Golf Club met with the County Board to request 400 cubic yards of Class V gravel to replace cart paths washed away in the spring flooding. Commissioner Comstock moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson that the County donate 400 cubic yards of Class V gravel to the Thief River Golf Course with the County hauling one-third of the material and the Golf Course to arrange for the other two thirds of the hauling. Motion carried with Commissioner Jensen voting nay.

County Engineer Dellon Schulz and Assistant Engineer George Broadwell then discussed the following items.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to set the hearing on the Five Year Road and Bridge Plan for May 25th, 1999, 4:00 p.m. in the County Board Room. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Engineer discussed the quotes received for a leveling course on C.S.A.H. #6 in six locations. Quotes were received from Northern Paving for $45/ton for a total of $4,365.00 and from MNOAK for $65/ton for a total of $6,305.00. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to accept the quote of Northern Paving for $4,365.00 to place a leveling course in six locations on C.S.A.H. #6. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to rehire Pennington County Highway Department seasonal employees Jim Johnsrud at $7.83/hour and Kurt Philipp at $7.21/hour. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to hire the following seasonal employees at $7.00/hour: Erica Myers, Elizabeth Odette, Jim Johnson, Robert Spry, Dustin Mosbeck, Joshua Holmes and Linda Brandt. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to authorize the County Engineer to obtain a survey of County Ditch #75 by Widseth Smith and Nolte for a cost of $600.00 to $700.00. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Engineer noted that he had been requested by Goodridge Mayor Dave Brown Jr. to calculate an estimate for paving two blocks in Goodridge. The County Board approved the request to provide an estimate.

It was decided that all delinquent mailbox stand bills would be turned over to the County Attorney for collection.

Sheriff Mike Hruby and Wendy Mattson met with the County Board. The County Board chairman gave the oath of office for the position of civil defense director to Sheriff Mike Hruby.

The sheriff then discussed the computerized records systems for the Law Enforcement Center. A meeting with representatives of the City of Thief River Falls and Pennington County was held April 23 and it was recommended that the Law Enforcement Center records systems be set up on a PC based system. The approximate cost is $32,351.00 that is to be divided between the City of Thief River Falls and Pennington County.

The County Auditor noted that he did not agree with all of the advantages and disadvantages listed on the proposal, but he would agree that keeping the system totally within the Law Enforcement Center for security of the data was important. Also the Law Enforcement Center has a backup generator and this was reason enough for him to agree with the recommendation.

Commissioner Naplin moved, Commissioner Swanson seconded the motion to have the Sheriff research ways to finance the purchase of the computer server and PC equipment and bring back the proposals to the May 11th, 1999 County Board Meeting. Motion unanimously carried.

The sheriff then presented the Pennington County Sheriff's annual report of statistics for 1998. The report is available at the Pennington County Sheriff's office.

The sheriff reviewed a revised budget for the original jail and the Minimum Security Work Release Facility. The County Board took no action.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to authorize the sheriff to advertise for the program coordinator position at the starting wage of $12.26/hour. Motion unanimously carried.

The sheriff presented an amendment to the Department of Corrections Work Release Agreement. The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Comstock and upon vote was unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners approve the amendment to the Joint Powers Agreement #PO-000-2727 between Pennington County and the Department of Corrections for work release services decreasing the funds available from $15,000 to $4,000 for the contract period 10-15-98 to 6-30-99.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the chairman and sheriff be authorized to sign the amendment on behalf of Pennington County.

Sheriff Mike Hruby requested the County Board to approve the State Sentence to Serve (STS) Program Income Contract allocating $56,750.00 to the County STS Program for the period 7-1-99 to 6-30-2001. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to approve the State of Minnesota Department of Corrections STS Program Income Contract for the period of 7-1-99 to 6-30-2001 and authorize the chairman and sheriff to sign the same. Motion unanimously carried.

Staff from the auditor's office including Kim Carlson, Angie Porter, and Valerie Lindgren met with the County Board regarding the following items. The County Board needs to approve overtime for all departments. The purpose and time period when it is to be used should be spelled out when the request for overtime is brought to the County Board for approval. Compensatory time, sick leave, and vacation time used or accrued needs to be reported in the payroll period the employees are being paid for. The County Board should approve all training sessions.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin that a letter be sent to all departments regarding the policy of the County to be followed in regards to overtime approval and reporting of compensatory time and sick leave used or accrued so that records in the central computer system match departmental records. Departments are to abide by policies within two weeks of the letter to be sent by Valerie Lindgren. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Auditor then discussed the proposal from the Northwest Service Cooperative to review and measure the job value points of the county job descriptions and to analyze and classify jobs based on the same work related criteria. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to accept the proposal of the Northwest Service Cooperative to review the county job description and evaluate them using the State Job Match System. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to approve DNR Wetland permit #99-1166 to allow Pennington County to reconstruct the Neptune Bridge. Motion unanimously carried.

IT IS RESOLVED, that the County of Pennington enter into Amendment No. 1 to MnDOT Agreement No. 77940 with the State of Minnesota, Department of Transportation for the following purposes: to provide for payment by the State to the County of the State's share of the costs of the culvert construction on Trunk Highway No. 1 at proposed County State Aid Highway No. 16 at the west corporate limits of the City of Thief River Falls under State Project No. 5701-27 (T.H. 1 - 033).

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED, that the County Board chairman and the County Engineer are authorized to execute the Agreement.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to approve change order #5 on the Minimum Security Work Release Facility as submitted. Motion unanimously carried.

School Board 564 approves levy increase of 6.75 percent

School District 564 board of directors has approved a 6.75 percent increase in its 1999, payable 2000, levy. The tax levy is expected to raise $3,706,526.64.

Business Manager, Harry Nelson, presented the budget and proposed levy increase to the school board at its meeting on Monday, September 27. Nelson immediately noted that a major reason for the increase was due to a state mandated increase in the tax capacity rate for the district. As a practical matter, the district didn't have much of a choice. He explained that if the district requested less, they would lose state aid. In order to obtain its Foundation Aid, there had to be a corresponding increase in the general education fund request. The general education fund request increased $229,042.41 from $1,835,115.81 to $2,064,158.22.

The public is invited to attend the district's truth in taxation hearing which will be held at 7 p.m. on November 30 in the District Service Center. During that time, taxpayers will be able to ask questions about the district's budget.

A summary of the district's budget shows that there were other significant changes, including inclusion of $187,045 for improving disabled access. Nelson explained that school districts were allowed to levy $300,000 for disabled access, and the $187,000 levied by the school district this year, represents the final amount the district can levy. Significant decreases in the budget were observed when the district did not levy for the district cooperation aid ($114,248.85), which had been segregated from the general education formula only recently. The state placed it back into the general education formula. This year, the district also did not levy for a bus, which meant a decrease from last year's budget of ($102,500.33).

While the Community Fund increased by 12.15 percent, the dollar amount involved was relatively small. The Community Fund includes basic aid for community education, early childhood and home visits, for a total budgetary cost of $59,295.15 an increase of $6,422.33.

Retirement of debt is expected to decrease this year because the district declared a fund balance excess. Nelson said the debt service actually decreased by $30,165.14 to 1,294,297.85.

The preliminary tax statements due to be sent to taxpayers sometime in November will include information about the school district's tax levy, the county's tax levy, and the city's tax levy. Whether individual taxpayers see an increase or decrease in their taxes depends upon a number of factors, of which governmental unit levies are just a single element of the equation.

Consultant tells city council cross wind runway is justified

Greg Albjerg from HNTB Engineering told Thief River Falls City Council members Tuesday, September 28, that the study and survey they conducted had concluded that a crosswind runway at the regional airport was justified.

A crosswind runway at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport has been a topic of discussion for many years. Last spring, the council approved expenditures on a study designed to answer whether a crosswind runway was needed and justified.

Albjerg said the study looked at who's using the airport, how often it's being used, what equipment (planes) are being used, the potential for growth, specifications (length) for a crosswind runway, as well as collected comments from representatives of companies who use the airport.

The primary runway at the regional airport is 6,500 feet long. There is a crosswind runway at the airport, but the 1,700-foot turf runway is of limited use to all but the smallest of single engine airplanes.

Of critical interest was the number of operations (incoming and outgoing flights) during a year. Part of the justification for the state and federal government to fund the project is based on number of operations. In this instance the magic number is 500. Another critical factor affecting any proposed crosswind runway is the type of aircraft using the airport. In this case, the Saab and Metro aircraft used by Mesaba, UPS, are the critical aircraft. And, Albjerg said that even if Thief River Falls lost its passenger carrier, there are more than 500 operations per year at the airport. Another factor, which could affect state and federal funding is the number of passengers served by the airport annually. It appears that 10,000 is the magic number. Thief River Falls, at over 8,000 per year now, is quickly approaching that number and may, in fact, have reached that number if it takes into account the number of charter aircraft passengers.

Albjerg said after examining current and potential use, he didn't feel the city needed to plan for jet aircraft landing at the airport. He said users will be well-served by a 5,000-foot crosswind runway. He added that FAA and state officials seemed to be in agreement.

Albjerg said companies were reluctant to share a lot of data with them, and didn't provide any hard data on the number of flights cancelled because the airport did not have a crosswind runway. Estimates indicate that a crosswind runway is recommended for an average of 30-50 days per year for winds at 10.5 knots, and approximately 20 days per year with winds at 13 knots.

Albjerg, a pilot himself, said there are times when pilots don't decide to fly because conditions are not safe. Strong winds and no crosswind runway might be among reasons not to fly on a particular day.

If the council decides to proceed with plans for a crosswind runway, the next step would be to share the results of the study with state and federal officials, and then begin state and federal environmental studies. During the studies, several more opportunities for public comment will be made available. This is a lengthy process which could take as long as a year and a half to complete.

The cost to construct and operate the crosswind runway is of particular concern to the council. Council representative Dale Wennberg said the city will subsi-

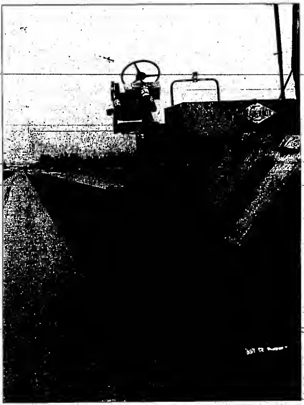
The new home of American Legion Eklund-Holmstrom Post 117 is now under construction. Groundbreaking ceremonies were conducted in July. Officials hope the project will be completed sometime in January.



Construction began last week on County Road 8 (the road that passes in front of Challenger Elementary School between Highway 59 South and County Road 17. The project was originally expected to be completed before school opened, but due to inclement weather the project kept being delayed.

This year's show will feature a greatly expanded format and new attractions, including displays from other model railroad clubs in Minnesota and North Dakota.

Pennington County – Where did those township names come from?

by Donna Myhrer

A few months ago the Times printed an article about the origins of some of the street names in Thief River Falls. A few people responded with corrections or additions to the information we had at that time, but many more simply responded that they had enjoyed reading about where these names came from. This article is the first of a two-part series about some other place names of Pennington County.

First it is well-known to many people that the land of Pennington County has been part of two other counties in the past. From the time of Minnesota becoming a state in 1858 until 1896, the western portion of what is now Pennington County was the northern portion of Polk County. (This, by the way, accounts for the name of Polk Center Township, which, you may have noticed, is neither in Polk or the Center of anything at the present time.)

In 1896 Red Lake County was formed and at the time comprised the western area of both the Red Lake and Pennington counties of today. The eastern area of both were part of the Eleven Towns, which until 1905 was part of the Red Lake Indian reservation and not organized into townships. In 1910, after several rather fierce battles over where the city seat should be located, Pennington County broke away from Red Lake County and was organized with Thief River Falls as the county seat.

However it may surprise some folks to discover that this present day Pennington County was once part of a fourth county. Before 1858, when Minnesota was still a territory, this Pennington County land was known as part of Pembina County, which was quite large and extended west into what is now North Dakota.

There are three main sources for the following material about the place names of Pennington County. The first is "Minnesota Geographic Names, Their Origin and Historic Significance," a book about Minnesota geographic names by Warren Upham, who interviewed people in every county of the state to compile his records. The second source is the publication of the Pennington County Historical society, "Pioneer Tales, A History of Pennington County." Thirdly, several updates and corrections in this material come from early newspapers in Polk, Red Lake and Pennington Counties.

Information of geographic names in Pennington county was given to Warren Upham by Edward L. Healy, real estate dealer, of Red Lake Falls, interviewed in August 1909; and by Harry E. Ives, clerk of the court for Pennington county, Lars Backe, Thief River Falls mayor, and Joseph Johnson, also of Thief River Falls, who were interviewed in September 1916.

The introductory paragraph on Pennington county from Upham's book, which is available at the Thief River Falls Public Library, tells us that this county, established November 23, 1910, was named in honor of Edmund Pennington of Minneapolis. He was born in LaSalle, IL, September 16, 1845; began his life's work in railroad service in 1869; was successively superintendent, general manager, and vice president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railway company, and from 1909 to 1922 was its president. He died in 1926.

COLORED INK

Danny Minks (right), KKAQ sports director, made the mistake of making a bet on air that the Twins would not win over 60 games this year. Since the Twins did pass the 60-game win mark already, Minks' punishment was to walk from St. Hilaire to Thief River Falls. Walking with him is his friend Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, who having heard the bet on air, had quickly, perhaps too quickly, called the station to tell Minks that if he lost the bet he would walk with him. Last week, they made their walk, which was roughly six miles (of crow).

Lost hunter spends night in the woods

Richard Andrew Kosiarek, 32, Savage, became confused and lost in the area of the Rundeen Ridge Road in Northwest Marshall county Saturday and spent the night in the woods.

Marshall County Sheriff's department received a report of a lost hunter on October 2 at about 9:15 p.m. Kosiarek was hunting grouse when he became lost in an area that is a sparsely populated area with a lot of state management area land and few roads or reference points. Kosiarek was able to keep himself warm at night with a fire.

Kosiarek spent the night in the woods with a dog and was able to walk out of the woods the following day at about 9:30 a.m. He was cold and wet, but in good condition.

The Civil Air Patrol had been called in to assist in the search and a crew from the Thief River Falls area had responded. Just as they started their aerial search, Kosiarek was located

Drake stopped at the intersection and when he did not see the St. Michael vehicle, he proceeded into the intersection where the vehicles collided. Police estimated damages at $1,000 to the St. Michael vehicle, and $800 to the Drake vehicle.

On October 2 at 1:31 a.m. the sheriff's department received a report of an accident at the intersection of County road 17 and State Aid 3. Andy Roben Janisch, 18, Thief River Falls, was driving a 1994 Ford Mustang south on County road 17 when he failed to negotiate the t-intersection and the car landed in a field. On September 29 at 8:41 a.m. police received a report that a pop machine on First Street had been tipped over. Damage amount was unknown.

Following an incident on October 2, charges are pending for criminal damage to property against 18-year-old Delbert William McBride, Thief River Falls, and a 14-year-old male from Red Lake Falls. Charges stem from two incidents, one at Engelstad Park and one at LaFave park. Both incidents involved pop machines being tipped over. Damage to both pop machines was estimated at $1,700 to $1,800. A small amount of cash was also taken. McBride also faces a possible charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

On October 2 at 10:21 a.m. police received a report from an individual who had parked a vehicle in Friendship Park. About $7 cash, two portable radios, valued at $100 each, and miscellaneous items had been taken from the vehicle. The theft loss was estimated at $207.

On October 4 at 9:30 p.m. the sheriff's department received a report of a gas drive-off from the Krase In. The driver had left without paying $13.81 in gas. Charges are pending against a 19-year-old female from East Grand Forks.

Burning car. On October 2 an unoccupied vehicle was found burning on County road 27 in Pennington County three miles north of the Red Lake county line. When deputies arrived the fire had been extinguished and the car was resting on its side. The incident remains under investigation.

Criminal damage to property. On October 1 at 10:37 a.m. police received a report from a local motel that people who had rented a room and caused damage to the room and had left. Charges are pending against a 17-year-old male from Thief River Falls.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Fair goers say 'no' to unicameral legislature, new stadiums

by Rep. Jim Tunheim

A majority of Minnesotans do not favor a unicameral (one-house) legislature, according to a poll conducted by the non-partisan Minnesota House of Representatives Information Office at the State Fair.

When asked, "Would you support a constitutional amendment that would eliminate the Minnesota Senate and House of Representatives and replace them with a unicameral (one-house) legislature?" 49.2 percent answered, "no," 36.7 percent said, "yes," and 14.1 percent indicated that they were undecided or had no opinion.

As a member from rural Minnesota who opposes establishing a unicameral legislature, I was pleased to see that people seem to be paying attention to the debate, and understand it is not a good proposal.

Minnesotans taking part in the poll also strongly opposed propositions for the state to provide funding for new sports stadiums for the Twins and Vikings. When asked, "Should the state contribute one-third of the cost of a new stadium for the Minnesota Twins in St. Paul?" 72.9 percent said, "no," 22.4 percent, "yes," and 4.8 percent were undecided or had no opinion.

Results were similar when asked about a new stadium for the Vikings. The question read, "Should the state contribute funds to help pay for a new stadium for the Minnesota Vikings?" Almost 78 percent said, "no," 17.6 percent indicated, "yes," and 4.8 percent were undecided or had no opinion.

In another sporting-related question, a majority of those polled, 48 percent, said that the state should allow the installation of slot machines at the Canterbury Park horse racing track. Forty-three percent were against the proposal, and nine percent said they were undecided or had no opinion.

While slot machines at Canterbury were a go, the legalization of the sale of small fireworks in the days surrounding the 4th of July fizzled. While it was close, 49.2 percent said they opposed this, while 46.6 percent supported it, and 4.3 percent said they were undecided or had no opinion.

And in a question about our governor, an overwhelming majority of those taking the poll said the state should be reimbursed when the state incurs added cost from Jesse Ventura's involvement in personal business activities. An example of this would be the governor's travel expenses when he is on book tours or other trips not related to his state duties.

The Minnesota House Information Office notes that this survey is informal and unscientific. It is simply a measurement of the opinions expressed by those who took the time to complete the poll while visiting the Minnesota House of Representatives' booth at the State Fair. The main purpose of conducting this opinion poll was to familiarize fair goers with some of the issues that have recently been discussed by the Legislature, and other issues that may be debated during the upcoming legislative session.

Vettleson herd tops DHIA report for July and August

Wayne Vettleson herd topped the Red Lake-Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association report for the combined months of July and August, according to Randy and Margaret Rasmussen, supervisors. Herd owners are given the option of testing once or twice during these two months, therefore several herds are listed among the top 15 more than once.

The Vettleson herd of 170 cows was 91 percent in milk in August and averaged 68 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of butterfat and 2.0 pounds of protein.

Second place herd was from Walter Bros Farm where 91 percent of the 254 cows were in production and the herd averaged 67 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

Todd and Kathy Johnston had the third-place herd with production averaging 66 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of butterfat and 2.0 pounds of protein. Eighty-eight percent of the 65-cow herd was in milk.

Wayne Vettleson also had fourth place in the report with his July production record when 86 percent of the 174 cow herd was in production and the herd averaged 65 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of butterfat and 1.9 pounds of protein.

Small cow herd at the Northwest Experiment Station finished fifth in the report with 90 percent of the 62-cow herd on test and averaging 63 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of butterfat and 1.9 pounds of protein.

Excel Dairy had the sixth place herd on the report with 83 percent of the herd in production and the 1,165-cow herd averaging 63 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of butterfat and 1.9 pounds of protein.

Other herds in the top 15 in the association over the two-month period included the following with number of cows in the herd, percentage in milk and pounds of milk, butterfat and protein listed respectively:

Tom Willett (August), 48, 85%, 63, 2.0 and 1.9; Northwest Experiment Station (large cow herd), 41, 88%, 62, 2.4 and 2.0; Gary and Polly Bakken, 29, 100%, 62, 2.1 and 2.1; Greg Zak, 44, 86%, 59, 1.9 and 1.8; and Tom Willett (July), 49, 82%, 58, 2.1 and 1.7;

Also Tom and Diane Kofstoe, 45, 91%, 56, 1.9 and 1.6; Marlyn and Debbie Onquist, 45, 82%, 56, 1.8 and 1.7; David Oslund (August), 241, 87%, 55, 2.0 and 1.7; David Oslund (July), 250, 89%, 55, 1.9 and 1.7; and Warren Malwitz Dairy, 119, 88%, 55, 1.8 and 1.6.

The Wayne Vettleson and Excel Dairy herds are milked three times a day. Percentage of the herd in milk is significant because herd averages are determined using all cows in the herd, not only those in production.

Community Service Center responds to community needs

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Life is uncertain, and as much as we try to steer it in the direction we want it to go, things happen. A strong wind, a wall of water or a spark gone out of control can change our course, leaving us, if only temporarily, wiped out.

Helping those is need is the mission the Community Service Center in Thief River Falls. Sponsored by the Seventh Day Adventist Church, the center has a more than 30-year history and is located at 1004 Tindolph Avenue South.

For the past seven years, Sarah Erickson has been the volunteer director of the center which can best be described as a thrift store, and the center's hours are from 1 to 5:30 p.m. on Mondays and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursdays. Beginning October 14, the center will also be open from 6 to 9 p.m. on Thursday evening.

Sarah is joined by a number of other volunteers, and in her last quarterly report, for the months of July, August and September, Sarah noted 23 volunteers who had logged 1,000 volunteer hours at the center. While some of these volunteers are members of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, others are caring members of the community. Workers from the Glenmore Halfway recovery House and Sentence to Serve program are also sometimes called on to help out with the center's heavier work.

The center is divided into two areas. Recently, the store portion of the center has been reorganized, and clothing has been sorted into categories for infants, boys, girls, men and women. Everything that can be hung on a hanger is found on free-standing racks and along the walls, and other items are located in labeled bins.

The other portion of the center is a workroom, and while the path that leads through the room is currently wide, Sarah refers to the area as the center's "obstacle course." At times the boxes of donated clothing and items that wait to be sorted are stacked to the ceiling and spill out into the walkway. "Sometimes," Sarah says, "we have to walk sideways to get through the room."

To say that the center is full is an understatement, and while most of the clothing is used, it is not unusual to find an item that still has its tags on it or has obviously never been worn.

Items are sold individually for a minimal price or by the box for $5, and Sarah's favorite line is, "If you fold it, roll it and stuff it, you can get twice as much in a box."

In addition to being a place for victims of disasters to quickly replace the items they need, the center is also a great place for those on fixed incomes to shop.

Everyone is welcome to shop there. Crafters will find clothing which can be cut into quilt squares, wool suit coats and vests which, with adornment, can be turned into one-of-a-kind garments, and a rack of ties which could be made into interesting throw pillows or quilts. "It's also a wonderful place to find a Halloween costume," Sarah says. Boxes of rags, handy for a variety of chores, are available for a donation.

Two ladies from the Seventh Day Adventist Church make baby quilts which, along with sleepers, are donated to the hospital, and jeans that are deemed unwearable are sent to a church in Karlstad where they are made into quilts and sent to other countries.

While for many years, everything at the center was given away, it was discovered that many folks prefer to pay something for the items they need, and business increased once minimal prices were places on the center's inventory. Revenue created at the center is used to help deter the cost of heating the building and pay other utilities and expenses.

Those who are unable to pay for their purchases only need say so. Representatives of social service agencies and those with vouchers or referrals from such agencies are allowed to take whatever they want or need at no charge.

In addition to clothing, the center also has what they call "household set-ups." These packages contain dishes, glassware, flatware, pots and pans, kitchen utensils, bedding, towels and other things needed to set up a household.

These set-ups are available for the asking to people who have lost their home in a fire, victims of domestic violence who have had to leave their homes in a hurry and others who have suddenly found themselves trying to set up housekeeping without the means to do so.

The items that are found at the center have been donated by people in Thief River Falls and the surrounding area, and approximately three and one-half to five tons of clothing are processed every two months.

Even with the center's vast inventory, Sarah and some of her volunteers know exactly what's there, and once an item has been there for two months without selling, it is removed and recycled.

Recycled clothing is packed in barrels and sent to Third World countries. Some is sent to the Red Lake Indian Reservation.

The center is also the distribution center for the popular "Coats for Kids" program, and since September 12, over 300 children's coats have been given away.

The community's response to the Community Service Center has increased in recent years, beginning with the flood in 1997 when over 19 tons of clothing poured into the center.

That year volunteer efforts had to be stepped up to match the response, and Sarah says, "I lost my summer." Every table in the Seventh Day Adventist school gymnasium was piled high with clothing. More tables were borrowed, and volunteers worked from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. six days a week for two months.

Sarah's volunteer titles extend beyond being the Community Service Center's director. For nine years she has received training as a disaster responder, and was recently certified as a disaster response trainer. Currently, as president of the Northwest Federation of Seventh Day Adventist Churches, she oversees 13 churches from Fergus Falls to the Canadian border that have centers like the one in Thief River Falls or Dorcas societies which are best described as welfare ministries. In Minnesota, the centers with the most activity are located in Bemidji, Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls. Sarah is also a member of the local Salvation Army unit.

Her work as a disaster responder has taken her to East Grand Forks and Grand Forks during the flood and to St. Peter after last year's devastating tornados. There, she listened to the heart-breaking stories of disaster victims and, when needed, lent a shoulder for them to cry on, and those stories are the ones she retells as she recruits volunteers.

Sarah Erickson is the volunteer director of the Community Service Center in Thief River Falls. Sponsored by the Seventh Day Adventist Church, the center can best be described as a thrift store with a mission of helping those in need.

Currently, the Community Service Center does not need clothing with the exception of items for large men and women. That, however, does not stop people from bringing clothing to the center. "Everyone knows where the entryway is," Sarah says.

Describing the boxes of donated items as an adventure, Sarah says, "You never know what treasures you will discover," and she reports that she has found everything from a mamma mouse in the midst of giving birth to brand new clothing articles.

Items that are in short supply and would be very welcome are silverware, pots and pans, bedding and towels that are used to create the set-up packages.

In one of Sarah's heart-warming stories, she tells of how Rev. Bob Dahlen of Goodridge, who serves on the Salvation Army board with her, once told his congregation that if they wanted to hear him preach the following Sunday, they would have to bring towels and bedding for the Community Service Center. The response to "linen" Sunday was so overwhelming that it left the center's volunteers in tears.

The past two years have brought the natural disasters that usually happen "somewhere else" to our back door. Witnessing the immediate effects of these disasters, Sarah Erickson says that she has discovered the truth in the Bible passage that tells us that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Judging by the community's response to the Community Service Center, so have scores of others.

The Family Service Center has a huge inventory of clothing, processing between three and one-half and five tons of clothing every two months. The center, sponsored by the Seventh Day Adventist Church, is located at 1004 Tindolph Ave. S. in Thief River Falls. The center is open on Mondays from 1 to 5:30 p.m. and on Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. As of October 14 the center's hours will be expanded to include Thursday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m.

OVERWHELMING!

No other word could describe my feelings about the outpouring of congratulations, well wishers, calls, letters, visits, cards, flowers and gifts received regarding my retirement as Editor of The Times and Northern Watch. I am both gratified and humbled by the multitude of kind comments I have received.

My sincerest thanks to those who participated in the dinner for Times' employees, their spouses, special guests and my family Thursday evening, and to the many who attended the open house reception Friday at Trinity Lutheran church. My special thanks to my wife Jan, our daughters Lori and Jeri, son Mark, sons-in-law, Steve Schwartz and Arne Espeseth and daughter-in-law Janelle Lundin for hosting the open house.

For 48 years I made my living with words and now, when I need them, I can't find any adequate to express the depth and magnitude of my appreciation. Let me simply say THANK YOU, THANK YOU, one and all for doing what you did, saying what you said and being who you are.

-Marv Lundin

Peer educators attend TAD camp

Thirty-three fifth grade peer educators and their teachers or parent volunteers from ten area schools participated in the TAD (Tobacco, Alcohol and Drug Use Prevention) Camp at Camp Minne-Wa-Kan near Cass Lake on September 23 and 24.

Speakers and presenters at camp included: Al Anton, Stephen School; Mark Kuleta, Cass Lake Schools; DeeAnn Leines, Red Lake County Extension Service; Nancy Maurstad, North Valley Home Health; Eric Mickelson, Goodridge School; and Jon Hunt, Bemidji Police Department.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES
Pumpkin and Shakin'

Shake up some fall fun with these nifty milk-carton shakers. To make one, paint an empty half-pint milk carton orange. When the paint is dry, place a handful of dried beans inside the carton. Cut several lengths of green curling ribbon; then tape one end of each length inside the carton top. Curl the lengths of ribbon to resemble vines. Staple two construction-paper leaves to the top of the carton while stapling the top shut. If desired, glue black construction-paper features or use a black marker on one side of the carton to create a jack-o'-lantern face. Now get your children shaking as they sing their Halloween favorites or the song below!

I'm Picking Out a Pumpkin
(Sung to the tune of "I'm Bringing Home a Baby Bumblebee")

I'm picking out a pumpkin
on a vine.
I want one big and fat and fine.
I'm picking out a pumpkin
on a vine.
Oh, I see mine!

I'm pulling on a pumpkin on a vine.
It's so big and fat and fine!
I'm pulling on a pumpkin on a vine.
Snap! It's mine!

All Children Are Different

Children grow at different rates. This is normal and healthy. But then how do you know if your child has a delay in some area of development? When you do detect a delay, how will you know if it is something that needs immediate attention, or if it can wait a while before intervention is necessary? That is what an early childhood screening can help you find out!

Early childhood screening is a service that is provided, at no charge, by the Thief River Falls school district. Minnesota requires all children to go through a health and development screening before entering public school, preferably between the ages of 3 1/2 and 4. The purpose of the screening is not to determine kindergarten readiness, but rather to identify delays in development (including vision, hearing and speech) or other factors which could interfere with the child's ability to learn. If you have a younger child and are concerned about his/her development, you may have him/her screened by requesting an appoint.

IF YOU HAVE A FOUR-YEAR-OLD CHILD WHO HAS NOT BEEN SCREENED, PLEASE CALL THE CHALLENGER PRESCHOOL AT 681-8670 AND MAKE AN APPOINTMENT! Screening clinics are held monthly throughout the school year.

(Contributed by the Early Childhood Family Education department of School District 564.)

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Prepare your child for the screening by talking about it. Tell your child that you are going to a special event for children. They will be weighed and measured, they will have their eyes and ears checked, and they will be asked to talk to an adult and "play some word games." Tell them that you will be with them the whole time.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

Disillusioned by high player salaries and whining owners who insist on taxpayer handouts, I haven't attended a Twins game in nearly ten years. I only went last weekend because I was given tickets.

The Twins played the White Sox. With Frank Thomas of the Sox in the dugout, there wasn't a better-than-average player on the field. Error-prone rookies and older players who seemed uninterested in the game muddled their way through the meaningless late-season contest.

The Twins made mistake after mistake, and were soon behind by ten runs. No merciful ten-run-rule in the big leagues, so the torment continued for all nine innings.

But I had a great time. Baseball is still a beautiful game, even when played half-heartedly. I didn't keep track of the score. Instead, my eyes wandered to parts of the game you don't see on television.

First base umpire Joe Brinkman, one of the least popular umpires in the game, was a stone's throw away from our seats. I watched him closely to see if his mind was on the game. He seemed pretty bored.

Sure enough, Brinkman got plunked on the arm by a screaming line drive. He let out a string of profanity worthy of Billy Martin. If he had been paying attention at all, he could have dodged the bullet.

Marty Cordova, the Twins, rightfielder, appeared equally bored. He barely prepared for each pitch, and managed to make three costly mental mistakes.

Once he threw to the wrong base, another time he dropped a ball, and a third time, he and the centerfielder waited for each other to pick up the ball while the White Sox runners circled the bases. He has his millions, and no longer cares.

I had a good view of Twins, manager Tom Kelly in the dugout, and he wasn't happy. Poor man. Kelly sneaks down the clubhouse hallway for a few puffs between half-innings, something else you don't see on television. Players like Cordova have probably only worsened his habit. Cordova has talent, but I bet Kelly would take a scrappy Dan Gladden-style player over Cordova any day.

We were seated where many foul balls were hit. It was fun to see the big men chase after the souvenirs, only to turn them over to the nearest child out of guilt for running the kid over on the way to the ball.

It was a pleasant way to spend an evening. It would have been even better if the dome had been removed, for outside the sky was clear and the moon was full. Real grass and open sky would have made the experience richer, no matter how badly the Twins lost.

Bethany Lutheran church receives matching funds

Bethany Lutheran Church of rural Thief River Falls recently received $450 from Lutheran Brotherhood, a fraternal benefit society, through the society's congregational matching funds program.

Lutheran Brotherhood matched the amount that the congregation raised through Farmer's Market, which took place on September 11.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Funnies for Today

Always good for a laugh are the notes written on patient medical charts. The following notes are supposedly the actual, unedited notes from patient charts:

Patient has chest pain if she lies on her left side for over a year.

On the second day the knee was better and on the third day it disappeared completely

The patient has been depressed ever since she began seeing me in 1993.

The patient is tearful and crying constantly. She also appears to be depressed.

Discharge status: Alive but without permission.

Healthy appearing decrepit 69-year-old male, mentally alert but forgetful.

The patient has no past history of suicides

Patient's past medical history has been remarkably insignificant with only a 40 pound weight gain in the past three days.

Patient had waffles for breakfast and anorexia for lunch.

She is numb from her toes down.

While in the ER, she was examined, x-rated and sent home.

The skin was moist and dry.

Occasional, constant, infrequent headaches.

Patient was alert and unresponsive.

Rectal exam revealed a normal sized thyroid.

She states that she had been constipated for most of her life until she got a divorce.

I saw your patient today, who is still under our car for physical therapy.

The patient was to have a bowl resection. However, he took a job as a stockbroker instead.

Skin: Somewhat pale but present.

Patient was seen in consultation by Dr. Blank, who felt we should sit on the abdomen and I agree.

Patient has two teenage children, but no other abnormalities.

Large, brown stool ambulating in the hall.

John Sylvester, Lincoln High School

Every year at Lincoln High School, activities are planned for the week of homecoming. These activities include a coronation, dress-up days, and a pep fest. This year the theme was "Kick Off Into The Millennium." I chose this week to write the column for The Times because no one else wanted it. I think it will be easy. I'm going to give you an idea of what was going on last week.

Monday was dress up day and coronation. This is always a good time for two reasons. One, we have 45 minute classes in order to fit in coronation, and second, I think everyone has a good time cheering for their friends when they get called as attendants. Some of my friends got reprimanded for cheering too loudly, but I don't think it phased them much. We just kept on cheering for Luke Doetha.

Tuesday was pajama day, and again I answered the call to dress up. I think this is my favorite day (aside from game day, of course) because it's the only day when I can roll out of bed, pat my hair down a little, and come to school. I even brought my teddy bear, Littlefoot.

Wednesday was camouflage day. I think more of the guys dress up for this day because hunting clothes are about the most expensive pieces of attire that a teenage boy owns. It's only fitting that we'd want to wear them to school, right?

Thursday was backwards/inside out day. This day can always get crazy. The point is to wear everything backwards or inside out. Teenagers can get pretty creative, and I think we showed that on Thursday. Let's just say it takes a lot of guts to wear your boxers outside your jeans.

Ah, Friday! Friday was spirit day. It was also the day of the game. To me, this is what homecoming is all about. All week, my thoughts have been on this game. Last year, we played Virginia, and we smoked them 50-0. But this year we have Bemidji, and we're not playing the sisters of the poor here. They have a good team, and we're going to have to play some good football to beat them.

Friday was also the night of the dance. The football game started at six so that everyone could go home to get ready for the dance. In my opinion dressing up is fun, but I don't think it is fun or wise to blow a lot of money on one night. Honestly, I think the idea of a formal homecoming dance is directed more towards the girls. Most of my friends are more concerned with spending as little money as possible than with how they look. I, for one, am proud of my $15 outfit.

Y2K workshop for farms and agri-business

Many of the Y2K problems affecting agriculture will be similar to what other businesses face. Others will be unique to the ag industry. Everyone immediately thinks about computers and software where dates are used, but there are many other operations that could be affected.

The University of Minnesota Extension Service is sponsoring five state workshops on Y2K aimed specifically at Agri-business.

The workshop for this area is scheduled for Wednesday, October 20 at the Best Western, Highway 32 South, Thief River Falls. The workshop begins with registration at 8:30 a.m. and concludes at noon. Pre-registration is requested by calling 1-800-367-5363; the workshop may be cancelled if fewer than 10 register. There is a $10.00 fee per business, payable at the door.

Embedded computer chips pose one of the major Y2K risks to agribusiness. That's because we find such microchips in virtually every part of the business. If a Real Time Clock (RTC) is present in an embedded chip, there could be a problem even if the clock is not being used. If an older Personal Computer, which is not Y2K ready, is controlling equipment, there could also be problems related to it.

Electronic scales pose a major potential problem. Several models of the popular Toledo truck scales have been identified as not being Y2K ready, as well as different types of scales from other manufacturers. Other pieces of equipment having a high possibility of problems are grain drying equipment and crop storage ventilation systems. Many grain legs contain PLC's which monitor for overheating. Microprocessors are also used in: moisture testers, feed mixing equipment, security systems, alarm systems for fire, smoke and heat; and electrical load controllers.

Be prepared. Call now to reserve a spot at this workshop. Any concerned agri-business operator, board member, or farmer is invited to attend. Questions? Call the Pennington County Extension Office at 683-7030.

Fall seeded canola meetings scheduled

University of Minnesota and the Minnesota Canola Council are organizing two informational meetings on fall seeded canola. All are welcome to attend.

One meeting will be held Wednesday September 29, in the Hallock Courthouse meeting room from 9:30-11:30 a.m., and a second meeting on Wednesday September 29, in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium from 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Planting crops in the fall has shown to have many benefits. It helps to spread out the workload in the spring, allows for a longer growing season, possible reduction in weed pressure, and earlier harvest timing. This has been the case when producers have planted winter wheat or rye.

We have past the prime seeding time for winter wheat, but what about canola? Research has, and is, being done in Canada on fall seeding canola. Previously this has been done by planting unprotected canola seed right before freeze up. But this type of seeding can be risky if you misjudge the weather and a warm up occurs. If you have premature germination in the fall, all is lost. There is a new product out called Extender which helps to make fall seeding less of a risk in canola production. The product is applied to the seed coat. It prevents unwanted fall germination for up to 21 days and allows early spring germination to take place when the conditions are favorable. Use of this product can give the grower a larger planting window in the fall.

There are still many factors to consider before fall seeding of canola will work.

1) Field selection is a key. Seed directly into standing stubble or minimum tilled fields. Proper residue management is important for a good seed bed.

2) Avoid fields that are prone to surface crusting.

3) Choose fields that are well drained with no chance of spring pooling of water.

4) Have a weed control system in place. A fall application of glyphosate can be very helpful. Seed companies may only sell Roundup Ready varieties with the Extender seed treatment.

5) Plant at normal seeding rates and make sure seed is planted 1/2" to 1" deep. Do not broadcast seed

6) Fertilize for selected yield goal by following recommendations from a soil test.

7) Be sure to work closely with seed companies that sell Extender treated seed regarding replant policies and other requirements.

What to look for in the spring from fall seeded canola:

A) Watch emergence of plants. A spring frost is always a possibility and may damage plants. But remember that canola can branch to make up for a smaller plant count.

B) Crop height of fall seeded canola is generally shorter by 10-20 percent.

C) Plant development should be farther along so the heat and stress of June won't affect flowering, and harvest will be two to three weeks earlier.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: The county Social Services has for several years paid my Medicare insurance premium. Now, all of a sudden, I am being billed for the premium by Social Security. What gives?

A: County social services can choose to pay the Medicare (Part B) premium for their medical assistance (Medicaid) clients that are also eligible for Medicare. When this is done, the county notifies the social security Administration and premium bills are sent to the county instead of being paid by the client. When the county decides to stop paying the premium the client, in this case you, again becomes responsible for the premium cost and it is usually deducted directly from the monthly Social Security benefit. Local SSA offices are not part of the process and we cannot tell you why the county social services either starts or ends payment of your Medicare premium. You should contact your county caseworker.

Q: Why does the Social Security benefit for my friend and me come on different days of the month?

A: In 1997, the Social Security Administration started staggering benefit delivery dates, by both paper check and electronic fund transfer, to spread workloads through the month. This helps the agency, the Treasury department, financial institutions and the Post Office balance workloads rather than concentrating a lot of activity during the first week. Anyone who was receiving Social Security benefits before this change continues to have benefits payable on the third of a month.

People starting benefits since May of 1977 have their birthday determine the payment delivery date. For example, those with a birthday from the first to the 10th of a month will have benefits payable on the second Wednesday of the month, birth dates from the 11th to the 20th have benefits payable on the third Wednesday, and those born on the 21st through 31st will have benefits paid on the fourth Wednesday. For the most part, these benefit payment dates apply to those eligible based upon their own work record. Variations will appear for those eligible on more than one work record and for those clients also on the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program.

Q. My husband just died, and I understand that the check coming next month will have to go back to the Social Security Administration. We used direct deposit so the money will go right into the bank. What is the best way to return the money?

A. One of the requirements for receiving a Social Security check for any given month is that the person must be alive throughout the month. This means that a person who dies during the month, even on the last day, is not due a check for that month.

Since SSA checks are paid after the month is over, it is easy to tell if a check is payable. For example, if a person dies on August 17, the check for August which comes in September must be returned. If the person dies on September 1, the check for August would be payable because the person had been alive all through the month of August.

A check is either due or it is not; prorating of the benefit is not done. Since you and your husband use direct deposit, the best and easiest method to return his check would be for the bank to electronically returned the funds directly to the Treasury Department. If the bank does not do this, the Treasury Department will eventually reclaim the check directly from the bank which will take it from your account. If a direct deposit was not used, you should return his paper check to your local SSA office and be given a receipt for it.

On a very much related but separate issue, upon being notified of your husband's death, your local SSA office reviews the record of yourself and your husband to see if you could receive a higher benefit as a widow than whatever you were receiving to this point. If widow or widower benefits are payable, they would be effective for the month of death no matter what the actual date of death was. Worth noting is that local funeral homes across the country are very helpful to the SSA in notifying local offices of a death. In many circumstances, such as when the surviving widow(er) was already receiving benefits as a wife (husband) there is often no paperwork required to change benefit amounts from wife (husband) to widow(er).

If you have any questions about Social Security benefits or to file for benefits, call the national SSA toll-free number at 1-800-772-1213.

Phone customers have quality concerns; prefer choice

Most people responding to a survey conducted by the Minnesota Department of Commerce are either very satisfied or somewhat satisfied with their local phone company — but almost half have complained about the service they receive.

Of those surveyed at the Minnesota State Fair:

- 49 percent had contacted their local phone company to complain about the quality of service — and 58 percent of those indicated that they were not satisfied with the company's response.
- 65 percent of survey respondents would prefer the option of choosing local phone service from more than one company.

"These results further demonstrate the need for a consumer oriented and competitive telecommunications marketplace," said Commerce Commissioner Steve Minn. "Telephone companies in Minnesota must have a level playing field if they are to offer consumers real options for local phone service."

The Department of Commerce, along with the Departments of Planning, Administration, and Trade and Economic Development are in the process of developing a strategic plan for telecommunications. The plan will focus on regulatory reform, establishment of a competitive environment, and measures to ensure access to basic and advanced services for all Minnesota consumers. It will be released later this year.

The unscientific survey was conducted during the State Fair using interactive technology at the Department of Public Service booth. There was no respondent selection process. Participants were invited to answer nine questions about phone service.

The Department of Commerce regulates the financial services industries in Minnesota including insurance, state chartered banks, securities and real estate. It also regulates the energy and telecommunications industries as a result of the merger with the Department of Public Service.

A boat and decoys were all that the local chapter of the Minnesota Waterfowl Association needed to make its point in the Goose Festival parade in Middle River on Saturday. Although the temperatures were a bit nippy, many community members turned out to watch and participate in the parade and other festivities.

First National Bank of Middle River used an anniversary theme for its float in Middle River's Goose Fest Parade on Saturday, October 2. The Miss Middle River Pageant was held for the 25th consecutive year.

Federal disaster loans available for small businesses

According to Edward Daum, Small Business Administration (SBA) Minnesota district director, federal disaster loans are now available from the U.S. SBA Disaster Assistance Program for small nonfarm agriculture-dependent businesses in the counties of Beltrami, Kittson, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau and the contiguous counties of Cass, Clearwater, Hubbard, Itasca Mahnomen, Norman and St. Louis which were economically impacted due to losses caused by heavy snowfall, excessive rainfall, flooding and a hailstorm that occurred from April 1, 1999 and continuing.

SBA Disaster Area Director Michael C. Allen compares this disaster designation with similar action taken by the Secretary of Agriculture to help farmers in these counties. "Farmers are not eligible to apply to the SBA," said Allen, "but nurseries are eligible for economic injury caused by drought conditions."

Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDLs) provide working capital to small businesses so that they can continue to pay bills and meet normal operating expenses. Maximum loans to a business of up to $1.5 million are available at four percent interest with loan terms up to 30 years. SBA determines eligibility for the program based on the size and type of business and its financial resources.

Loan applications and program information are available by calling toll-free at 1-800-359-2227. The Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) and speech impaired number is (404) 347-3751. Applications are also available by writing to: Area 2 - Disaster Assistance Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, One Baltimore Place, Suite 300, Atlanta, GA 30308.

The deadline for all economic injury applications is May 16, 2000.

Cross wind runway is justified

dize the airport to the tune of $154,000 this year. In addition, he said he would like to know if industry was willing to support the cost of the runway. As he sees it, a crosswind runway would be nice, but wonders whether it is really necessary.

Jim Burkholder, a local resident who regularly attends council meetings, asked how much more it would cost to operate the airport with a crosswind runway.

Albjerg said it would be necessary to hire one more full-time individual. Five years out, the city might face some crack repair, and 10 to 12 years down the road, probably some more major work. But it was noted that as a result of the added crosswind runway, the city would qualify for more assistance from the state.

Ron Lindberg, public works director said the $154,000 Wennberg mentioned included cost for this study, and $38,000 for land acquisition, and engineering fees. He said the city would look at a number of options to support operating costs, including raising landing fees.

Cost of a crosswind runway are just guesses at this time, but Lindberg said it could be as much as $2 million. Of the $2 million, the FAA would pick up 90 percent of the cost.

The council approved application for DNR grant funding to improve the Sportsman's Club shooting range.

Vern Cleven explained that law enforcement officials use the shooting range for required training. If the city receives the grant funding, the Sportsman's Club would agree to allow use of the club for any length of time. Cleven said the application is for up to $20,000 and it would require a one to one match from the city. The county could also be a part of the grant application. If the council and city are applicants, each would be required to come up with about $7,000, which could be in the form of in-kind work.

The council gave its authorization to proceed with application for the grant funds.

Bryan Malone of the Pennington County Soil and Water conservation District presented a proposal on outlet repairs for County Ditch #1. Malone explained that the county, city and district would participate in the project that would stabilize County Ditch 1. The total estimated project cost was $12,000. The city's share of the project would involve providing and delivering rock.

The council approved an amendment to the city's safety program contract with MMUA Northwest Compliance Group. Mayor Mark Borsheim said he did not disagree that the program was good, but still wants the safety committee to explore opportunities.

In other business, the council: approved a salary and benefit adjustment for the city administrator for 1999 and 2000, approved a salary adjustment for the accountant/personnel position effective January 1, 1999, approved a dance permit application for The Undertakers for October 15 at the Armory, approved an increase in the chief election judges base compensation from $20 to $30 for election day services, approved a heat share agreement with the Salvation Army for fiscal year September 1 to August 31, approved designating October 2-9 as the 13th annual Public Power Week; approved a final pay request to Hobbs, Inc for the airport fuel farm project; approved a time extension for the 1999 Street Improvement project (Davidson Construction) to October 9 for substantial completion and October 15 for final completion.

Construction at the future site of the American Legion Post in Thief River Falls began last week. Site preparation was completed last August and September. Officials hope to be in the building sometime in January. Contractors hired to complete the project, which is located across from the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center, include Ram Construction, Fynboh Concrete, Rud Construction, Hallock Plumbing, Bergstrom Electric, and Brodin's. Bob Flynn, project chair, said they were pleased with the bids, and donations, but they are still in need of donations. Flynn said he thinks the community will be proud of it once it has been completed.

Where did those township names come from?

of Pennington County share their names with a township and city respectively. The Black river's name alludes to the dark color of the water from eroding the peat soil of its banks.

The origin of the name of the Thief river has several legends attached to it, but the one which appears most likely is associated with the relations of the Chippewa and Sioux in that "the latter, although slowly forced from the northern part of the state, managed to cling to the best wild rice beds and were able to extract a tribute from the Chippewa for rice harvested. This arrangement naturally irked the Chippewa and the warfare between the tribes over a long period may be traced largely to this rivalry for control of the wild rice crops. At that time wild rice was a staple food for Indians in the state. The account of how the name actually came to be told by R. I. Holcombe is generally accepted as most likely.

"Practically ever after their advent into the county, the Chippewa continued to hold northwestern Minnesota against the Sioux. But for a number of years after the Chippewa occupation a camp of 10 tepees of Sioux remained on the upper Thief river and succeeded in evading and escaping the guns and tomahawks of their hereditary enemies. The surrounding hunting grounds were so rich and wild rice was so plentiful that life was easily lived, and they did not wish to leave the locality. They built a high embankment of earth around their camp and took every means in their power to conceal themselves from their merciless foes. In hunting they would not discharge guns because of the loud noise, but used their bows and arrows in killing game.

"At last they were discovered by their relentless enemies. The Crees and Assiniboines of the Pembina and Devils Lake regions made a treaty with the Yankton and Sisseton Sioux and a short term of peace resulted. During the deliberations of this treaty, the Crees learned of the existence of the isolated Sioux band and the locality of its camp. When the peace period closed, some Crees gave the information to their Chippewa relatives, and the latter, from the Red lake area, soon raised a war party and marched upon the hidden Sioux. A total surprise was made, and after a brave but unavailing defense, the ten lodges, and all their inmates, were totally destroyed. The embankment or breastwork of earth which once surrounded the little Sioux village was plain to be seen in 1852. Information of this affair was gathered from Wa-non-je-quon, then chief of Red Lake, whose father helped destroy the Sioux.

"From the hiding place and secret occupation of the Sioux on the little river, the Chippewa afterward called it Ke-moja-ke Se-be, or Secret Place River, but the French traders and coureurs pronounced Ke-moja-ke as Ke-modn-ke, which means 'stealing.' Then the stream began to be called Stealing River and Thief River, and by the latter name, it is laid down on Nicollet's map of 1842 and is still so called."

Red Lake and the waterways to which its name is given, Red Lake river crossing this county and the Red river on the west boundary of the state are explained in Upham's book based on the writings of Fr. Gilfillan, who was a missionary to the Ojibways of northwestern Minnesota from 1873 to 1898. He wrote in 1885 that the Ojibway name of this lake was 'Misquagumiwi Sagaigun,' Red Water Lake. Originally he wasn't sure whether this name referred to 'reddish fine gravel or sand along the shore in places, which in storms gets wrought into the water near the edges,' or to the reddish color of streams flowing into the lake from bogs on its north side, probably reddened by bog iron ore. He later wrote, however, in a letter of February 1899, that these are erroneous conjectures of some of the Ojibways, and that he had obtained more reliable information, so that he could then confidently state the origin of this name, as follows: "Red Lake is so called from color of the lake (reflecting the redness of sunset) on a calm summer evening. When unruffled by wind and in a glassy state, at which times it is of a distinctly wine color. . . it is not called Red Lake from any battle fought on its shores."

Upham adds that "Red Lake and Red River appear with these names, in French, on the map by Verendrye (1737) and Bauche's map (1754); and the lake is so named on the somewhat later maps of Jeffreys and Carver. From information obtained during his travels in Minnesota in 1766 and 1767, Carver mapped Red Lake and the Red Lake River, giving them exactly their present names. Their earliest delineation, however, from personal examination, was by Thompson (in 1813-14) who, in April, 1798, reached Red Lake, coming by way of the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers, and thence going onward to Turtle and Cass lakes."

by Rep. Jim Tunheim

Each year in an effort to teach young people about state government, the Minnesota House of Representatives sponsors a High School Page program for high school juniors. The deadline to apply for this program during the 2000 Legislative Session is Nov 2, 1999. The High School Page program allows high school juniors an opportunity to learn about the legislative process by spending a week at the State Capitol observing committee meetings, assisting representatives during daily sessions in the House Chamber, participating in seminars, and meeting members of the legislative, executive and judicial branches of state government. Some other skills they are exposed to include: developing leadership by learning how committees are conducted; objectivity when discussing issues; and insights on how to make a positive difference in their respective schools and communities. Other highlights for the students are visits to the Minnesota History Center, St. Paul City Hall, and other places of interest.

The High School Pages are supervised by House employees. It is assumed that students who participate as High School Pages will be mature, responsible, and actively willing to abide by the rules of the Page program, protocol of the House Chamber, guidelines for meeting with key state officials, and to work.

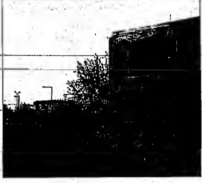
During their week at the Capitol, each page will serve from 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday, 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to noon, Friday. High School Pages receive a stipend that is mailed to them shortly after they complete the program to help defray the costs for lodging and meals. Proper housing arrangements should be made before the participant arrives in St. Paul. The Educational Programs office has secured reduced rates for pages to stay at the Kelly Inn, the hotel located nearest the Capitol Complex. Pages may also stay with relatives or friends in the Twin Cities.

Applications for the program are available from high school counselors, or by contacting Andrew Curter, the House Educational Programs Coordinator, at (651) 296-7452 or andrew.carter@house.leg.state.mn.us. Students will be able to indicate which weeks they are able to participate. Because a large number of students apply from all Minnesota school districts, participants will be selected by lottery per legislative district. Once all participant spots are filled, an alternate from each district will be selected.

Schools may allow up to five students from their junior class to apply. Only one student from each legislative district will be chosen to participate in accordance with House rules. Pages and alternates selected will be notified by mail at their houses the week of Dec. 6, 1999. Special instructions for confirming will be enclosed at that time.

I would like to encourage all eligible students from our region to look into this program. Spending a week in St. Paul at the State Capitol will give you a better understanding of state government and its importance. Any student or parent with questions about this program can contact me at Box 66, Kennedy, MN 56733, rep.jim.tunheim@house.leg.state.mn.us or 218-674-4480.

In the last few weeks a huge crane operated by Kraus Anderson has been hovering over Northwest Medical Center. Demolition on that side of the hospital is nearing completion and renovation about to begin.



Kraus Anderson Construction is in the process of completing demolition of two floors on the west end and south sides of Northwest Medical Center. Actual renovation will begin in the near future. Eventually, the second floor will be the hospital beds, and the first floor will be Altru Clinic.

Minnesota charitable giving tax relief act becomes law

According to the Minnesota Council of Non-Profits, Minnesota gets the honors for another "first" - passage of a state level tax deduction for non-itemizers. Legislators included the Charitable Giving Tax Relief in the 1999 Tax Bill and it is now a permanent part of the Minnesota Tax Code. Two years of energetic efforts on the part of non-profits led to this landmark legislation.

Minnesotans give generously because they believe in the work that non-profits do in our communities. Now donors really do get a tax deduction for their contributions even if they are non-itemizers and use the short form when filing tax returns.

Now that the Charitable Giving Relief Act is law, what does it do? Now the Minnesota Tax Code provides a 50 percent tax deduction for non-itemizers for charitable contributions over $500. After an individual or couple who are non-itemizers donates over $500 in money or goods to any combination of charities, additional contributions are eligible for the 50 percent deduction. For instance: a couple that donates $1,000 to non-profits in 1999 will be able to deduct 50 percent of everything over $500. So that taxpayer would get a $250 deduction from his or her taxable income.

Which non-profits are eligible charities? Any 501 (c)(3) is an eligible organization. This means that contributions to any public charity, including churches, synagogues, mosques can receive contributions that make the donor eligible for the tax deduction.

What do taxpayers need to do to claim the deduction? Taxpayers should save receipts for goods and monetary contributions. Tax forms for 1999 and for all subsequent years will include instructions and a line where non-itemizers can report their charitable giving for the year. Add up all donations and follow directions for reporting the amounts to adjust taxable income.

The Minnesota Council of Non-Profits says that non-profits appreciate the strong legislative support that this measure has had in Minnesota. The non-profit sector worked together for this victory and shares great pride in this public policy change. Now organizations have a significant opportunity to encourage increased giving and raise resources that strengthen our ability to provide programs and services in a wide range of areas that touch peoples lives and strengthen communities: human services, arts, education, health, environment and civic participation.

Bemidji linebacker Tim Westlie limited Thief River Falls tight end Brett Johnson to a 3-yard gain after a pass reception from Brad Bulger during Friday's high school football game at Prowler Field. Thief River Falls celebrated homecoming with a 13-10 win.

Prowlers beat Jacks 13-10

Fans on hand for Friday's high school football game matching Thief River Falls and Bemidji had to wonder why this once traditional series was ever discontinued. The two teams played each other every year from 1928 through 1989 before separating. They reconciled in 1997, and the third meeting in the revived rivalry might have been one of the best ever. That the Prowlers celebrated homecoming with a 13-10 win certainly made it seem that way to Thief River Falls head coach Jeff Mumm.

"That was an outstanding football game," said Mumm. "It was one of the best football games I've been a part of in a long, long time. From start to finish the intensity was at a very high level. Both teams played very well."

The win boosted the Prowlers to 4-1. The Lumberjacks are at the other end of the spectrum at 1-4, but the losses have come at the hands of Brainerd, Moorhead, Detroit Lakes, and now Thief River Falls.

Bemidji's offense had some early success, with a first-possession drive that reached the Thief River Falls 9-yard line before a fourth-and-three netted just one yard, and a second-possession march that ended on a 1-yard quarterback sneak for a touchdown by Robbie Johnson. Mike Crawford added the conversion kick.

Thief River Falls, after stopping the initial Bemidji threat, went no where on offense, and gave the ball right back to the Lumberjacks, who had to cover just 32 yards in six plays to score with two minutes left in the first quarter.

The Prowlers responded with a switch in offensive strategy that proved highly effective in a 16-play, 80-yard, game-tying drive. Stopped cold on the inside, Thief River Falls went wide. Brian Loe and Nick Drees both had 10-yard runs with quick pitches, and quarterback Brod Bulger turned a third-and-nine into a first down at the Bemidji 20 with a 14-yard gain on a swing pass to tight end Brett Johnson.

Another pitch to Drees, who bounced off a couple of would-be tacklers on a third down 9-yard gain, was followed two plays later by a 2-yard touchdown run from Loe, who sliced off left tackle with 7:38 left in the first half. Bailey Nordin's kick made it 7-7.

"They were jammed in so tight defensively, we had to try some different things on offense," explained Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "We tried to spread things out a little bit."

It was a strategy that helped provide the Prowlers with a 13-7 halftime edge with a final-minute touchdown.

After forcing a Bemidji punt that carried to the Thief River Falls 44 with 2:27 remaining, the Prowlers moved quickly downfield on a 13-yard Bulger pass to Loe on the right side, a pitch to Drees that netted 8 yards and a sweep by Drees that carried the ball to the 18.

The next snap wound up being the game-winning play as Bulger dropped back, looked at two other receivers before finding Loe behind a pair of Bemidji defensive backs in the deep right corner of the end zone. A perfect throw and an over-the-shoulder catch made it 13-7 with 57 seconds remaining.

"That was the second time on that drive Brod checked off," noted Mumm. "He went 1-2-3 looking for a receiver. He did a tremendous job. He made a big step forward as a quarterback tonight."

A low snap on the extra point attempt threw the timing off and resulted in the the kick being blocked.

It was an almost fatal mistake.

Bemidji was impressive with an 18-play drive that ate up the first 7:52 of the second half. But after an 11-yard Johnson pass to Ryan Johnson gave the Lumberjacks a first down at the Prowlers' 16, the Thief River Falls defense dug in, putting the visitors in a fourth-and-seven situation at the 13.

Crawford drilled a 30-yard field goal at that point to chop the difference to 13-10.

"Our defense bent, but didn't break," pointed out Mumm. "We gave up some yards at times, but we stopped them when we had to."

Crawford was later given a chance to tie the game. First carry of the night for Mikal Peterson was a 39-yard, tackle-breaking run through the middle that went to the Thief River Falls 14 near the midway mark of the fourth quarter. The Lumberjacks reached the 10 before a holding penalty and two incomplete passes led to a 47-yard field goal attempt with 4:41 on the clock. Crawford's kick was strong, but sailed just outside the left upright.

A fumble recovery by Bemidji's Adam Sorenson at the Thief River Falls 32 with 3:56 remaining gave the Lumberjacks another opportunity to challenge the Prowlers' lead. But another key penalty, an illegal procedure call on a third-and-one from the 23, forced the attack to the air. A third down pass was dropped and Johnson was forced to scramble to escape a fourth down rush that led to an incompletion.

Final Bemidji hope for another crack at the end zone evaporated when, faced with a fourth-and-11 from their own 26, the Prowlers retained possession on a roughing-the-kicker penalty with just 1:03 to play.

"It was a classy football game," offered Mumm. "Both teams played hard, but they respected each other. It was a fun game to play."

Playoff spot is on the line

■ Northland, Itasca football showdown Thursday

The playoffs will arrive early for Northland and Itasca Thursday when they meet in a 7 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference football game at Prowler Field. The stakes are high, with the winner clinching a post-season spot and the loser being eliminated from playoff contention.

Both teams will still have a regular season game to play after this week's showdown, but it won't get them into the playoffs without a Thursday victory.

With a 4-1 record, and a 14-0 lead two minutes into Thursday's game against Vermilion at Ely, Northland had a hand on the door that led to the playoffs. But the Ironmen slammed it in their face with a come-from-behind 30-20 win.

Two game-opening Vermilion fumbles led to a pair of Scott Olsen touchdown runs for the Pioneers. But the turnovers became infectious, with Northland losing five of them and Vermilion four.

"They gave us the ball at the start, but then we started to do it," pointed out Northland coach Dan Willoughby. "You can't keep turning the ball over to a big, physical team like Vermilion and expect to get away with it."

In addition to losing the scoreboard battle, the Pioneers also suffered a physical beating. By game's end Northland had lost four offensive starters to injuries, including quarterback Ben Mosack (shoulder), center Jason Cummings (concussion), tackle Pete Mooney (knee), and tight end Dan Zubich Jr. (shoulder).

"The injuries are really catching up to us," said Willoughby. We're kind of scrambling to fill positions on offense right now. We had to do it on defense before."

With the personnel losses, a Northland team that had racked up 614 yards of offense in a 50-43 win over Hibbing the previous week was limited to 164 yards against Vermilion.

Biggest challenge facing the Pioneers this week, according to Willoughby, is to defense Itasca quarterback Kevin Jordan, who leads the Northern Division in total offense.

The Pioneers, if they beat the Vikings, will not only have a playoff spot locked up, they could go on to win the Northern Division title and gain a more favorable post-season draw, with a victory in the regular season finale the following week against Mesabi Range in Virginia.

Nordics win MCC tournament

Championship trophy in the annual Marshall County Central Invitational high school volleyball tournament stayed in Newfolden Saturday as the host Nordics beat Stephen-Argyle 12-15, 15-9, 15-5 in the finals of the six-team event.

The champions reached the finals with pool play wins over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 15-6, 15-10 and Kittson County North 15-3, 15-8.

However, a title-winning outing that improved the Nordics' overall record to 12-3 wasn't enough to impress Marshall County Central Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We did enough to win," he said. "It wasn't very impressive volleyball. We were just kind of sleep-walking through the first two matches. We started coming out of it after the first game of the finals – when we had to."

There were some bright spots, acknowledged Jorgenson. "We did some good things throughout the tournament, but we just didn't do it very consistently," he explained. "We did get a chance to see all of our kids play, and some of them had good individual performances, at times."

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke wound up with a 1-2 tournament showing. The Wolverines beat Tri-County to start the day, but fell to Stephen-Argyle in their second pool play start, and lost to Warren-Alvarado-Oslo in the third place match – results that put them at 7-8 for the year.

TRF leads 8AAAA football standings

A single point separates the top three teams in the Section 8AAAA high school football standings heading into the final three weeks of the 1999 regular season schedule.

Thief River Falls, Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls are all 4-1. The Prowlers lead the point standings that will be used to determine post-season positions with 37, while the Lakers and Otters both have 36.

The Prowlers will face the Lakers and Otters on the road the next two weeks – Friday games at Detroit Lakes Oct. 8 and at Fergus Falls Oct. 15.

"First place is a nice position to be in," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. We'll take it. But we have a couple of dandy games coming up. Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls have been the highest-ranked teams from our section all year. We're going to have our hands full."

Thief River Falls ends the regular season Wednesday, Oct. 20, at home against East Grand Forks.

In Section 8AAAA, teams play for varying amount of points, based upon school size. You pick up 10 points for a win, or 2 points for a loss, against 5A opponents; 9 points for a win, or 1 point for a loss against 4A teams; 8 points for a win vs. 3A competition; and 7 points for a win over teams in Class 2A or below.

Section 8AAAA has seven teams, giving the regular season points leader a first round playoff bye. The second, third and fourth place teams host quarterfinal games Tuesday, Oct. 26. Semifinals will be played at the site of the No. 1 seed and the highest seeded quarterfinal winner Saturday, Oct. 30. Championship game will be played Thursday, Nov. 4, at the Fargodome.

"Our goal is to host a playoff game," said Mumm.

Detroit Lakes knocked Fergus Falls from the ranks of the unbeaten Friday, 25-20. It was another in a series of close games for the Lakers, who opened the year with a 19-14 win over Sartell, dropped an 18-16 decision to Albany, edged Litchfield 25-21, and beat Bemidji 39-21 before stopping the No. 4-ranked Otters.

Swim title won by TRF girls

Personal best times, pool records and a team title were recorded by the Thief River Falls girls Saturday at the Bagley/Fosston/Clearbrook-Gonvick Invitational high school swim meet.

The Prowlers edged the host school 315-314 for team honors in a meet that went down to the final race. Detroit Lakes finished third with 192 points, followed by Staples-Motley/Verndale/Wadena-Deer Creek with 178, Roseau 157, Crookston 74, Perham 64, and Fargo Shanley 8.

Julie Chrzanowski, Andi Sorvig, Kristin Naplin, and Chelsea Haviland turned in a season-best and set a Fosston pool record while winning the meet-ending 400 freestyle relay in 3:59.49. That, coupled with a sixth place showing by the Thief River Falls B team of Dani Sorvig, Carli Cota, Kendra Mooney, and Jenny Heaton (all eighth and ninth graders), produced just enough points to put the Prowlers on top in the team scoring.

Thief River Falls coach Mary Helen Houlihan confessed later she didn't think the Prowlers had enough points to win the meet until the totals were announced over the loudspeaker. A shriek from the Prowlers confirmed it. "We had an excellent meet," she said. "All of our swimmers contributed to this win. They displayed teamwork, excellent stroke technique, and a hunger to win."

Other Thief River Falls meet highlights:

■ Haviland, pool records with a 1:11.44 in the 100 breaststroke and a 2:26.08 in the 200 individual medley.

■ Naplin, a pool record, personal best 1:08.74 in the 100 backstroke.

■ Chrzanowski, second in the 100 butterfly with a personal best 1:10.83.

■ Pool record 1:48.29 by Naplin, Haviland, Andi Sorvig, and Cami Hendrickson in the 200 freestyle relay.

■ Jenny Sorvig, personal best 1:14.41 in the backstroke.

■ Andrea Olin, third place in the 500 freestyle with a 6:15.33.

Thief River Falls is 3-0 volleyball winner over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo

It wasn't pretty, but Thief River Falls picked up a 3-0 high school volleyball win over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo Thursday.

The Prowlers swept the host Ponies 15-12, 15-10, 15-3.

"It was a pretty sloppy volleyball match," said Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche, "but we cleaned it up in the third game."

The Prowlers' efforts featured 12 kills by Becky Broy, 4 ace serves by Rachel Mathson and 4 blocks by Kylie Rogalla.

Bemidji sweeps TRF race titles

Bemidji boys and girls went home with team titles Monday at the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational high school cross country meet.

The Lumberjacks won both races handily, beating the runner-up Bagley/Fosston boys by a 40-71 margin, and finishing ahead of the second place Roseau girls 35-61.

Individual winners were Stephen Staskivige of Bagley/Fosston and Amber Newby of Bemidji.

The host Prowlers finished seventh in both portions of the race at the Thief River Golf Club that drew 10 area schools.

Seth Harlow and Jacki Mooney were the Prowlers' No. 1 runners with identical 22nd place finishes in their respective races.

"A super day for running," said Thief River Falls coach Chad Persons, the meet manager. "The teams did an excellent job on their home course. The girls fought for a seventh place finish. The guys dropped a few places after Zach Bosh got hit in the eye by a tree branch. They all ran well. I was proud of their efforts."

Persons also expressed his gratitude to those who helped put the meet together. "I want to thank all the parents, fans, Sports Boosters Club, race helpers, and Arctic Cat for making this meet happen," he said.

Number one runner for the Thief River Falls boys varsity during Monday's Thief River Falls Invitational high school cross country meet was Seth Harlow, who placed 22nd in a field of 66 runners. The event was held at the Thief River Golf Club.

RLCC beats NCE...

Mustangs give up first score, but win easily

Red Lake County Central spotted Norman County East an early lead, but stormed back to win a 44-8 Friday high school football matchup.

Anthony Awender returned the game's opening kickoff 77 yards for a touchdown, and Nick Courtright hit Ryan Thordahl with a conversion pass, giving the host Eagles an 8-0 edge before Red Lake County Central had even touched the ball.

But that was the only time Norman County East would reach the end zone as the Mustangs improved to 3-2 heading into a Thursday game at Ulen-Hitterdal.

The Eagles opened the doors for the Red Lake County Central offense by fumbling away two first quarter punt returns. Chris Lessard recovered the first one, setting up a 7-yard Wade Westlake touchdown run, and scored the second touchdown himself on a 5-yard pass from Carl Dugstad.

It was 12-8 at the first quarter break and 32-8 at halftime.

"It started out a little shaky, but we took over the line of scrimmage," said Marshall County Central coach Gary Brantl. "Defensively we played well all night."

The one-sided outcome allowed Brantl to empty his bench. "We got a chance to play everybody," he noted. "With a couple of close games lately, we haven't had a chance to get all those kids in."

Red Lake County Central ground game, operating at peak efficiency, produced three 100-yard rushers as Matt Hruby (7 carries) and Wade Westlake (19 carries) both netted 101 yards, and Andy Gustafson (16 carries) finished with 100. The Mustangs wound up with 325 yards on the ground.

Opening the holes for the runners were Chris Nelson and Heath Rosten at the ends; Cole Mickelson and Adam Koralewski at the tackles; and center Brent Nelson.

Dugstad was 2-for-9 passing for 17 yards.

Defensively, Hruby was in on seven tackles, had a quarterback sack, came up with an interception and recovered two fumbles.

Westlake was also involved in seven tackles, with a sack and an interception. Rosten came up with six tackles.

In addition to the two first quarter fumbled punts setting up Red Lake County Central touchdowns, interceptions by Benji Kvasager, Hruby and Westlake all led to touchdowns.

There wasn't a lot of running room in the middle for Bemidji's Matt Hendricks on this first quarter carry against Thief River Falls during Friday's high school football game at Prowler Field. Thief River Falls' Josh Jensen came through to grab the runner by the legs as Trent Christensen closed in from the outside. Hendricks netted a yard on the play. The Prowlers won 13-10.

Northland wins two matches

Northland remained in contention for a Minnesota Community College Conference state volleyball tournament berth by picking up weekend Northern Division road wins over Hibbing and Rainy River.

The Pioneers improved to 12-6 overall and 6-3 in the MCCC by sweeping the Cardinals 15-6, 15-7, 15-13 Friday night in Hibbing, then beating the Voyageurs 15-10, 11-15, 15-8, 15-5 Saturday afternoon at International Falls.

Top four regular season finishers in the Northern Division will earn MCCC state tournament berths. With two weeks of play remaining, Mesabi Range and Vermilion are 1-2, while Northland, Central Lakes and Fergus Falls share third place.

Northland will be playing the leaders this weekend in Thief River Falls. Vermilion will be here for a 6:30 p.m. match Friday, and Mesabi Range will be part of Saturday's Pepsi Triangular, along with Providence College of Canada. The Northland-Mesabi Range match will count in the Northern Division standings.

"We had a lot of fun at Hibbing," reported Northland coach Mike Zachow. "We tried a bunch of different things, and we got a chance to play everybody."

Rainy River presented a challenge the next day. "It might have been the longest match, time-wise, we've played all year," pointed out Zachow. "Rainy River played really well. We had to step it up."

Northland's Sandy Brekke, a freshman who played high school volleyball at Win-E-Mac, tops the National Junior College Athletic Association Division III charts for blocking, noted Zachow, by averaging two blocks per game. She has 62 of them in 31 games this fall.

Saturday's draw will find Northland playing Mesabi Range at 12-noon; Mesabi Range vs. Providence College at 1:30 p.m.; and Northland vs. Providence College at 2:30 p.m. The Northland-Mesabi Range match will be a 3-out-of-5 affair. The others will be 2-out-of-3 sets.

Final quarter burst lifts MCC

Shut out for over three quarters, Marshall County Central broke loose with a four-touchdown outburst during a seven-minute span in the fourth quarter Friday en route to a come-from-behind 25-12 high school football win over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart at Newfolden.

The Eagles, up 6-0 at halftime on a 3-yard first quarter Nate Bonderud pass to Matt Marek, doubled their advantage with another 3-yard touchdown, this time by Joe Kaiser, near the end of the third quarter.

But a long return on the ensuing kickoff by Bjorn Halvorson jump-started the Marshall County Central offense. Halvorson followed the return with a 4-yard touchdown; Matt Waterworth broke away on a 40-yard run; Jake Anderson scored from 3 yards out; and Halvorson added a 1-yard touchdown run.

"Sacred Heart came out and controlled the line of scrimmage," explained Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker. "They were doing a lot of stunts and had a lot of movement on defense that we weren't picking up. But the (Halvorson) kickoff return got us going. That was the spark we were looking for. For three quarter we didn't do anything, then all of a sudden we came alive."

The Nordics finished with two 100-yard rushers as Halvorson netted 105 yards on 25 carries and Waterworth hit an even 100 yards on 12 attempts. They had 242 yards on the ground overall on 50 carries.

Marshall County Central quarterback Zach Holthusen was 1-for-5 passing for 6 yards.

Sacred Heart finished with 176 yards on 45 running plays and had a 5-for-18 passing night for 20 yards. Four of those passes were picked off by Waylon Hirst (2), Keegan Halvorson and Holthusen.

Parker said Mike Fillmore, Bjorn Halvorson and Waterworth all had strong games at linebacker.

The 3-2 Nordics will be on the road Thursday to face a strong Stephen-Argyle team.

B/G-Middle River suffers 34-0 loss at hands of RLF

Red Lake Falls' Aaron Wavra and Danny Gagner combined for all five touchdowns Friday in a 34-0 high school football win over visiting Badger/Greenbush-Middle River.

The loss dropped the Gators to 1-4.

"We were disappointed in our line play and our linebacking play," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "Our cornerbacks played well, but our line and linebackers didn't play as well as they have been."

The Eagles led 21-0 at halftime.

"Because of injuries we've got too many people playing out of position, and they're not making the right reads fast enough," explained Neibauer. "Red Lake Falls has some good fullbacks. You can't be hesitating against backs like Wavra and Gagner."

Kurt Truscinski carried the ball 6 times for 48 yards to lead the Gators' ground game that was limited to 106 yards on 31 plays. They were 8-for-16 in the air for 78 yards.

Red Lake Falls, meanwhile, racked up 350 yards on the ground and was 2-for-4 passing for 37 yards.

Cornerback Jared Howard, who had an interception, led the Gators' defensive efforts, pointed out Neibauer.

The Gators expect to have two-way starters David Truscinski and Kugen Wange back in the line-up Friday when they play Lake Park-Audubon in Middle River. Truscinski, a quarterback-defensive back, has been out with a knee injury since early in Game 2. Wange, a fullback-linebacker, sat out the Red Lake Falls game with a ankle injury.

"Having those two back will make us a much better football team," mentioned Neibauer.

Dede Daily kept an eye on the ball as she returned a shot during Thursday's high school tennis action on the Engelstad Park courts in Thief River Falls. Daily played No. 3 singles for the Prowlers, who posted 7-0 wins over East Grand Forks, Park Rapids Area and Roseau during the chilly quadrangular event.

Tennis squad loses two of three Saturday duals

A quadrangular outing at Detroit Lakes Saturday resulted in a 1-2 day for the Thief River Falls girls high school tennis team.

The Prowlers beat the host Lakers 5-2, but lost to Alexandria 4-3 and fell to Bemidji 5-2.

Results dropped the Prowlers' dual meet mark to 10-4. A Tuesday match at home against Roseau was to be followed by a make-up dual vs. Detroit Lakes Thursday at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre to close out the regular season schedule.

North Sub-Section 8AA tournament will be played at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre Oct. 13-14, with the team matches planned for Wednesday and the individual competition scheduled Thursday.

TRF drops five-game match vs. Win-E-Mac

Becky Bray and Rachel Mathson supplied the offense, while Kylie Rogalla stood out on defense Monday as Thief River Falls challenged perennial high school volleyball power Win-E-Mac before losing a 3-2 decision.

The visiting Patriots outlasted the Prowlers 15-17, 15-8, 15-5, 2-15, 15-5.

"It was a great match," said Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche. "We played really well. Even though we lost, playing that well against a team like Win-E-Mac should give the girls a lot of confidence."

The match featured a back-and-forth momentum swing from game-to-game, pointed out Roche. After holding the Prowlers to single figures on the scoreboard in Games 2 and 3, the Patriots absorbed a fourth game drubbing before regrouping and finishing with a surge.

"We played a good volleyball match, but we had a few mental lapses where Win-E-Mac took over," explained Roche. "They jumped out on us 5-0 in the last game; we just couldn't get a side-out."

Bray and Mathson came up with 22 and 19 kills, respectively, from an offense that was directed by setter Ayla Donlin, who finished with 37 assists.

However, the most impressive statistic in the Prowlers' book was the 17 blocks recorded by Rogalla. "She was an animal at the net," said Roche.

Thief River Falls took a 9-9-1 record to East Grand Forks for a Tuesday match. The Prowlers will host Detroit Lakes Thursday to complete a busy week.

Two Thief River Falls runners, Emily Mugaas (center) and Janae Harlow, ran together during the early portion of the girls varsity race in Monday's Thief River Falls Invitational high school cross country meet. The event drew area varsity, junior varsity and junior high runners to the Thief River Golf Club.

Argyle club earns award from DNR

Community pride is more than a buzzword for members of Marshall County's Riverside 4-H Club.

Through careful planning and hard work, club members recently completed a winning "community pride" project in conservation and recreation.

Highlights of the project were noted Aug. 27 when club members and leaders received the DNR Commissioner's 4-H Youth Award during ceremonies at the Minnesota State Fair.

After discussing community needs, club members decided to beautify Florian Park in the city of Argyle to promote tourism because tourism provides some relief to Argyle's struggling farm-based economy. Club members donated four planters of flowers and planted more than 200 trees in their beautification effort.

Riverside 4-H Club members also showed community pride by hosting a picnic at Florian Park for residents of the Marshall County Group Home and Supported Living Services Home. Residents of the homes enjoyed the outing at the park and the 4-Hers gained greater understanding and appreciation of people with disabilities.

"Members of the Riverside 4-H Club have learned that natural resource management activities can have positive impacts on the environment as well as the people who live nearby," said Commissioner Allen Garber during the award presentation ceremony. "They learned the importance of cooperation by working with each other as well as Marshall County officials and the Marshall Soil and Water Conservation District. They also practiced the 'three Ps' to accomplish their goals: planning, preparing and participating."

Nine adults and 16 youth ranging from 8 to 18 years old worked on the projects during the year. Youth who led the projects are John Gostanzik, Brent Gostanzik, Tony Kuznia and Nick Kuznia of Argyle, and Tim Tulibaski of Warren. Adult leaders are Annette Kuznia and Patricia Crummy of Argyle and Carol Tulibaski of Warren.

The DNR Commissioner's Youth Award is given annually to FFA and 4-H youth who have demonstrated initiative, leadership and achievement in the conservation and wise use of natural and agricultural resources.

Arctic Lites gymnastics program builds confidence among its young participants in Thief River Falls

Enjoying working your spirit as well as your muscles is a feeling the Arctic Lites Gymnastics Club can create. Registration for the program will be begin September 30 from 6 to 7.30 at the District Service Center. Registrations will be taken through the first week in October.

Statements made from past gymnasts indicate that the gymnastics program has provided them with training not only in tumbling, but has also given them a sense of accomplishment, and encouragement to try new things. These talents have been used later in their lives in other sports such as diving, skating, cheerleading and dance.

The Arctic Lites Gymnastics Club has been organized since January 1990. It is a non-profit club run by a group of family board members and directors. An enrollment of gymnasts is maintained over four week sessions. The club has an excellent coaching staff and is definitely a growing club.

The head coach is Dan Huber who was an elite-level gymnast who competed and won the Alaska State Championship. He also created and coached a boys team to take the Alaska State Championship. Huber has taken the gymnasts from basic tumbling to a level of true athlete.

Most importantly, however, the club members and directors take pride in watching gymnastics build confidence, good character, and discipline in children. Club members believe involvement is the key to success.

Each stage in the program represents the level of the child's ability to perform the tumbling routines. Skills are mastered in a fun-filled yet structured environment.

At the end of a session, each student is tested on the skills they have worked on to pass to the next level. Open houses are held periodically so parents can watch their children. Parents aren't allowed to stay and watch during the classes; it's too distracting to the gymnasts. The club is open to both girls and boys; ages 3-18. In the very beginning the club starts with the Mini's, children ranging in age from 3 to 6. The next levels are Hot Shots I, and II, Boys Class, Pre. Junior Advanced, Junior Advanced and Competitive Squad B, Tumblers I and II, Twisters I and II, Advanced, Senior Advanced, Competitive Squad A and the Show Team. The Show Team is chosen through tryouts in which the gymnasts must be able to do specific maneuvers.

Each year from each division, a child is chosen for Gymnast of the Year. The children chosen to be the 1999 Gymnasts of the year were: Morgan Howard, Lorie Erickson, Cassie Columbus, Allyson Helling, Kaitlyn Hunt and Sara Sisler. Runner-ups were Lindsey Swanson, Chelsey Knutson and Ashley Borchardt. Each received medals at the spring banquet. Other children acknowledged at the banquet are shown in the pictures included with this article. They include awards for Fund-raising: Allyson Helling, Chelsey Knutson, Sarah Michaels, Bethany Economos, Nathan Lindgren, Katherine and Nathan Wrenn. Level 7 - 12 award winners include: Allyson Helling, Lindsey Swanson, Annie Engelstad, Marit Dalen, Alison Rominski, Korbi Fisher, Bethany Economos, Sarah Michaels, Sara Sisler and Cassie Columbus. Level 1-6 award winners include: Phillip Onkka, Shelby Dvergsten, Tanya Lee, Chelsey Knutson, Amanda Hamre, Aundriah Lindgren, Brianna Columbus, Kaitlyn Hunt, Nathan Lindgren, Nathan Wrenn, Katherine Wrenn and Abby Thorpe.

Since its inception in January 1990, the club has organized a number of fundraisers to enable growth and movement toward a goal of becoming a United States Gymnastics Federation Competitor. Donations are greatly welcomed and they help keep things up to code for the equipment, and costs down for the members. The club is trying to keep gymnastics open to all youth who may be interested in the program. They also look for people to sponsor children so that all can participate in the program.

The club has held multiple spring shows, rummage and bake sales, pancake brunches, photography and flower bulb sales fundraisers. These are just to name a few.

Right now, the organization has its annual tulip bulb sale. Most of the bulbs are for planting this fall. Anyone interested in ordering tulip bulbs can call. There are many beautiful choices to choose from.

Each Halloween, the club has its very own, unique and quite breathtaking, Haunted House and Carnival. This year's Halloween Haunted House and Carnival will be held Saturday, October 23, 1999, from 1 to 3 p.m. The cost is $2 per person. It will be held in the Northwest Service Center off of Zeh and LaBree just across from Pennington Main. All are welcome.

Registration for the gymnastics program was held September 30, 1999, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. at the District Service Center. Registration will also be taken through the first week in October.

Anyone who might like to sponsor a specific gymnast: donate to the program, or obtain further information on enrollment is encouraged to contact Dan Huber, head coach and program director, at the ALG office, 218-681-8461.

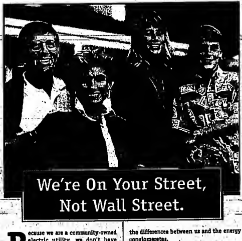
Two Northland students given scholarships

Sarah Holte of Warren and Dawna Rankin of Northome, both students at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls, have been awarded scholarships from the National Foundation for Long Term Health Care, Inc., an affiliate of American Health Care Association (AHCA).

Holte is an employee of Marshall Manor Good Samaritan Center in Warren and Rankin is an employee of Kelliher Care Center in Kelliher.

Sarah Holte and Dawna Rankin show a clear understanding of long term care's 'increasingly complex nature,'' stated AHCA interim president David Seckman in announcing the awards. "They also demonstrate the responsive, compassionate concern essential to providing quality care. AHCA is pleased to honor them and the 18 other students who have proven themselves to be among the best in their field.''

Public Power Week – October 3-9, 1999



We're On Your Street, Not Wall Street.

Because we are a community-owned electric utility, we don't have stockholders scattered all over the world. The real power brokers are you and your neighbors.

Before you know it, there will be major changes in America's utility industry. Outsiders will be crowding the airwaves and stuffing your mailbox with all kinds of offers. When that happens, we think you ought to know the differences between us and the energy conglomerates.

We are locally controlled and answer only to you — our customers — not to some anonymous corporate board. Our investments stay in the community and all citizens reap the benefits.

And we are working harder than ever to continue providing the most reliable service at rates you don't find on Wall Street.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK October 3-9

WE HONOR OUR firefighters

10 TIPS FOR FIRE SAFETY

1. Install smoke alarms

Smoke alarms save lives by warning you about a fire while there's time to escape. Install alarms on every floor of your home including the basement, and outside each sleeping area — inside as well, if you sleep with the door closed — and test them once a month. Smoke alarms lose their sensitivity over time. Replace alarms 10 or more years old.

2. Automatic home fire sprinkler system

Consider installing an automatic home fire sprinkler system in your home. Sprinklers can contain and even extinguish a home fire in less time than it takes the fire department to arrive.

3. Plan your escape

If there's a fire, you'll have to get out fast so be prepared. Draw a floor plan of your home marking two ways out of each room. Go over the plan with your household so that everyone knows how to escape if there's a fire, then physically walk through each escape route.

Decide on an outside meeting place in front of your home where everyone will meet after they've escaped. Practice your escape plan by holding a fire drill twice a year.

4. In a fire, crawl low under smoke

Smoke and heat rise, so during a fire there's cleaner, cooler air near the floor. Always try another exit if you encounter smoke when you're escaping a fire. But if you have to escape through smoke, crawl on your hands and knees with your head 1 to 2 feet (30 to 60 centimeters) above the floor.

5. Smokers' safety

In North America, more fatal fires start from smoking than from any other cause. Don't smoke in bed or when you're drowsy. Give smokers large, deep, non-tip ashtrays, and soak butts and ashes before dumping them. If someone's been smoking in your home, check on and around furniture, including under cushions, for smoldering cigarettes.

6. Cook safely

Always stay with the stove when cooking, [illegible] burners [illegible] rolled up — [illegible] your clothes on fire. Turn pot handles in so you can't bump them and children can't grab them, and enforce a "kid-free zone" [illegible] stove when you cook.

7. Keep matches and lighters out of sight

Keep matches and lighters away from children. Lock them up high and out of reach, and use only child-resistant lighters. Teach young children to tell an adult if they find matches or lighters; teach older children to bring matches and lighters to an adult before they fall into young hands.

8. Use electricity safely

Know the warning signs of problems for electrical appliances: flickering lights, smoke or odd smells, blowing fuses, tripping circuit breakers or frayed or cracked cords. Check carefully any appliances that display a warning sign, and repair or replace. Don't run extension cords across doorways or where they can be walked on or pinched by furniture.

9. Space heaters

Keep portable and other space heaters at least 3 feet (1 meter) away from anything that can burn — including you — and turn heaters off when you leave home or go to bed. Have chimneys and furnaces inspected by a professional at the start of each heating season.

10. Stop, drop, and roll — cool and call

If your clothes catch fire, stop — don't run. Drop gently to the ground, cover your face with your hands, and roll over and over or back and forth to smother the flames. Cool the burn with cool water for 10 - 15 minutes. Call for help.

Participating Fire Stations Across North America Will Sound a Signal For Every Household To Conduct A Home Fire Drill. It Will Be The Perfect Opportunity For Every Family To Practice Their Escape Plans.

If You Can't Participate On October 6, Choose Another Day For Your Home Escape.

Be Sure Everyone in Your Household Knows What To Do if There is A fire.

DON'T WAIT
MAKE A HOME ESCAPE PLAN TODAY...

Draw a floor plan of your home, marking two ways out (including windows) of every room. Discuss the escape routes with every member of your household.

Pick an outdoor meeting place—preferably in front of your home—and tell everyone to meet there after they've escaped, so you can count heads and tell the firefighters if anyone's trapped inside...

AND PRACTICE IT!!

Install at least one smoke alarm on every floor of your home—and make sure everyone knows the alarm's sound and what to do if they hear it. Smoke alarms should be tested monthly.

Hold a home fire drill twice a year. Make it realistic. Pretend that some escape routes are blocked by smoke or fire and practice using alternative exits.

Prairie Plantings will yield new growth

by David Hill
Editor

At first glance I thought the gardener had gone on vacation and someone needed to do some serious weeding of the garden plots in front of Challenger Elementary school. Upon learning a little more about what I was looking at I've decided that it's a unique experiment that will result in new growth and development among students, teaching staff, and public.

Over the past few years information about the natural prairie plantings at Challenger Elementary school have drifted to The Times and has been duly disseminated to the public; but when students and teachers planted about 350 trees, it got my attention. Since then, much more has been accomplished. ("Educational opportunities bloom with plants at Challenger school," Kathi Carlson, The Times, Wednesday, September 22, 1999).

It still looks a lot like a bad patch of weeds, but it has a little more uniformity and some signs identifying the variety and species of each plant. Visiting the site, reinforced a view I have — yes, that it's better to see it in an educational setting than the neighbor's yard, but also that it has great potential. Certainly, these native plants can be witnessed in natural settings, but I can't remember a time when I was able to focus on anything other than the purpose for which I was visiting the "great outdoors" which was usually hunting wild game. I also can't remember picking up a book on native plants and not falling asleep.

Most importantly, I like this project because it was embraced by teachers. Their enthusiasm for the project is infectious and certain to inspire students.

The teachers benefit because it seems to be taken as a sign that administration and the school board are open to different styles of teaching. Students benefit because they see the enthusiasm in their teachers, and are naturally drawn to such enthusiasm. Under these circumstances, students also feel learning is a little more worthwhile. Because they are contributing to the project, they also take pride and ownership in the project.

In the future, the community may benefit from students who have become infused with this enthusiasm and understanding for the natural environment around them.

This "ugly duckling" of a project has grown into something beautiful. Now if they can only make sure someone doesn't take the mower to those weeds.

Services can be taxing

by David Hill
Editor

While on vacation last summer I stopped by a friend's home in Carrington, ND. The first night I was there a terrible storm swept in across the prairie taking roofing material off homes, destroying grain bins, and knocking trees over. The next morning I helped cut up a downed tree and a large branch off another tree. During the next several hours we cut up the pieces of the tree branches, put them on a small trailer, and made several trips to the town's drop-off site.

There's nothing like not having a service to realize how much you miss it. We're lucky in Thief River Falls, because we have a lot of services — like a brush chipper to pick up downed branches — that many other communities don't provide. Come to think of it, add to that the garbage separation process, and the leaf vacuum. They're all services that make it a little easier for residents of this community to do other things, like go fishing or play golf.

Oh, and just so someone doesn't think I'm focusing too much on Parks and Recreation or the Sanitation department, which take up roughly 15 percent of the city's budgetary expense, there's the police department too, which takes up roughly 20 percent of the city's budget. It's nice to have a well-staffed police department. Usually, they get our attention only when they give us a traffic ticket or solve a big theft, but they do much more. According to police department statistics for 1998, for example, they responded to 335 alarm responses (most of them false), helped locate people we can't find (182), checked on businesses during the off hours (70), delivered messages (46), responded to dog and animal calls (723), conducted funeral escorts (98), and checked on residences (143), to list a few.

The police department also has two liaison officers to work with the school district protecting children, and helping to guide them through formative years with such courses as DARE and GREAT. They have also initiated neighborhood watch programs.

It's a nice feeling — living in a small community where we care about our neighbors, isn't it?

Yes, it's nice living in a small community like Thief River Falls, but all those nice services cost money. So the next time you complain about our high taxes, remember all the services we can't seem to live without.

Relatives from Norway

On Monday evening, September 20, Gordon and Adolie Skjorven were among other relatives at the Glenn Carlson home at Stephen to welcome Erling and Renate Stokkeland of Tingvatn, Norway who spent the past week visiting and sightseeing in the area. Erling Stokkeland is a second cousin of Adolie Skjorven and Lillian Sundby.

On Wednesday they (relatives from Norway) were guests at the Skjerven home. Others visiting there were Lillian Sundby, Arnold and Evelyn Skjerven, Glenn and Marilyn Carlson, Dan and Kathy Olson, Cory and Julie Skjerven, and Mary Woloski and girls. On Thursday evening Wallace and Janet Labine and Judy Swenson entertained them at the Farmer Doll in Argyle and later at the Labine home.

Friday was a fun afternoon when several of us (relatives), chauffeured by Glenn Carlson in his motorhome, drove out to the old farmstead where Adolie and Lillian's parents homesteaded in 1889. We also stopped at the cemetery where they are buried and then on to the Sundby farm which is unoccupied since the flood of 1997. We then drove to the Curtis Carlson farm where they enjoyed coffee and goodies. Later in the evening, we were joined by more family members for a fish dinner at LeFond's in Warren, compliments of Lillian Sundby.

Sunday was another full day. Even though the weather didn't cooperate we met for a potluck dinner at the Carlson home in Stephen. There were 81 relatives registered with a lot of good food, picture taking and visiting. Arvin Sundby provided the entertainment by playing guitar and singing with everyone joining in. Attending from Viking were Adolie and Gordon Skjerven, Dan and Kathy Olson and Tim, Corey Skjerven family, Mary and Arnold Woloski and girls, Randy and Chris Skjerven and family of Grand Forks, and Gordy Skjerven of Mendota Heights.

Erling and Renate Stokkeland have a resort in Norway called Hedden Gard. Two years ago they entertained the King and Queen of Norway which was a thrill for them. They left for their home in Norway on Monday afternoon. It was very lonely after they left as they were such a fun couple to visit with. We hope they will come back someday.

The previous weekend, Erling and Renate Stokkeland and Dan and Kathy Olson spent the weekend at the Gordy Skjerven home in Mendota Heights.

Will Proceed With Plans To Organize Vocational School

"Following discussions with Harry Schmid, state director of vocational education, Superintendent of Schools William Claffy announced this week that steps will be taken immediately to complete arrangements for the opening of an area vocational school. He was assured that favorable action would be taken by the state board at their meeting next Tuesday and that the application of the Thief River Falls school district would be approved. Mr. Claffy hopes that it will be possible to complete arrangements and get the new courses under way early in November.

"Courses in practical nursing, combustion engines and electricity have been tentatively agreed as the three subjects that will be offered to start with, Mr. Claffy said. Clarence W. Pope will direct these courses and it is hoped that eligible instructors may be secured without delay.

"Local hospitals have indicated that they will cooperate with the practical nurses' training program. The Carl Wennberg building on Knight avenue is available and has been approved as a shop for instruction in combustion engines and electricity. Other courses may be added from time to time as there is demand for them and as facilities become available."

CAP boys from Fergus Falls, Grand Forks, Northwood, Mayville, Hatton, and Wahpeton will participate in the demonstration, he states.

"There is also a possibility that a radio-controlled model ship may be demonstrated. Frahm and Robert Michalsky. In case of unfavorable weather, the demonstration will be held in the arena."

County Engineer Henry Knieff was appointed engineer for county ditches 45 and 39 in Smiley and Kratka townships and instructed to prepare plans for a repair project."

County Officers Stop Deficit Spending In Road And Bridge Fund

"Three county officers, Auditor A. M. Senstad, Treasurer A. R. Johnsrud, and Attorney L. W. Rulien, served notice on members of the county board Tuesday that the county road and bridge fund is exhausted and that no further expenditures can be made until the money has been made available. It was pointed out that the county had previously funded an overdraft in this fund and that the law under which this funding had been effected requires that spending must be on a cash basis until the old obligation has been paid. The issue of warrants in excess of cash balances would be illegal. Highway department personnel have been notified salary payments will be withheld until funds are available."

"I. Dahlen and Oscar Brink left yesterday for the goose fields in the western part of the county. They have all the necessary decoys and it's not their fault if they don't bring home a dozen or more honkers."

Surprised the Band Boys

"Monday evening as the band boys were practicing at their regular meeting place in the Hotel St. Hilaire, they were suddenly interrupted about half way through one of the hardest pieces they had ever tackled by the entering of about fifty of the young ladies and gentlemen of the village who marched in and took possession of the room. It is needless to say that the boys stopped right then and there although some of the boys knew what was going to happen, but without the aid of the ones not knowing anything about it, they soon failed in carrying out their parts in finishing the piece. After finding out 'where they were at' they mustered up enough courage to play a few pieces and then turned the room over to the jolly crowd that had done the surprising act. Misses Nelson and Hannay were the main ones that engineered the surprise party and it was a complete success to say the least. The room was soon arranged and dancing was the order of the evening.

"At 11:30 a fine lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served after which dancing was again resumed which was kept up until two o'clock in the morning. The young ladies getting up the party took advantage of the long distance telephone line and invited a dozen or more of their intimate friends from Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls who responded by their presence. Everyone present had a most enjoyable time from all accounts."

Birthday for Clara

Florence, Bonnie, Shirley, Steven, Randy, Martin, and Linda, the children of Clara and the late Florian Hesse, hosted a party on Sunday for their mother, Clara's 80th birthday. The family which included 24 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren enjoyed a potluck dinner at noon at the Plummer Hall which was followed by a gathering of friends from 2-5 p.m.

A program was given at 3 p.m. and we found out the answers to Clara's mixer that had been handed out. Facts about her life. Daughters Linda and Florence were the emcees. Great-granddaughter, Jackie Claven played "Amazing Grace" on the piano and granddaughter, Joyce Washburn, accompanied by granddaughter, Amber Haglund, sang "Grandma" (a derivation of the popular song, "Grandpa").

Florence and Bonnie entertained us royally with their accordions. There were several readings, closing with Clara expressing her thanks and reading "Today I'm 80."

The family presented her with a lovely wishing well for her yard and then lunch and birthday cake were served to all.

Attending were special guests, sister-in-law, Lillian Berg and her son, Lynn of Eugene, OR, Leonard and Grace Fohr of Milwaukee, Lawrence Waldal and Tina Nelson of Grygla, Doris Claven and Elaine Lueto of Roseau, Vincent and Gloria Hesse, and Pat Hesse of Thief River Falls. Family attending included Florence and Henry Tvedt of Plummer, Stan and Fran Tvedt of Shelley, Nikki and Beth of Thief River Falls, Warren and Lisa Tvedt of Plummer, Charlene Tvedt of Brooks, Bonnie Nelson, Shannon, Audrya and Dustin Nelson of Gatzke, Emie, Becka and Jordyn Nelson of Thief River Falls, Tommie, Jackie, Abby, Kristi and Neiko Claven, Tracy and Rocky Loken, Gaston and Gannon of Roseau, Shirley, John and Amber Haglund of Baudette, and Mark and Joyce Washburn, Andrew and Benjamin, also of Baudette.

Also attending were Daniel, Joshua and Delana Haglund of Moorhead, Steven and Kay Hesse and Naomi Monsrud of Roseau, Randy, Randy Jr., Derek, Lana and Lisa Hesse of Plummer, Martin and Valerie Hesse and daughters Angela and Ashley of Fargo, and Linda, Eddy, Matthew, Danielle, Stephanie and Michelle Olson of rural Red Lake Falls.

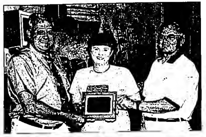
Unable to attend included daughter, Jan Glascock of Albuquerque, NM, son Curtis, brother, Lloyd Berg of Anchorage, AK, daughter-in-law, Julie Hesse, and several of the "grands" and "greats". Clara grew up as the only girl among nine brothers and Lloyd is the only one still living. Others from out of town were Glenyce Harrington of St. Paul, Marie and Wally Seeger of Red Lake Falls, and also many friends from the Plummer area. Congratulation Clara, and many more birthdays!

Joan Matt returned home on Thursday from McVille, ND, where she went to attend the funeral on September 17 for her foster sister, Marjorie Hanson. She stayed on for about a week with her sister, Laura and Richard Saunders.

Idella Rowertz visited her sister, Margie Prestebak on Sunday and together they attended the supper at St Pauli Lutheran Church.

Albert and Evalyn Torve and Rudy and Inez Kallainen of New Mexico visited on Sunday evening at the home of Art and Avis Frolland.

Bernice Petarson visited Clara Hesse on Monday, since she missed the party. On Tuesday she visited with Lorna Jesme



Ron Winters, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Beautification Award committee, presented the residential beautification award to Yvonne Pederson and Glen Peters.

NOTICE OF HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given pursuant to Chapter 12 of the Thief River Falls City Code that Leroy V. Flickinger, PO Box 187, Newfolden, MN 56738 has submitted a Certificate of Survey as prepared by Gary L. Thompson, Registered Land Surveyor, and dated September 29, 1999 for review and approval by the City of Thief River Falls. The property is located east of Elizabeth Avenue between Tenth Street East and Eleventh Street East. The property is legally described as:

Lots 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 of Kratke's Subdivision to the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and a 195'x110'x104' tract of land abutting Lots 15 and 16, which was previously conveyed to the owner of said Lots 15 and 16 by deed recorded as Document No. 152563 and which is a part of Government Lot 4, Sec. 27, T. 154N., R. 43W.

The Certificate of Survey includes tracts previously conveyed to the following persons: Mary Lee Neuschwander, 110 Westview Avenue, and Elaine L. Austinson, 802 Eleventh Street East, both of Thief River Falls, MN 56701, and Ronnie E. Anderson, Route 2, Box 53, Newfolden, MN 56738.

The Certificate of Survey resubdivides Lots 15-20 of Kratke's Subdivision into fourteen (14) tracts of land identified as Tracts A-M and indicated legal descriptions for each of the 14 tracts. The Survey also indicates utility easements needed to provide services to these tracts of land. Approval of the Certificate of Survey by the City of Thief River Falls and its recording with Pennington County would allow Leroy Flickinger to transfer ownership of those tracts not previously conveyed.

Notice is further given that the Planning Commission will conduct a Hearing on the Request for approval of the Certificate of Survey at 7:00 PM (CDST) on Monday, October 18, 1999, in the City Council Chambers, City Hall, 405 Third Street East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. All persons wishing to comment on the Certificate of Survey will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Hall, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or telephone (218) 681-2500.

If you have a disability and need an accommodation in order to attend this Hearing, please contact the undersigned as soon as possible or at least three (3) working days in advance of the Hearing at the above telephone number.

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
September 13, 1999
7:30 p.m.
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A regular Board meeting of Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, September 13, 1999, at 7:30 p.m. in Conference Room A of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Barb Kalinoski, Jean Larson, Lyle Olson, Mike Spears, Randy Twistol and Steve Young. Also present was Dr. Jerry Robicheau, Superintendent of Schools.

Chairperson Steve Young called the meeting to order and Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by L. Olson and seconded by R. Twistol to approve the agenda as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

Board members were reminded of the MREA Fall Regional Meeting scheduled for Tuesday, September 14, at 7:00 p.m. in the Lincoln High School Cafeteria. They were also informed of the MSBA Fall Area Meeting scheduled for Wednesday, September 22 at 7:00 p.m. in the Fertile High School Cafeteria.

Certificates of appreciation were presented and expressions of gratitude were expressed to Dianne Keys, Valorie Johnson, Gordon Campbell and Pat Heschka for all their hard work in getting the Challenger playground project where it is today. A certificate of appreciation was also presented to Marv Lundin, retiring editor of the Thief River Falls Times, for his support and promotion of education in Thief River Falls and his recognition of student achievement over the past number of years.

Lincoln High School Choir Director Darcy Reese presented information regarding a proposed trip to New York for the concert choir next April. Tentative plans are to perform at Carnegie Hall possibly as the prelude choir and to be part of the U.S. Premier. More definite plans will be made once enough students have indicated their interest in going. Darcy also reported that the choir has been selected out of 55 to represent the state at the Minnesota Music Educators Conference in Minneapolis in February. The Board commended Darcy and choir members for this honor.

Barb Kalinoski reported on behalf of the Multi-Events Center indicating that the football field is coming along but the track remains an issue. Drain tile has been installed and soil testing will be done in October, March, April and May. There are concerns about the track down the road since the District will be responsible for maintenance and upkeep. Barb did indicate that an open house for some of the areas is still planned for this fall.

Randy Twistol reported on behalf of the Northwest Service Coop indicating that the Coop is adding a .5 FTE position to assist districts with grant writing. He also noted that a Leadership Academy has been formed with Mankato and the tri-colleges to "home grow" administrators for school districts in the area. Randy also informed the Board that the co-op is planning to do some remodeling in that building and add a training room that would accommodate 40-50 people.

Mike Spears reported on behalf of the Lincoln High School alternative scheduling committee. They met last week and discussed reducing required credits to give students more choices. Mike also indicated that a presentation was given to parents at the open house on September 9. Presentations will also be made to students either this week or next and an open forum will be scheduled in the near future.

The Board reviewed discussions from their meeting with the City Council and noted that the Board Finance Committee will be meeting soon to discuss the proposed lease with the city for use of facilities.

Business Manager Harry Nelson reviewed recommended changes in the travel and district student transportation policies and proposed meal allowances for students attending regional and state competitions.

Superintendent Jerry Robicheau discussed some new rules regarding extra hockey games that the Minnesota Amateur Sports Commission is promoting indicating that he is not in favor of allowing those in the District. Mr. Robicheau also noted that the District has again experienced a slight decline in student enrollment, not unlike other districts in the area. Superintendent Robicheau reviewed information regarding possible membership in the Schools for Equity in Education organization. OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
MAY 11, 1999 10:00 AM

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls, MN Tuesday, May 11, 1999 at 10:00 a.m. Members present: Bob Carlson, Charles Naplin, Donald Jensen, Ardan "Bud" Comstock, and Oliver "Skip" Swanson. Members absent: none.

Meeting with the County Board was Howard Person and Pam Perkinson. The County Board then discussed the letter of resignation with Pam and requested she withdraw the resignation. Pam agreed to stay on with the County in her current position. Pam Perkinson then reviewed the letter to be sent to all Pennington County Feedlot owners regarding the feedlot inventory and survey. Commissioner Swenson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to authorize the chairman to sign the letter and to send the letter to all known feedlot owners in Pennington County. Motion unanimously carried.

Pam then reviewed the letter from the Minnesota Office of Environmental Assistance indicating that Pennington County had met all the qualifications for SCORE funding and the funds would be sent to the county.

Pam then presented an outline of Land Use Planning Discussion Implementation Strategies and Issues as a suggested outline. Pam asked what role we want Denver Tolliver and Assoc. to do as they are only hired to do a draft land use plan at this time. Pam asked the County Board to think about these land use issues and let her know their suggestions.

Howard Person informed the County Board that the amount due to the Grand Forks Landfill has increased approximately $11,000.00 since the last Board meeting. This could be a problem as the contract for using the Grand Forks landfill is with Pennington County not SWIS PENNCO. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to send two certified letters: one to SWIS PENNCO stating the County's concerns over the amount of unpaid tipping fees at the Grand Forks Landfill and that a cap of $40,000.00 would be put in effect within 90 days; the second letter to be sent to the Grand Forks Landfill requesting that a cap of $40,000.00 be in place under the Pennington County Contract on tipping fee changes to SWIS PENNCO within the next 90 days. Motion unanimously carried.

The Court Administrator and members of her staff appeared before the County Board to ask if there were any questions about the documents and requests they made at the last meeting. The County Board noted that pending legislation to have the State of Minnesota take over the Court Administrator's Office could make it hard to adjust salaries of the Court Administrator's Office.

The County Board has plans to review the job descriptions and points placed on all county positions.

County Engineer Dalton Schulz and Assistant Engineer George Broadwell met with the Board to discuss Highway Department issues.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Naplin and upon vote was unanimously carried.

Fund-raising put back on School Board's agenda

Monday night, the board of education for School District 564 in Thief River Falls discussed fund-raising by students in the district, and plans for putting the issue back on the board's agenda. How to get out information to parents on the planned block scheduling to be utilized at Lincoln High School next year was also discussed.

School Board Chairman Steve Young suggested that the school board members begin thinking about how fund-raising is being conducted in the district by students. Young suggested that some parameters or constraints will have to be put on it in the future. Young wants to include representatives from organizations and groups currently conducting fundraising in the district in the discussion. In addition, he said he doesn't want to make the constraints so rigid that no one can operate.

Many board members expressed similar thoughts. Lyle Olson, board member, suggested bringing in organizations like TRFAHA because they utilize students for fundraising too.

Supt. Jerry Robicheau noted that he is in the process of collecting information on all the fundraising activities taking place in the district by students. He said that he has in mind a concept of asking kids to perform a service for the community rather than selling products. Robicheau said no business in downtown Thief River Falls, that he knows of, is capable of hiring 120 people to go door to door selling products; so, selling products as a fundraising project, puts local businessmen at a disadvantage.

■ Attendance at a meeting on block scheduling was light. Barb Kalinoski said she was a little disappointed that more parents weren't at a recent meeting. She offered that some may be under the mistaken impression that a decision on block scheduling- has already been made. Kalinoski said the matter is still under study. The purpose of the meeting was to obtain input from the public and inform them of the information they have gathered. Kalinoski said input from the public is always welcome. Yes, she said, the board makes the final decision, but the public can influence that decision.

Many good concerns were expressed at the meeting, Kalinoski said. One of the concerns raised was how do teachers teach within a block schedule? Assuming the attention span of students seems to vary from subject to subject and from student to student, how do teachers teach within a block schedule?

Supt. Robicheau said concerns expressed to him made him wonder whether a transition is needed for 8th grade students so they can make the transition to a block schedule.

Jean Larson, board member, said she thought the low turn out might be an indication of acceptance by the public.

But Randy Twistol, board member, disagreed reminding everyone of the low turnouts at public information meetings on the proposed levy referendum.

In the past, board members have received numerous calls about the subject which they have discussed for a number of years. Lately, however, board members have said they haven't received very many telephone calls regarding the subject.

Larson said the board has given the public every opportunity to express their opinion on the subject, and they appear used to the idea.

■ Glenn Chiodo presented information on the mandatory PER report that must be submitted to the Department of Children, Families and Learning. The school board later approved the report with changes requested by board members. The annual report reviews curriculum instruction and student performance.

■ The school board accepted the low bid of Tunberg Motor Company in the amount of $2,196 for two new 2000 model 8-passenger vans. The school board was able to obtain bids from Tunbergs, Northern Motors and Westside Motors. The board accepted the bid of Tunberg Motors. The two new buses will replace two used buses that need to be replaced.

■ The school board recognized the following: the girls JV tennis team of Heather Fellman, Kay Steiger, Brenda Wood, Kelly Winjum, Jenesa Blazejewski,

Red River Modules, a model railroad club from the Fargo-Moorhead area, participated in the 7th Annual Model Railroad Club show in Thief River Falls last weekend. The Red River Modules displayed a HO scale railroad. The club is very active and according to Jim Moore, participates in about one show every two weeks.

Model Railroaders explore history

by David Hill
Editor

Model railroaders got on board this weekend for the Seventh Annual Model Railroading Show held in Thief River Falls to display their enthusiasm for model railroading.

Many of the visitors at the show were just as enthusiastic about railroading often sharing memories with complete strangers.

Some visitors to the old 1024 parked on permanent display in front of the renovated Soo Line depot knew from personal experience what important tasks the now useless valves performed. Some, like young Zak Bye bounced about the engine compartment turning valves and showing similar-aged youngsters how to ring the old engine's bell.

Jim Moore of the Red River Modules, a club of eight members from the extended Fargo-Moorhead area, said their club sets up their display for shows quite frequently. In fact during the past months, they have attended a show every two weeks.

Frank and Susan Hazard had their son Brian's 'G' scale model railroad on display. Susan explained that it's a large model railroad, she described as kid-proof and capable of operating indoors and outdoors. Although the display covered a large section of the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Arena floor, Susan said they had only just begun collecting. A year and a half ago, they purchased a starter kit from an attorney whose wife apparently demanded that he get rid of some of his collection. They made the purchase for their son Brian who Susan described as a fanatic, and who would never have left the arena had he known his train was on display. Originally, Susan said she didn't think much of the hobby, but now finds it quite enjoyable.

Hartz Foundation grant helps TRF library purchase new microform equipment

A microform reader/printer is now available for public use at the Thief River Falls public library thanks to a grant from the Hartz Foundation. This grant enabled purchase and installation of a Minolta reader and laser printer that can read both microfilm and microfiche and can print both positive and negative images of those forms out into a positive image.

Previously, the library had only a microfilm reader that translated negative format to a positive image. It had no printer attached to it. This meant that people wishing to print out anything from microfilm had to get special permission to take the film elsewhere for printing and return it within an hour. Now people will be able to not only view both microfilm and microfiche on the reader, but they will also be able to print out whatever they want from these microforms at a cost of only 15 cents per page.

There has been a need for a printer with the microfilm reader for some time. Thanks to a generous donation last year, the library now carries all the microfilmed copies of the Pennington County newspapers available from 1892 to the present, including issues from the Thief River Falls Times, the St. Hilaire Spectator, the Goodridge Banner, the Thief River Falls Forum, the Thief River Falls News, the Thief River Falls Press, the Thief River Falls Review, the Thief River Press, The Tri-County Forum, the Thief River Falls Tribune, selected issues of the Lincoln Log and selected issues of the Northern Light. Many individuals in the area and beyond working on genealogies or family histories or family celebrations have utilized back issues of the newspaper and have requested a printer be added. Others looking up historical items — whether for an event, a local history booklet or article or because they were in town for a reunion — have requested printer capabilities. While a local business has helped the library by printing out copies of microfilmed newspaper pages for a charge, they are not open the number of hours that the library is open and so that eliminated some people from getting their copies. The advent of the Internet has also increased the need. At least once weekly, the library receives a request via phone, mail, but mainly e-mail to find a specific person's obituary, photocopy it and send it to the person requesting it. In addition, the library has a positive image copy of many of the Lincoln High School yearbooks. The yearbooks' format made it important to get a bimodal machine that would translate the pictures into a positive image, rather than a negative image.

The universal carriage on the new microform reader makes it possible to read both microfilm and microfiche. Many educational articles are printed in microfiche format and those people inter-library loaning articles have often been surprised by getting the microfiche format rather than the printed version. Just two weeks ago, an individual printed out several copies from a number of microfiche articles. These articles contained the information she needed for a grant that had to be in the mail by the end of the week and she had no other access to a microfiche reader/printer than at the public library.

A spokesperson for the local genealogy group noted that clarity is also important when reading microfilmed copies of ship's passenger records, of cemetery records and other data that had been written out, rather than typed. The laser printer with its finer quality in definition was definitely needed to help with that issue. In addition, the reader/printer also has a zoom lens for enlargement of fine print, 360 degree rotation capabilities, an auto centering function and an auto skew correction to help make it easier for the public that will be using it.

People wishing to use the microfilm/microfiche reader/printer are welcome to do so during library hours. The microfilm reader is also still available to allow more people to view microfilm at one time.

Dick Sjoberg of the Hartz Foundation tests out the new microfilm/microfiche reader/printer now available at the Thief River Falls public library. Purchase of this machine was made possible through a grant given by the Hartz Foundation to the library. The library has copies of all the available microfilmed newspapers from Pennington county. In addition, many people now receive magazine articles and documents in a microform format, so the new machine will have uses for genealogists, historians, educators, students and many more.

History tells us a lot about county's township names

(Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series on the origin of names of Pennington county townships written by Donna Myhrer for The Times.)

Next we turn to the question of the origin of some of the names of townships, cities and other locations, still known by a place name because, for example, there had been a rural post office in that spot. For this study, it is easiest to look at the locations in geographic order, starting in the northwest corner of the county and going straight down to cover in turn each set of three north to south as we work our way east.

First, then, is Numedal township, which, according to Upham, bears the name of a river in Norway, and of the series of farms and pasturelands along its valley.

Bray township, according to Upham, was named in honor of Damase Simon Bray, one of its pioneer farmers. He was born at Cedars, near Montreal, Canada, March 17, 1828; came to Minnesota in 1880, settling on a homestead in this township, as it was later organized; he moved to Red Lake Falls in 1886; and died there, September 24, 1908.

Polk Center (or Centre) was named for its situation near the center of the original area of Polk county. It was organized on April 9, 1883 according to the Polk county board minutes published in a Crookston newspaper. It contained a community named Wylie, in the original Section 25 of Polk Centre, but later, after the Pennington/Red Lake County split, this area became Wylie township of Red Lake County. The post office there was established in 1893 with Nick Eckstein as postmaster and was closed in 1932. Wylie, by the way, was named for William Wylie, an early settler.

Norden township at the north side successively of Polk, Red Lake and Pennington counties, received this name, meaning "Northern" from the languages of its Norwegian and Swedish settlers. Norden was originally part of Blaine township, which also included Rocksbury, North and Sanders in 1882. It was detached and organized as Norden township in March 1884. It was served by the post office of Tweet, named for its first postmaster, Ole J. Tweet. He was the son of Jakob and Martha Tvedt, who are buried at the Landstad cemetery. The Tweet post office was established in 1889 and discontinued in 1906.

Sanders township was named for Sander Engebretson, a native of Hallingdal, Norway, who was one of its pioneers. He was born April 16, 1851 and died August 2, 1916. He and his wife, Guri, are buried at the Landstad cemetery in Sanders township. Sanders township was also part of Blaine township, but was detached in July 1882.

Black River township slopes mostly southwestward, sending its drainage to the stream of this name, given on Nicollet's map in 1843, and was named for the river which ran through it at the time of its establishment. However, the river is today located in Polk Center township. Black River was the earliest formed of the present Pennington county townships and covered the area of Polk Center as well as parts of what were later to become other surrounding townships.

North township, directly east of Norden, also takes its current name for its location, and for its including the most northern part of the Red Lake river, at the city of Thief River Falls. An interesting fact about North township is that it, along with Sanders, Rocksbury and Norden townships, was originally named Blaine, in honor of a Minnesota politician, whom John B. LaBree endorsed in the Crookston paper as the 1882 election drew near. However, Mr. Blaine lost the election and thereafter, the township name was changed to North Star and later to North.

Rocksbury township was named in honor of Martin Rockstad, one of its first settlers, whose homestead farm in Section 4 was nearly in what is now Thief River Falls. Rockstad was the earliest post office there, established in March 1882. Rocksbury township was detached from Blaine township that same year.

River Falls township, according to Upham, had rapids of the Red Lake river, flowing over glacier drift boulders at St. Hilaire village, and in other parts of its course through this township. River Falls township was organized in March 1893. It contains the city of St. Hilaire on the west side of the Red Lake river, which was platted in 1882. St. Hilaire was named by Judge Frank Ives of Crookston for the French statesman and author, Jules Barthelemy-Saint-Hilaire, who was born in Paris, France August 19, 1805 and died November 24, 1895. Judge Ives owned land in St. Hilaire and rented out several buildings to shopkeepers during the early years of the community. His son, Harry Ives, was the publisher for many years of the St. Hilaire Spectator newspaper. St. Hilaire was organized as a village in 1883 and was rather prominent in the early days, because it was the terminus of a railroad spur from Shirley, a Great Northern Railroad water stop about seven miles north of Crookston. Regular train service to St. Hilaire, three days a week, began July 4, 1883, causing great envy from the citizens of Red Lake Falls. Hazel is a village on the Soo railway in Section 1, River Falls. According to Upham, it was named for two species of hazel, "much sought by children and squirrels for their excellent nuts, which are generally common in this county and throughout northern Minnesota."

Study looks at residential care in City of Argyle

City of Argyle was recently granted $4,100 for technical assistance from the Northwest Minnesota Foundation for the purpose of pursuing senior housing for the community.

Through the use of a professional consultant, research and information can be collected and analyzed to determine the feasibility and market potential of a residential care facility, enabling seniors in need of assistance to remain in the local community.

The City of Argyle will work with the Argyle Rural Economic Development Authority to act upon the recommendations of the professional consultant. The consultant will help the city to decide on the need and most feasible size of a senior residence that will provide some level of care services.

Bruce Hamnes, president of the NMF board of directors said the Argyle community has been committed to the senior housing issue for years. "The market study is genuinely needed by the city for a very specific and practical purpose," he said, "which is to issue bonds for building construction rather than as part of a larger and often uncertain grant search."

TRF students complete STAR team training

Sixth and seventh grade students from Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls, along with their advisor Carol Ihle, recently completed the Students Teaching Attitudes of Respect (STAR) team program sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Foundation. They were among a group of 46 students and advisors attending the two-day STAR team training at Concordia Language Villages near Bemidji.

STAR teams nurture young people in the development of their character, values and relationships. Focus is on communication skills, media awareness, personal styles in conflict management, non-competitive games and thought processes. Training is provided by STAR trainers, a team led by Sue Liedl that includes Sandra Robinson, Candy Roberts and Susan Smith. Along with team and individual training for the students, team building training for advisors is also provided. STAR team sessions include personal reflections, cooperative skills, skills to build self-awareness, preparation for potential conflicts, communication skills, and bringing back skills to our families and communities.

STAR teams training sessions are held in the fall with a follow-up "retreat" in April. STAR teams is available to sixth and seventh grade students from schools throughout the 12 northwest Minnesota counties including Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau. To date more than 340 students from area schools have taken part in the program.

STAR teams training will be held again on October 26-27, and November 2-3. For more information contact Rebecca Weir at the Northwest Minnesota Foundation office at 1-800-659-7859 or 218-759-2057.

Seniors discover more than fitness in aerobics program

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

"Incredible" was just one of the words used by a recent visitor to describe the senior aerobics class at the Heritage Community Center.

Jeff Hoffman, manager of the physical therapy department at Riverview Healthcare Association in Crookston, recently spent an hour observing the exercise class at the center, taking notes and gathering ideas that he hoped he might be able to implement in his own community. "We don't have anything like this in Crookston," Hoffman noted. "This is very impressive."

To get such a program going in Crookston, however, will probably be no easy task. Hoffman will have to find an enthusiastic, dedicated group of seniors and an equally enthusiastic, dedicated instructor — the elements that obviously make the program at the Heritage Community center so exciting and successful.

The aerobics program began at the Heritage Community Center when it opened its doors 12 years ago, and while the program has had three instructors during its history, Connie Dorn has been the instructor for the majority of those years.

Jean Helle appreciates the commitment that the program requires and says that left to her own devices, she would probably not exercise on a regular basis.

The class is held from 9 to 10 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in the dining room at the center. While up to 65 seniors have been registered for the class at one time, attendance varies from week to week and season to season with the average class including well over 30 participants. Of those, about a third have taken part in the program since it began.

Many of the program's members believe that the class would have even more participants if the word "aerobic" was more widely understood. However, the meaning of this type of activity is not nearly as scary as the word sounds.

Every minute of our lives, our bodies are burning up fuel with oxygen to produce energy. When we are doing something that demands that working muscles be supplied with extra oxygen, this type of activity is described as aerobic. While it should make us breathe harder and more deeply, it should not mean that we are so out of breath that we are forced to stop the activity all together.

The purpose of aerobic training is to improve, at all levels, the efficiency of the oxygen delivery system and the efficiency with which the muscles produce energy. In health terms, the benefits to be gained from aerobic exercise are enormous and include weight loss, increased life expectancy and an enhanced feeling of well-being.

For seniors, including most of those with illnesses and disabilities, a regular exercise program can help maintain and improve health. It helps seniors move more easily and with less effort, improves posture, and promotes relaxation. Also, maintaining bone strength can slow down the process of osteoporosis.

Anyone fearing aerobic exercise need not dread the program at the Heritage Center where everyone moves at his or her own pace to beat of a country western tune or big band song and the ever gentle encouragement of its instructor.

Always smiling, Connie Dorn has created a group that regards themselves as family with the social aspects of the gathering as important as the benefits of exercise.

Once the exercise session is over, some of its participants leave to enjoy coffee at a nearby restaurant while others remain at the center where the conversation is lively and happy with no grumbling or mention of aches and pains.

As Connie prepares to leave the center, she inquires about class members who were absent or engages in light-hearted banter with one of her admiring and admired "students."

Around the same age as many of the group members' own children, Connie is regarded as a "daughter" by many, and when asked by the Crookston visitor why they participate in the exercise program, it was Betty Roadfeldt who quickly responded, "It's the instructor!" Readily agreeing with Betty, a number of others commented about how Connie knows everyone by name and sincerely cares about every member's well-being.

Participants noted other benefits of the class as well. Phyllis Dalager said that she feels more "in tone with her body," and her husband Jim, said that he appreciates the social aspect of the program. "After all," he jested, "misery loves company." While class enrollment is dominated by females, Jim is one of a half dozen or so males who regularly participates in the program.

Jean Helle commented that she would probably not engage in a regular exercise if left to her own devices. "I'd probably be at home sitting in a chair watching 'Regis and Kathie Lee' right now," she said. She appreciates the commitment of being enrolled in the class and finds herself motivated by others.

Della Burstad is another who said, "I'd never exercise on my own." She does, however, enjoy the company of what she refers to as her "extended family" in an atmosphere where "everyone is happy."

Pat Dorn is also a program regular who has not let painful arthritis or even recent back surgery keep her away from the class for long. Noting that others are sometimes intimidated by the steps involved in aerobic exercise, she mentioned having recently helped a new participant learn the steps to one of the dances, helping the newcomer feel comfortable and welcome.

Although she jokingly claimed to be only 54, Caroline Brunelle is a long-time regular member of the class who will soon be 90. Two years ago she celebrated her 40th anniversary of employment at the Eagles where she continues to work two nights a week, often walking to her job from her downtown apartment.

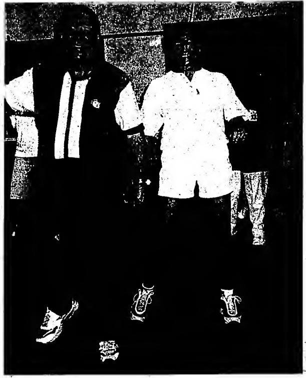
Age is of no consequence as Connie's watchful, caring eyes make certain that none of the exercisers are overextending themselves, and she encourages them to do only what they are comfortable doing.

In addition to teaching the class at the Heritage Center, Connie is the owner of the TRF Fitness Center. Located in the TRF Racquetball building on Hwy. 59 South, the center offers a variety of programs for men, women and children of all ages. Although she has 16 part-time employees, Connie says that she often puts in 75 to 80 hours a week at the center.

Noting that she is seeing more and more entire families using the fitness center, Connie adds that it is often the place where her own family gathers. Her husband, Tony Dorn Jr., is a fitness enthusiast and remains one of the community's best racquetball players. The couple's children are active at the center, too. Twelve-year-old Tony participates in the youth racquetball league, and Alle, 8, is a Fine Line dancer.

While she's excited about the new kick boxing and Jazzercize classes being offered at the center this fall, Connie remains devoted to her class at the Heritage Center. It's the one class that she says she "always wants to go to," and goes so far as to say it's the "most beneficial and motivating" of all the classes she teaches. She welcomes everyone, stressing that the class is casual and that anyone can start at any level and go at his or her own pace.

While whether or not the aerobics program at the Heritage Community Center becomes a model for a Crookston program remains to be seen, one thing thing is certain. It will take years to nurture a program that has the caring family atmosphere of the Thief River Falls program where its participants and instructor are equally committed to not only fitness, but friendship.



Can exercise possibly be this much fun? Dr. Charles Samuelson, AKA "Doc Sam," is one of a handful of males who regularly participates in the aerobics classes held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at the Heritage Community Center. While he's usually a fairly smiley guy, Doc Sam appears to be having a particularly enjoyable time marching alongside a smiling Connie Dorn, the program's instructor.

Grace Baptist Church, in Thief River Falls will be holding a Fall revival, October 17-22nd, at 7:00 each evening. The church is located at 1007 County Road 62. Phone: 681-3842

A soup and chili supper will be served following the Friday night service. Pastor Robert Harbin from Dubuque, Iowa will be the guest speaker each evening.

Robert Harbin grew up in the Detroit area and as a teenager was heavily involved with alcohol and gang activity. At the age of 17, after hearing the gospel for the first time, and seeing his life was on a dead-end road, he began attending a Baptist Church. After five years of being active in church, he realized that cleaning up his life on the outside was not going to get him any closer to heaven than his life on the streets. He finally turned to Jesus Christ as his own personal Saviour - "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast" Eph. 2:9.

God called Robert to preach, and in 1980 led him and his family to Grace Baptist Church in Dubuque, Iowa, where he is still faithfully serving God as pastor and evangelist.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...The Gov

If you're tired of Gov. Jesse, raise your hand. According to the most recent poll on the governor, seven out of 10 Minnesotans have grown weary of his antics.

At first we excused him for his loud-mouthing ineptitude, figuring he was new at the job and all. "He'll learn," we thought. Well, it's been almost a year and it doesn't appear that he's learning. In fact, it doesn't appear that he wants to learn. In fact, he seems to be enjoying all the attention he gets from being a boorish clown.

Our gov likes the spotlight, and, it appears, the bigger the spotlight, the better. Forget the little guys in Minnesota, let's head for the big time, for the national television networks, magazines and newspapers. Don't bother giving interviews to the little people of Minnesota, after all, they just elected "King" Ventura. Kick 'em out of the way now, 'cause he's on to bigger and better things, like the presidency. Get that national exposure, because who knows where an old wrestler with a bad back and a big mouth can go in this country.

"Show me the money," seems to be our gov's motto. Our gov will perform for whomever pays better. Forget the business of the state, pay attention to the business of Jesse, because that's where the money is going. It looks to me like he is trying to make as much money as he can while he is governor of Minnesota, just in case things go wrong and there won't be any more coming in later.

The gov's tendency to go for the money bothers me a lot. I thought public service was just that, with the emphasis on service and all that that word entails, like serving people and helping them and doing the best job possible for the people represented, never-minding getting the cold, hard cash for everything the gov does. Now it appears that the gov expects to be paid for whatever he does, never mind that he gets a pretty substantial salary. And he also wants his wife paid for her appearances as first lady. Doesn't this all seem a bit menial for the governor of our state?. Doesn't it trivialize the office, as well as the state and, naturally, the man himself?

And I don't like it one bit that Jesse is calling himself a King. Who died and made him king, anyway? We Minnesotans surely didn't have anything to do with making him king. If the recent poll is accurate, most of us wish we didn't even have anything to do with making him governor either, let alone king.

I think Jesse is trying to butter his bread on both sides. Anybody with a lick of sense knows that when bread is buttered on both sides, one side always loses its butter, sometimes into someone's lap. The Minnesota side of the bread is losing and the butter is in the lap.

Come now, a tell-all interview with "Playboy" magazine? How impressive for the governor of Minnesota. Then to knock organized religion in a state that epitomizes the religious breadbasket of the nation, and make stupid statements about a whole list of touchy subjects. How impressive for the governor of Minnesota.

While Minnesotans hang their heads in shame, the rest of the country laughs. Oh yes, Jesse is famous right now, but fame is fleeting. Here's a little spelling lesson, Jesse: If just two letters, I and N, are added to the word, "famous," it becomes the word "infamous." You'll find the definitions in the dictionary – it's that big book in your bookcase that you've never opened.

Bachelor of Science Degree
Indiana University, 1986
Greetings
I have some news from my office I went to share with you.
Name Change
In February 1999, Midwest Vision Center changed its name to Vista Optical. In addition to changing our name, we added over 300 new frames to our current frame inventory. This will provide you with over 700 frames to choose from.
A Personal Note
My office at Vista Optical is my personal optometry practice, which means I work both independently and in harmony with the store. Please contact my office at (218) 681-5606 with any concerns you might have. Since this is my full-time practice, it is important to me that your vision needs be met and we have a continuing relationship over many years.
The most important thing you can do to preserve your eyesight is to visit your optometrist for regular checkups. Like the rest of your body, your eyes will change gradually as you age. However, unlike the rest of your body, your eyes rarely hurt if something is wrong. I will advise you when it's time to be re-examined.
See You Soon

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. My Social Security disability application was turned down because my disability began when I no longer had enough work to qualify. What does this mean? Will I get benefits or not?

A. You will not. Just as with other types of Social Security benefits, one of the requirements for disability is that a person must have enough work in the program. For disability, this work must have taken place at specific times close to the time when you became unable to work.

To explain it simply, an adult must have about five years or 20 quarters of work out of 10 years or 40 quarters immediately before he or she became disabled to have enough work to be insured for disability.

Most of Social Security's adult clients easily meet this work requirement if they were working to the point of disability. Someone such as yourself, however, who stopped working years before becoming disabled might not meet this requirement.

If it would be impossible for a claimant to meet the work requirement, for instance because of a blank earnings record, Social Security would deny the claim without making any disability decision. A medical decision would be made to determine if a disability existed while insured status existed if there was enough work to have met the work requirement at some point near the time when you became disabled.

In your case, the decision was that you were not found disabled while still having insured status. In short, your application was denied, and you will not be receiving benefits. If you disagree, remember that an appeal process exists as outlined in your letter of decision.

A note to employers: W-2 time is rapidly approaching. Now would be a good time to be sure that the tax and earnings information for your employees is accurate. In particular, be sure that Social Security Numbers (SSN), names and addresses are correct on your records. Watch out for transposed digits on the SSN and avoid using nicknames in place of the employees' names. It would be best to report employee information using the same name as is on the person's Social Security card. Ask the following questions. Has the employee changed his or her name during the year? Is the correct name on your records? Has he or she changed his or her name with Social Security?

Three students from northwest Minnesota high schools have been named among 16,000 semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship program. They have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 7,600 Merit Scholarship awards worth over $28 million in the 45th annual competition.

Named as semifinalists are Lindsay Brunner of Roseau high school; Seth Harlow of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls; and David Adrian of Warren-Alvarado-Oslo high school.

Nearly 1.2 million students in over 20,000 U.S. high schools entered the year 2000 Merit Program as juniors by taking the 1998 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship qualifying test. Fewer than one percent of the nation's high school seniors were designated semifinalists.

To become finalists, semifinalists must have an outstanding high school academic record, be endorsed and recommended by their school principals and submit SAT scores that confirm their earlier qualifying test performance.

Also, the semifinalist and a school official must complete a detailed scholarship application which includes the student's self-descriptive essay as well as information about the semifinalist's participation and leadership in school and community activities.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Heidi Young, Lincoln High School

On September 30, I felt just like Alexander in a famous children's story. I had one of those "terrible, horrible, no good, very bad days."

Groaning, I jumped out of bed to shut my blaring, obnoxious alarm clock off. After showering, I dashed to my closet, throwing my prowler tennis uniform on. Our team had the annual Thief River Falls tennis invitational today. I drove quickly to my family's store, Scandia House, to e-mail my Literary Arts contest poem to Mrs. Olson, my advisor. I couldn't print it out myself because the printer cable was broken, and today was the deadline for postmark. I then dashed home to gather together my tennis gear.

I needed to arrive at the courts by 9:15 a.m. My stomach growled as warm thoughts of fresh doughnuts made my taste buds water and my stomach do flips. I decided I would rush out to get breakfast and stock my cooler to keep me going for the rest of my tennis-filled day.

Arms loaded, I locked the door and hobbled over to my car. I dropped my heavy tennis gear into the trunk and headed for the driver's seat. Fresh thoughts of soft, raspberry-filled Bismarcks danced in my head. Reaching into my pocket, my cold hand found emptiness where my house keys should have been. My mouth dropped as I stood, statue-like, shocked by my unexpected absent-mindedness. Thanks to my wonderful neighbors, I used their phone to call my teammate, Kara Skiple, to pick me up.

Having 55 minutes to wait, I decided to make the best of my time. I removed a sweatshirt from my bag, pulled it over my head, and headed for the back of my garage. Rubbing my hands together, I felt the sharp sting of the cold. Pondering over what to do, my eyes scanned to our big brown kitchen door; I resolved to unlock it.

Grabbing a bobbie pin from my hair, I thought back to those adventure movies I had watched as a kid where the bad guys break open the doors. I sprinted to the other side of the garage and grabbed a flashlight from my dad's tool kit. Stealing the small, portable flashlight, I marched back over to my post and focused it on the lock.

The light revealed two small holes. Since there were TWO holes, and TWO ends in my pin, I thought this JUST might work.

Adrenaline pumped through my veins as I anxiously twisted and turned, pulled and yanked, and struggled with all my might to get the door open. Exasperated from my valiant, yet unsuccessful effort, I gave up.

I grabbed hold of the pin, and pulled. Realizing it wasn't moving, I strained my muscles, jerking the pin as hard as my little body possible could. Frustration seared through my body as I tugged as the unmoving tool. After about 25 minutes, the pin finally came undone.

Panting, I slowly slipped downward until I was seated on the floor. I threw the now ruined hairpin angrily across the garage and I sat until I was able to catch my breath again. Hands frozen from the 35-degree temperature and the sharp, chilling wind, I moved around to get some feeling back in my numbed body.

After exploring an old pile of boxes for a bit, I discovered some miscellaneous items that had been missing. I found the match to my favorite pair of shoes I had lost in seventh grade, an undeveloped roll of film, my sister's missing checks, and my favorite Strawberry Shortcake lunch box that disappeared in fourth grade.

When 9:05 rolled around, Kara found me rummaging around in a pile of boxes, like an adventurer on a treasure hunt. Realizing how I must have looked in an old pile of boxes, I sheepishly flashed her an unsure smile and held up the roll of film I had just discovered as an explanation for my strange situation.

After arriving at the courts, my teammates commented on my beet red nose and cheeks and my dark, purple lips. Erin Clow seemed to be my other guardian angel of the day. Her small, giving hands greeting me with a whole box of warm, fresh doughnuts.

Just returned from a weekend visit to New York City and surrounding area. I enjoy New York, but I learned last trip not to try to drive there. This time I took mass transit. In one day, I used six separate forms of transportation.

I drove my pickup to the airport in Minneapolis. I flew into Newark. A shuttle bus carried me into Manhattan, where I was dumped off with my luggage at a busy street corner near Penn Station.

I hoped to store my bag at the station and go exploring the city, but thanks to the terrorist scares of some years ago, all lockers had been removed. I was doomed to carry my suitcase all day.

I walked to Grand Central Station. I was shocked to find it sparkling clean. The deep tunnels where bums used to sleep now house wine bars and trendy restaurants which cater to beautiful people from Wall Street. I think I prefer the bums, and I wonder where they are being kept.

I took the subway up to 87th Street on the Upper East Side. I was bound and determined to see an Impressionist exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. I found the museum, but I never found the Impressionists. Instead, I got lost in the Egyptian heads, which were fascinating enough.

After getting my fill of pharaohs, I set out across Central Park. I should have taken the bus. Central Park is so big that when you are in the middle of it, the city noises are barely audible.

Once I reached the Upper West Side, I called an old college buddy, who lived just across the river on the Jersey side. "Just take the ferry across," he said. "I'll pick you up at the dock."

By now, I had undergone as much stress and stimulation in one day as one would in an entire year of living in Norman County. My eyes were tired. I was drenched in sweat. I hated my suitcase.

It was good to see a familiar face at the dock. My college buddy and I shared a time of fellowship and renewal at a little pub before he poured me on the 9:35 train to Princeton, New Jersey, where I spent the weekend with friends.

It was a long day. As I dragged myself off the train, I felt as if I had just staggered off a long ride on the tilt-a-whirl. New York is like that. I was completely shot, but it was impossible to sleep with the noises of the greatest city on earth still ringing in my ears.

PARENTING TIPS
Ready, Set, Read!

Reading is one of the most beneficial things that a person can learn to do. As parents we should do all we can to prepare our children for this rewarding activity. Following are some of the ways that we can do this:

The more babies babble the better they will speak and usually the better a child speaks and thinks, the more likely he or she will become a better reader. There is a very definite connection between language and reading. Infants will learn language by having someone talk to them. It doesn't matter what you say. It does matter that you give them time to respond. Say something to the baby and wait for the baby to talk back. In this way you reinforce the idea of communication in their minds and also build their self concept.

During the toddler stage, learning language skills is still very important. Talk to your child, listen to your child, reinforce and praise his or her attempt to talk. Spend some time focusing on your child and let him or her know that what he or she says is important to you.

Pre-reading activities during the preschool years can involve many things. However, according to Bill Holloran, a national children's reading consultant, "the fastest way to encourage children to read, to develop vocabulary and oral expression is to read to them." By reading to them you can expose them to so many ideas, characters, words, etc. as well as providing a nice "cuddly" time together.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Have conversations with your young child, even the child that does not yet talk.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. My Social Security disability application was turned down because my disability began when I no longer had enough work to qualify. What does this mean? Will I get benefits or not?

A. You will not. Just as with other types of Social Security benefits, one of the requirements for disability is that a person must have enough work in the program. For disability, this work must have taken place at specific times close to the time when you became unable to work.

To explain it simply, an adult must have about five years or 20 quarters of work out of 10 years or 40 quarters immediately before he or she became disabled to have enough work to be insured for disability.

Most of Social Security's adult clients easily meet this work requirement if they were working to the point of disability. Someone such as yourself, however, who stopped working years before becoming disabled might not meet this requirement.

If it would be impossible for a claimant to meet the work requirement, for instance because of a blank earnings record, Social Security would deny the claim without making any disability decision. A medical decision would be made to determine if a disability existed while insured status existed if there was enough work to have met the work requirement at some point near the time when you became disabled.

In your case, the decision was that you were not found disabled while still having insured status. In short, your application was denied, and you will not be receiving benefits. If you disagree, remember that an appeal process exists as outlined in your letter of decision.

A note to employers: W-2 time is rapidly approaching. Now would be a good time to be sure that the tax and earnings information for your employees is accurate. In particular, be sure that Social Security Numbers (SSN), names and addresses are correct on your records. Watch out for transposed digits on the SSN and avoid using nicknames in place of the employees' names. It would be best to report employee information using the same name as is on the person's Social Security card. Ask the following questions. Has the employee changed his or her name during the year? Is the correct name on your records? Has he or she changed his or her name with Social Security?

Three named as National Merit semifinalists

Three students from northwest Minnesota high schools have been named among 16,000 semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship program. They have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 7,600 Merit Scholarship awards worth over $28 million in the 45th annual competition.

Named as semifinalists are Lindsay Brunner of Roseau high school; Seth Harlow of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls; and David Adrian of Warren-Alvarado-Oslo high school.

Nearly 1.2 million students in over 20,000 U.S. high schools entered the year 2000 Merit Program as juniors by taking the 1998 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship qualifying test. Fewer than one percent of the nation's high school seniors were designated semifinalists.

To become finalists, semifinalists must have an outstanding high school academic record, be endorsed and recommended by their school principals and submit SAT scores that confirm their earlier qualifying test performance.

Also, the semifinalist and a school official must complete a detailed scholarship application which includes the student's self-descriptive essay as well as information about the semifinalist's participation and leadership in school and community activities.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Heidi Young, Lincoln High School

On September 30, I felt just like Alexander in a famous children's story. I had one of those "terrible, horrible, no good, very bad days."

Groaning, I jumped out of bed to shut my blaring, obnoxious alarm clock off. After showering, I dashed to my closet, throwing my prowler tennis uniform on. Our team had the annual Thief River Falls tennis invitational today. I drove quickly to my family's store, Scandia House, to e-mail my Literary Arts contest poem to Mrs. Olson, my advisor. I couldn't print it out myself because the printer cable was broken, and today was the deadline for postmark. I then dashed home to gather together my tennis gear.

I needed to arrive at the courts by 9:15 a.m. My stomach growled as warm thoughts of fresh doughnuts made my taste buds water and my stomach do flips. I decided I would rush out to get breakfast and stock my cooler to keep me going for the rest of my tennis-filled day.

Arms loaded, I locked the door and hobbled over to my car. I dropped my heavy tennis gear into the trunk and headed for the driver's seat. Fresh thoughts of soft, raspberry-filled Bismarcks danced in my head. Reaching into my pocket, my cold hand found emptiness where my house keys should have been. My mouth dropped as I stood, statue-like, shocked by my unexpected absent-mindedness. Thanks to my wonderful neighbors, I used their phone to call my teammate, Kara Skiple, to pick me up.

Having 55 minutes to wait, I decided to make the best of my time. I removed a sweatshirt from my bag, pulled it over my head, and headed for the back of my garage. Rubbing my hands together, I felt the sharp sting of the cold. Pondering over what to do, my eyes scanned to our big brown kitchen door; I resolved to unlock it.

Grabbing a bobbie pin from my hair, I thought back to those adventure movies I had watched as a kid where the bad guys break open the doors. I sprinted to the other side of the garage and grabbed a flashlight from my dad's tool kit. Stealing the small, portable flashlight, I marched back over to my post and focused it on the lock.

The light revealed two small holes. Since there were TWO holes, and TWO ends in my pin, I thought this JUST might work.

Adrenaline pumped through my veins as I anxiously twisted and turned, pulled and yanked, and struggled with all my might to get the door open. Exasperated from my valiant, yet unsuccessful effort, I gave up.

I grabbed hold of the pin, and pulled. Realizing it wasn't moving, I strained my muscles, jerking the pin as hard as my little body possible could. Frustration seared through my body as I tugged as the unmoving tool. After about 25 minutes, the pin finally came undone.

Panting, I slowly slipped downward until I was seated on the floor. I threw the now ruined hairpin angrily across the garage and I sat until I was able to catch my breath again. Hands frozen from the 35-degree temperature and the sharp, chilling wind, I moved around to get some feeling back in my numbed body.

After exploring an old pile of boxes for a bit, I discovered some miscellaneous items that had been missing. I found the match to my favorite pair of shoes I had lost in seventh grade, an undeveloped roll of film, my sister's missing checks, and my favorite Strawberry Shortcake lunch box that disappeared in fourth grade.

When 9:05 rolled around, Kara found me rummaging around in a pile of boxes, like an adventurer on a treasure hunt. Realizing how I must have looked in an old pile of boxes, I sheepishly flashed her an unsure smile and held up the roll of film I had just discovered as an explanation for my strange situation.

After arriving at the courts, my teammates commented on my beet red nose and cheeks and my dark, purple lips. Erin Clow seemed to be my other guardian angel of the day. Her small, giving hands greeting me with a whole box of warm, fresh doughnuts.

Down On The Farm

Just returned from a weekend visit to New York City and surrounding area. I enjoy New York, but I learned last trip not to try to drive there. This time I took mass transit. In one day, I used six separate forms of transportation.

I drove my pickup to the airport in Minneapolis. I flew into Newark. A shuttle bus carried me into Manhattan, where I was dumped off with my luggage at a busy street corner near Penn Station.

I hoped to store my bag at the station and go exploring the city, but thanks to the terrorist scares of some years ago, all lockers had been removed. I was doomed to carry my suitcase all day.

I walked to Grand Central Station. I was shocked to find it sparkling clean. The deep tunnels where bums used to sleep now house wine bars and trendy restaurants which cater to beautiful people from Wall Street. I think I prefer the bums, and I wonder where they are being kept.

I took the subway up to 87th Street on the Upper East Side. I was bound and determined to see an Impressionist exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. I found the museum, but I never found the Impressionists. Instead, I got lost in the Egyptian heads, which were fascinating enough.

After getting my fill of pharaohs, I set out across Central Park. I should have taken the bus. Central Park is so big that when you are in the middle of it, the city noises are barely audible.

Once I reached the Upper West Side, I called an old college buddy, who lived just across the river on the Jersey side. "Just take the ferry across," he said. "I'll pick you up at the dock."

By now, I had undergone as much stress and stimulation in one day as one would in an entire year of living in Norman County. My eyes were tired. I was drenched in sweat. I hated my suitcase.

It was good to see a familiar face at the dock. My college buddy and I shared a time of fellowship and renewal at a little pub before he poured me on the 9:35 train to Princeton, New Jersey, where I spent the weekend with friends.

It was a long day. As I dragged myself off the train, I felt as if I had just staggered off a long ride on the tilt-o-whirl. New York is like that. I was completely shot, but it was impossible to sleep with the noises of the greatest city on earth still ringing in my ears.

PARENTING TIPS

Ready, Set, Read!

Reading is one of the most beneficial things that a person can learn to do. As parents we should do all we can to prepare our children for this rewarding activity. Following are some of the ways that we can do this:

The more babies babble the better they will speak and usually the better a child speaks and thinks, the more likely he or she will become a better reader. There is a very definite connection between language and reading. Infants will learn language by having someone talk to them. It doesn't matter what you say. It does matter that you give them time to respond. Say something to the baby and wait for the baby to talk back. In this way you reinforce the idea of communication in their minds and also build their self concept.

During the toddler stage, learning language skills is still very important. Talk to your child, listen to your child, reinforce and praise his or her attempt to talk. Spend some time focusing on your child and let him or her know that what he or she says is important to you.

Pre-reading activities during the preschool years can involve many things. However, according to Bill Holloran, a national children's reading consultant, "the fastest way to encourage children to read, to develop vocabulary and oral expression is to read to them." By reading to them you can expose them to so many ideas, characters, words, etc. as well as providing a nice "cuddly" time together.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Have conversations with your young child, even the child that does not yet talk.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Northwestern Mental Health receives grant

Northwestern Mental Health Center recently received $20,000 from Northwest Minnesota Foundation. The grant will support Northwestern Mental Health Center's Domestic Abuse Treatment program. Northwestern Mental Health is trying to reduce expenses and increase alternative sources of revenue to continue the four-year-old program.

A Domestic Abuse Treatment Coalition (DATCo) was formed in 1993 to treat domestic-abuse offenders in the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Mahnomen, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau. The Coalition works with agencies and organizations to identify perpetrators of domestic abuse, bring them to justice, and monitor whether they receive treatment.

The Domestic Abuse Treatment program addresses the issue of domestic violence through leadership, systems coordination and treatment for individuals who have engaged in physical abuse of their partner. The program has taken a leadership role in addressing the many components involved in community intervention in violence. Through research, advocacy, coalition building and treatment, the program has successfully created a strong intervention program that has made a significant impact on the issue of domestic violence in the region.

According to NMF Executive Director Ruth Edevold, DATCo has always been one of the most effective inter-agency collaborations funded by the Foundation. "Don Christie and Dan Wilson, the leaders of the Domestic Abuse Treatment Program, have a definite goal in sight," said Edevold. "They have a clear picture of how this program can function with more limited means. The NMF can be the bridge to help them get there.

"Although violence prevention may not be an explicit area of interest for our grant programs," Edevold said, "NMF has made a commitment to the cause of tolerance through Valuing Diversity and STAR youth leadership programs, and is highly supportive of collaborative responses to problems."

Breast cancer screening can reduce deaths

Annual screening can reduce breast cancer deaths by one-third. To remind women over the age of 40 to obtain regular mammograms, area residents will post "pink ribbon reminders" throughout the Thief River Falls area during October.

"When you see a pink ribbon, think mammography and breast exams," says Julie Desrocher, American Cancer Society chairman in Thief River Falls. "If every woman in Minnesota were screened according to the guidelines, we'd save 240 lives a year." All women are at risk for breast cancer and that risk increases with age.

The rate of death from breast cancer has fallen in recent years thanks to earlier detection and improved treatment methods, according to June Korn, M.D., medical director of the Cancer Control Section, Minnesota Department of Health. "The earlier the cancer is found the more likely the patient will become a survivor. Five years after diagnosis, over 95 percent of women with localized breast cancer are alive. If the cancer has spread throughout the body by the time of diagnosis, however, the five-year survival rate drops to 20 percent. That is why early detection is so crucial." An estimated 2,800 Minnesota women are diagnosed with breast cancer each year and approximately 700 women die from the disease.

"Our research shows that only about half of Minnesota women (53 percent) over age 40 are screened regularly with mammography," stated Korn. Cost, knowledge of guidelines and not being referred by a health care provider are among the reasons women cite for not receiving routine screening.

"The Pink Ribbon Campaign addresses all three of these reasons. We hope to remind every woman over age 40 in the area to get regular mammograms and provide information on how and where to get free or low-cost mammograms," says Desrocher.

The Minnesota Breast and Cervical Cancer Control Program (MBCCCP) provides free breast and cervical cancer screening to low income, uninsured and underinsured women. Through a network of more than 290 clinics statewide, the program has served more than 60,000 women from every county in Minnesota and has detected over 350 cases of cancer.

The American Cancer Society provides information on low-cost mammograms to qualified women who are ineligible for the free mammograms provided by MBCCCP. Women can call 1-800-ACS-2345 for information on both programs.

Health officials say now is best time to get shots

State health officials from the Minnesota Department of Health are urging people to get their annual flu shot within the next few weeks, so they'll be protected by the time flue season gets underway this year in Minnesota.

Because it takes about two weeks for the influenza vaccine to take effect, October and early November is generally the best time to get immunized, according to officials at the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH). Although it's difficult to predict exactly when flu season will arrive, the first Minnesota cases are usually reported in late November or early December.

Health care providers and public health officials throughout Minnesota have already begun their annual effort to get people immunized against the flu. As in past years, the shots are especially recommended for people who may be at high risk of developing complications from the flu. However, MDH officials say other people may also want to consider getting a shot. Studies have shown that, even among young, healthy people, the influenza vaccine can prevent lost work time and reduce the occurrence of respiratory infections.

The high risk group for flu complications includes people over 65, as well as people with heart disease, lung disease, diabetes or immune system problems. It also includes women who will be more than three months pregnant during flu season, as well as some health care workers.

Over the last few years, officials have been making a special effort to encourage flu shots for people with diabetes, as part of the national "Life Preserver" campaign, coordinated by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

People with diabetes are about three times as likely as other people to die from complications of influenza, health officials say. Nationwide, an estimated 30,000 people with diabetes die every year of influenza complications.

Nationally, fewer than half of all people with diagnosed diabetes have been getting their annual flu shot. Minnesota does a slightly better job of immunizing this group, with just under 60 percent getting their annual dose of flu vaccine.

Also at risk of flu complications are children and teenagers with diseases like arthritis, which are commonly treated with aspirin. In children, aspirin can increase the risk of developing a serious condition called Reye syndrome after recovering from influenza.

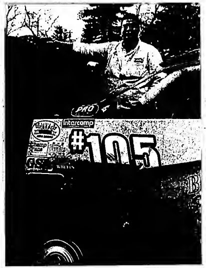
Health officials are also reminding people that they need to get a flu shot every year, even if they've had one previously. The flu vaccine usually has to be reformulated every year, to protect against those strains of the influenza virus that are most likely to make an appearance during the upcoming flu season. However, this year's vaccine is designed to protect against the same strains included in last year's vaccine — A Beijing, A Sydney and B Beijing.

The symptoms of influenza — which tend to appear suddenly — usually include a sore throat, a dry cough, a high fever, headache, muscle and joint pain, and fatigue. People who become severely ill with influenza-like symptoms should see a physician.

People at high risk for flu complications should also get a shot for pneumococcal pneumonia, a common complication of influenza that claims 40,000 lives a year nationwide. Unlike the flu shots — which must be repeated every year — the pneumonia shot usually has to be given only once.

People with questions about adult immunizations should talk to their health care provider or call the Minnesota Immunization Hotline at 1-800-657-3970 or 612-676-5100. The hotline is staffed from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Information about influenza and flu shot clinics is also available at: www.health.state.mn.us/divs/dpc/adps/newshort/newshort.htm.



The Thief River Falls Race Association held a fan appreciation picnic in Floyd B. Olson Park in Thief River Falls on Saturday. There are about 66 club members in the organization, 11 of which participate in races. Many of the racers displayed their race cars in the parking lot. Terry Blacklance, one of the racers in the club, said the main goal of the organization is to bring back racing to Thief River Falls. The picnic held Saturday was held to recognize the support of fans and sponsors.

Community Bible class to be offered in Newfolden

Due to last year's positive response, the Community Bible class will be offered again this year in Newfolden.

Intended for the entire community, the class will be non-denominational in its orientation and will study the common roots of all denominations, producing a variety of ideas and perspectives and thus generating thoughtful and lively interaction.

The class will study the book of Acts written by Dr. Luke as presented in The Visual Bible, and audio-visual dramatization based on a word for word rendition of the New International Version of the Bible. Last year's students found this dramatic format not only easy to understand but frequently bringing new perspectives because of its dynamic approach. Rev. Gary Barrett of the Evangelical Free Church will lead the class discussions.

The classes are free and open to the public and will be conducted on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8:15 at the Newfolden Elementary School beginning tonight (October 13).

World Trade Organization meetings set

World Trade Organization information meetings have been scheduled in Mahnomen, Erskine and Thief River Falls.

Did you know that the World Trade Organization (WTO) can determine domestic farm policy; that while the U.S. has abandoned its price support system, other countries keep high tariffs and subsidies; and that food produced with chemicals that are banned in the U.S. cannot be restricted from this country?

Organizers of the informational meetings are asking the public to join the fight to save rural communities. Representatives at the meeting will include Congressman Collin Peterson, and representatives from the Institute for Agriculture and Trade Policy, Minnesota Fair Trade Coalition, and Minnesota Farmers Union.

The meetings will be held at the following communities, dates and times: Mahnomen at the Red Apple Cafe on Friday, October 15, at 7 p.m.; Erskine Ness Cafe on Saturday, October 16, at 9 a.m.; and Thief River Falls, Northland Community and Technical College, on Saturday, October 16, at 1 p.m.

Music City to perform in TRF on October 16

Music City, a group of young Christian artists and song writers traveling and performing Southern Gospel Music, will perform at 7 p.m. on Saturday, October 16, at United Methodist Church in Thief River Falls.

Brothers, Chad, Andrew and Mark, formed Music City in 1990. They have been a favorite at the Mid-West Quartet Convention as well as the "LoveSong" music festivals and Spring Quartet Convention.

Beneath their singing and song writing lies a foundation of stone, a foundation that Music City has built their ministry on. That Foundation is Christ and His ministry. Music City believes that everyone has but one purpose on this earth — to glorify the name of Jesus and to prepare the way for His return.

club from Minneapolis, said they set up their display at about five shows per year. It only takes and hour and a half, he said. He enjoys attending the shows and was anxiously awaiting the return of fellow club members who were touring the renovated Soo Line depot, and the roundhouse operated by Independent Locomotive Service.

Railroads are a significant element of this community's history. Without railroads, it's true, Thief River Falls wouldn't be what it is today. Perhaps because we are surrounded by it on a daily basis, so many seem to have forgotten all that we have to offer in the form of true historical railroading history and memorabilia.

Last weekend's model railroad show included model railroad displays, HO scale to the large G scale, and from traditional to "eventual" displayed by the "Extinct, Existing and Eventual Railroad" club - It also included tours of the 1024 engine, the renovated Soo Line Depot, the roundhouse, and Pioneer Village, which we are reminded has on display two cabooses, two depots and a great deal of railroad memorabilia.

Here it seems appropriate to step out of order for a moment and look at Wyandotte township, which bears the name of a confederation of four Iroquoian tribes, called Hurons by the French, who lived in the part of Canada southeast of Lake Huron and the Georgian Bay. Wyandotte township was organized in March 1884.

Beginning with Silverton township and continuing on in the established order of this article, the remaining townships (except for Wyandotte, which is south of Silverton and Smiley) make up the Eleven Towns, which were part of the Red Lake Indian Reservation until 1905. The name Eleven Towns was also used by the Goodridge newspaper from 1905 to 1918.

Silverton township, according to Upham, received this name by the vote of its people. It is near the eastern limit of the silverberry, a shrub having whitish leaves and bearing edible berries of the same silvery color, common along the Red River Valley and west.

Smiley township was named in honor of William C. Smiley, who in 1904 was the county surveyor of Red Lake county, and in later years, practiced law in St. Paul. A post office, called Anton, located in Section 10 of Smiley, was established in 1904, with Peter O. Berg as the postmaster. It was closed in 1910.

Cloverleaf township was named for its white clover, growing abundantly in many places beside roads and on pastured lands. The village and post office of Mavie were originally located in Silverton township, then moved to one place in Cloverleaf and later to a second location in Cloverleaf on the electric railway in Cloverleaf township. The first name proposed for the post office here, which was established in 1907, was Twig. It was closed February 1, 1944.

Kratka township and village, beside the Red Lake river, were named in honor of Frank H. Kratka, an early merchant of this county. He was born at Sugar Island, Wisconsin May 21, 1850; settled in 1884 at the site of Thief River Falls, then called Rockstad as a trading post for the Ojibway of the adjacent Red Lake and Pembina Indian reservations; learned their language and was interpreter, was the first postmaster of Thief River Falls in 1887-88, when the village was platted and named; was its president in 1891 and 1893, the first mayor after its incorporation as a city, 1896-97, and again in 1902-03; likewise for a second time was the postmaster, 1907-14; removed to Pasadena, CA, where he died January 27, 1915. The Ojibway called him Ogemah, meaning a chief; but in 1896 he opposed an endeavor to rename Thief River Falls as Ogemah Falls. Bronkeberg post office in Kratka township was established in 1905 and closed in 1911.

According to Upham, Mayfield township was named in honor of A. C. Mayfield, who was one of its early homesteaders, coming from Wisconsin. It was served for a time by a post office called Malone or Austad, which was located in Section 11. It was established in 1907 with Gunder Austad as postmaster and closed in 1915.

Goodridge township and its village, which were on an electric railway line from Thief River Falls, in Section 21, was named for a broad but very low ridge, only a few feet above the adjoining areas at each side, which reaches from the village about four miles southeastward.

Highlanding township and its village on the north bank of the Red Lake river, are named from the relatively high ground there adjoining the stream, which made this a favorable place for the landing of steamboats on their passage between Thief River Falls and Red lake. Erie post office in Highlanding township was named by Alex F. Lattimore, who came from near Erie, PA. He was the editor of the Eleven Towns. A second post office called Kuehnel in Section 20 was established by Miss Auguste Kuehnel as postmaster in 1905. It was closed in 1913.

Sunbeam, a post office in Highlanding township was named by W. G. Hunt, publisher of its local newspaper, which had the same name. On April 20, 1901 Hunt published the first issue of his newspaper at Gully. He stated that when considering names for the new paper, the Cyclone was considered but was "a little too suggestive of looking for trouble to suit the peaceful inclinations of the editor, but the sun's rays sometimes scorch to a blister" so the new publication would be the Sunbeam. In 1905 he moved to Highlanding township to take advantage of the need homesteaders had to publish their final proof under the Homestead Act in the nearest newspaper at a cost of $5. Other county papers attacked him for not running a true newspaper, but only seeking the $5 fees from the publication of final proofs. The post office and newspaper were both closed in Highlanding township in 1919 after Hunt's daughter, who had assisted him in both enterprises, married and could no longer devote the time to the businesses, with the subscription list of the paper being sold to the Tribune in Thief River Falls.

Deer Park township was formerly a favorite hunting ground for deer, which continue to be found in this eastern part of the county. It had several post offices including Hilda in Section 1, named in honor of the wife of Olaf Hanson, a pioneer farmer who was its first postmaster; Radney, established in 1905 with John Radneicki as postmaster and closed in 1910; Rhoda, a post office which was originally called Singer, was established in 1905 with Edward Singer as postmaster and closed in 1930; and Roland, although originally in Deer Park township, the location of which is now in Red Lake county, because of the county line changes in 1910.

Reiner township was named in compliment for Reinhard Johnsrod, who later was the township treasurer. Torgerson, a post office in Reiner, was named for Mikkle Torgerson, a homestead farmer, who was the first clerk of this township.

Star township, for which the name Zenith was also proposed, according to Upham, received its name by vote of its people, who thought Zenith difficult to pronounce. It has reference to the polar or north star, in the French language 'L'Etoile du Nord' of the state seal, from which Minnesota is popularly called the North Star State.

Hickory township, the most southeastern in the county, is at or near the northwestern limit of the swamp hickory or bitternut. This species, according to Upham, furnished nearly all the hoop-poles for flour barrels cut in the southern and central parts of the state. This township was also home to several post offices including Homme, established in 1913 with Halvor Homme as postmaster and closed in 1915; Irma, established in 1907 with John Mostrom as postmaster and closed later that same year; Kokosh, with Archibald D. Brown as postmaster, opened and closed in 1906; Liegaard (1913-1914) with Lars Lee as postmaster; Neptune, established in 1909 with Archibald D. Brown as postmaster and closed in 1932; and Rudell, established in 1905 with Julius Olson as postmaster and closed in 1922.

Detroit Lakes quarterback Ryan Menke followed the block of Ricky Beeson (88) into the line, where he was met by Thief River Falls' Josh Horn (56) during Friday's high school football game in Detroit Lakes. The Lakers beat the Prowlers 26-6 in a match-up of 4-1 teams.

Mustangs out-score Spartans

Long-range scores ignited slow-starting Red Lake County Central Friday, propelling the Mustangs past host Ulen-Hitterdal 48-20 in high school football.

A scoreless first quarter tie was followed by five second quarter touchdowns – four of them by the Mustangs.

It started with a 47-yard run by the Mustangs' Andy Gustafson, followed by a 26-yard game-tying run by the Spartans' Travis Johnson.

Benji Kvasager made sure the tie was not long-lived by returning the ensuing kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown.

Ulen-Hitterdal threatened to match the Red Lake County Central output with a drive that reached the Mustangs' 3-yard line, where Brent Nelson turned the game around with a 97-yard pass interception return for a touchdown that made it 20-6.

"That was a big play," acknowledged Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "That was a two-touchdown swing right there.

A blocked punt by Heath Rosten led to a 16-yard touchdown run for Gustafson to make it 26-6 at halftime.

Red Lake County Central all but wrapped up the win with a five-minute scoring drive to open the second half – that ended on a 5-yard Wade Westlake touchdown run.

Long-range scoring by the winners also included a 60-yard run by Matt Hruby and a 50-yard run by Derrick Larson in the second half.

The win put the Mustangs at 4-2.

"We started a little slow, but once we got going we played pretty well," said Brantl. "Everybody got a chance to play, and most of them played more than just a little bit."

Gustafson finished with 171 yards on just six carries, while Matt Hruby netted 107 yards on nine attempts and Westlake collected 76 yards on 18 rushes.

It was the second straight week the Mustangs, who finished with 424 yards on 42 running plays, have had two 100-yard runners. An offensive line that starts Chris Nelson, Cole Mickelson, Adam Korulewski, Brent Nelson, and Rosten has been a major factor opening holes for the runners, who gained over 300 yards a week earlier in a 44-8 win over Norman County East. Brantl was also quick to credit the runners themselves for their efforts as lead blockers out of the backfield.

Red Lake County Central quarterback Carl Dugstad was 3-for-6 passing for 58 yards, with Rosten (35 yards), Kvasager (14) and Chris Lessard (7) catching one pass each.

Defensively, Brent Nelson and Westlake were both in on seven tackles and had interceptions; Hruby was credited with seven tackles and blocked a punt; Korulewski was in on five tackles; Kvasager had four tackles and an interception; and Rosten blocked two punts, recovered a fumble and registered a quarterback sack.

The Mustangs will take on Climax/Fisher, another 4-2 team, in a key Section 7 Nine-Man match-up Friday in Plummer.

Lakers run by Prowlers 26-6

Brian Morrison broke off touchdown runs of 45 and 48 yards on consecutive third quarter carries Friday to lead Detroit Lakes past Thief River Falls 26-6 in a match-up of 4-1 Section 8AAAA high school football leaders.

The Prowlers managed to dodge the bullet in the first half when the Lakers had to settle for a 7-6 edge after watching scoring threats end at the Thief River Falls 11, 16 and 6-yard lines.

But while holding its ground when two fumbles threatened to put the Prowlers in an early hole, the defense gave up the big play. Three of the Lakers' touchdowns were runs covering 40 yards or more – off the patented Detroit Lakes dive-option offense.

"That's a typical Detroit Lakes team," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "They come right at you; nothing fancy. People want to know why you can't defend a simple dive, but nobody does it better than Detroit Lakes. They do it better than anybody else in Minnesota. They've perfected it."

Key to the Lakers' success with their no-nonsense attack, according to Mumm, rests with senior quarterback Ryan Manke. He carried the ball a team-high 17 times off that option for 119 yards and two touchdowns "Manke's the deal," offered Mumm. "He makes it happen."

The Thief River Falls defense stole the show in the first half. On consecutive first quarter series, Detroit Lakes' Ricky Beeson recovered a fumbled hand-off exchange at the Prowlers 16 and Jake Grinaker had a perfect read on a lateral throw by quarterback Brad Bulger that he picked off at the Thief River Falls 32 and returned to the 23. But the Lakers moved just five yards with the first opportunity and only seven yards on the second chance.

Then, after forcing a Thief River Falls punt, the Lakers were promptly back at the Prowlers' 6-yard line when Manke broke off a 22-yard keeper. But again, the Prowlers' defense, with the help of a pair of delay-of-game penalties called against Detroit Lakes, kept the scoreboard locked at 0-0.

"We gave them plenty of opportunities in the first half, but our defense kept making play after play," noted Mumm.

Manke shattered the scoreless tie when he got to the outside on a keeper to the left, turned the corner and danced down the sidelines for a 40-yard touchdown run with 3:41 remaining in the first half. Kirk Eilerton's kick made it 7-0.

However, Thief River Falls responded in quick fashion when Nick Drees broke tackles on the inside, picked up blockers downfield and broke into the open on a 67-yard run before being caught from behind at the Detroit Lakes 7. Brian Loe took the next carry into the end zone as he bounced outside to the left with 1:51 to play in the half. But the try for the tying conversion kick didn't connect, leaving it 7-6 at intermission.

Morrison, who finished with a game-high 143 yards on 14 carries, then beat the Thief River Falls defense on those third quarter carries. The first one followed a 25-yard punt return by Derek Blackburn to the Lakers' 41 and a 14-yard first snap gain by Jon Olson, who ran out of the arms of a Thief River Falls tackler behind the line of scrimmage to reach the Prowlers' 45. Morrison scored from there on an option dive through the right side.

A key Thief River Falls penalty that turned a third-and-inches into a third-and-six, then a punt, set up Morrison's second touchdown. The 48-yarder was a carbon copy of his first score, hiking the difference to 20-6 with 2:24 to play in the third quarter.

"We're scrambling on offense right now," admitted Mumm. "We're just not very consistent."

The results dropped Thief River Falls out of the top spot in the 8AAAA standings, but Mumm was satisfied with the Prowlers' showing. "It was a great effort," he said. "We made a few mistakes and had a couple of penalties that hurt, but I'm happy with the effort."

The Otters are 5-1. They opened the year with wins over Albany 20-19, Moorhead 24-14, Cloquet 42-12, and Crookston 42-7 before losing to Detroit Lakes 25-20. Fergus Falls bounced back from the loss to the Lakers with a 35-18 victory over Morris Area Friday.

Thief River Falls, 4-2, was knocked out of the lead in the 8AAAA points standings with the loss to Detroit Lakes, but the Prowlers are still looking for a home field edge for the first round of the playoffs. They will follow the Fergus Falls game with their regular season finale at home Wednesday, Oct. 20, vs. East Grand Forks.

Northland playing for a division title

Northland guaranteed itself a spot in the 1999 Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoffs by virtue of a 21-7 win over Itasca last Thursday. This Thursday the Pioneers will try to win the Northern Division title with a win over Mesabi Range. The regular season finale will have a 7 p.m. kickoff at Virginia.

A Northland loss, coupled with a Vermilion win over Hibbing Saturday, would give the Ironmen the division crown and drop the Pioneers into second place.

First place has a definite advantage when it comes to the playoffs since the Northern and Southern Division champions will host the Oct. 23 semifinals against the runner-up finishers from the opposite division. State championship game will be played Oct. 30 at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

Northland is 5-2 for the year, with wins over Central Lakes 28-26, Fergus Falls 16-8, Minnesota West 21-14, Hibbing 50-43, and Itasca. The losses came at the hands of Ridgewater 31-7 and Vermilion 30-20.

Mesabi Range is just 2-5, but one of those wins – 8-7 over Vermilion back on Sept. 16 – could be a major factor in the final Northern Division standings.

Unbeaten Rochester clinched the Southern Division title Saturday with a 52-6 rout of previously undefeated Ridgewater.

Northland volleyball team beaten in three starts on home floor

A Northland Community and Technical College volleyball team that had won three straight matches and was on a 6-1 run, stumbled with three home court losses over the weekend.

Vermilion beat the Pioneers 15-10, 10-15, 15-10, 15-11 in a Friday Minnesota Community College Conference match.

Saturday, Northland played host to the Pioneers' Pepsi Triangular, where they were swept by Mesabi Range and Providence College.

Mesabi Range won a 15-4, 16-14, 15-8 MCCC-counting contest. Providence, a Manitoba school, won a two-out-of-three game match 15-13, 15-12.

The setbacks left Northland 12-9 overall and 6-5 in the MCCC heading into a Northern Division match tonight (Wednesday) at Itasca. The Pioneers will also be on the road Friday for a rematch with Providence College.

Northland will end the regular season at home with Northern Division matches Monday, Oct. 18, vs. Fergus Falls and Wednesday, Oct. 20, against Central Lakes.

Intact Gators win 46-20 game

All the pieces were back in place Friday as Badger/Greenbush-Middle River rolled to a 46-20 high school football win over Lake Park-Audubon in Middle River.

David Truscinski, sidelined by a knee injury early in Game 2, is back at quarterback, which sends Josh Smith back to halfback. And Kagen Waage has also returned from the injury list to fill out the Gators' original starting backfield.

The result was a 424-yard offensive outing for the winners, including a 20-carry, 139-yard game for Waage; a 9-carry, 120-yard game for Smith; and 7-for-10 passing (47 yards) for Truscinski.

It also ended a four-game losing streak for the 2-4 Gators.

"It makes a big difference to have everybody back," noted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "With everybody healthy, we can focus on the playoffs."

A full line-up also makes a difference on defense for the Gators, who gave up just five yards in both the first and third quarters Friday, and surrendered 193 for the night. "It was a good, solid team effort on defense," pointed out Neibauer.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River will host Fort Frances, ON, Friday and finish the regular season with a Wednesday, Oct. 20, contest against Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

Two Pioneers earn MCCC Player of the Week award

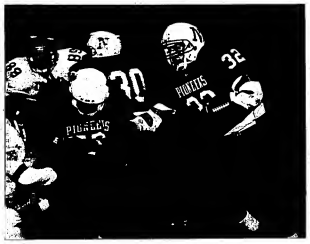
Two Northland Community and Technical College athletes earned Minnesota Community College Conference honors for their performances last week.

It was announced Monday that Amie Kotrba of Northland and Shannon Nevala of Vermilion shared the MCCC volleyball Player of the Week award, and that Scott Olsen of the Pioneers was named the MCCC football Northern Division Offensive Player of the Week.

Kotrba, a sophomore outside hitter from Goodridge, had 42 kills, 15 digs and 9 ace serves in the Pioneers' weekend matches against Vermilion, Mesabi Range, and Providence College.

Olsen, a freshmen fullback from Hillsboro, ND, was honored for his 33-carry, 253-yard, two-touchdown game in a 21-7 Thursday win over Itasca. It was the third time this fall Olsen has earned the weekly award.

Nick Drees was about to be hit by Detroit Lakes' Jake Grineker as he approached the line of scrimmage during Thief River Falls' Friday night high school football game against the host Lakers. Brian Loe (21) tried to provide a block for Drees on the play. The Lakers won 26-6.



Matt Hitchen followed his Northland blockers for a first quarter gain against Itasca during Thursday's Minnesota Community College Conference football game in Thief River Falls. Hitchen, a sophomore from Fertile-Beltrami, rushed for 170 yards on 19 carries as the Pioneers clinched an MCCC playoff berth with a 21-7 win over the Vikings. Northland will finish the 1999 regular season against Mesabi Range in Virginia Thursday. A win would wrap up a Northern Division title for the Pioneers.

Nordics third at Warroad tourney

Marshall County Central lost a single match at the Warroad Invitational high school volleyball tournament Saturday, but had to settle for third place in the eight-team field.

The Nordics opened the pool play portion of the event with wins over Indus 15-3, 15-13 and Chisholm 15-11, 14-16, 15-0 before running into Kittson Central. The Wolfpack won the showdown 11-15, 15-9, 15-13.

Those results put Marshall County Central in the third place match, where the Nordics swept Stephen-Argyle 15-6, 15-10.

"We were in a tough pool," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "It was a knock-down, drag-out series of matches. All the teams in the pool were exhausted by the time they were done."

Three-game matches ended in rally-point scoring. Against Chisholm, Marshall County Central picked up the first final-game point on a missed serve, then scored the next 14 points with Tero Davidson at the service line. Against Kittson Central, several close calls went against the Nordics in a down-to-the-wire finish.

It was a tired Marshall County Central squad that took the court against Stephen-Argyle, noted Jorgenson, whose team is 15-5 for the year.

Davidson, Kristi Kilen and Mandi Blawat all had strong tournament efforts, mentioned Jorgenson.

B/G-MR volleyball team has 2-2 day at Warroad

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had a 2-2, fifth place finish Saturday at the Warroad Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

Stephen-Argyle edged Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 16-14, 17-15 to start pool play competition. The Gators came back to beat Northome-Kelliher 13-15, 15-2, 15-13, but were swept by Warroad 15-8, 15-4.

The fifth place match against Chisholm produced a 15-11, 12-15, 15-6 Badger/Greenbush-Middle River win.

It wasn't the best volleyball of the year for the Gators, admitted head coach Christine Adrian, whose team won the Thief River Falls Northern Lites Invitational earlier this fall. But her team played well at the end of the day against the Blue Streaks. "That was our best match of the tournament," she said.

For the day, Sarah Peterson (11), Allison Johnson (10) and Tabetha Blazek (10) were in double figures in kills for Gators, while Kelly Everson collected 24 assists. Peterson and Melissa Madoll each had five service aces for a team that served a solid 90 percent for the tournament.

Results put the Gators at 10-12 for the year.

Rams sweep Wolverines

It was a quick three-game Roseau sweep Monday in a high school volleyball match against Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke in Grygla, 15-2, 15-3, 15-4.

"It was not a pretty match," said Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz. "They (Rams) have a very good team, but our kids just froze."

Heidi Evans led Roseau with 7 kills. DaNae Wiseth had 6 for the Wolverines. Laura Lundbohm collected 23 assists for the winners.

The loss dropped the Wolverines to 10-11.

They were coming off a 3-1 performance at the Red Lake County Central Invitational Saturday when they beat East Grand Forks 15-6, 15-11 in the third place match.

S-A offense wrecks havoc with Nordics' defense in 41-6 win

Stephen-Argyle scored 21 first quarter points, built a 35-6 halftime cushion and rolled to a 41-6 Thursday high school football win over visiting Marshall County Central.

"They're a great football team," said Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker. "They have athletes at every single position."

Lone Marshall County Central touchdown was a 96-yard run by Bjorn Halvorson in the first quarter. He finished with 168 yards on 15 carries. The Nordics had 188 yards on 43 running plays and were 2-for-7 passing for 26 yards. Stephen-Argyle racked up 247 yards on 47 rushes and added 150 yards on 3-for-8 passing.

The Nordics took a 3-3 record into their regular season finale at Tri-County Tuesday.

Holmes To Retire From DNR

Minnesota's senior statesman of wildlife conservation announced recently he will retire from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources on Jan. 6, 2000. Roger Holmes, director of the DNR Division of Fish and Wildlife, said that after 41 years with the agency, "I want to spend more time enjoying my hobbies and spend more time with my family."

Holmes, 63, grew up in Duluth and received a bachelor of arts degree in zoology from the University of Minnesota, where he also spent a year doing postgraduate work in wildlife management. He began work with the then-named Department of Conservation in 1958 conducting wildlife surveys on waterfowl lakes in western Minnesota. From 1962 to 1965 Holmes worked in the Alexandria area acquiring and managing wildlife areas. He moved to St. Paul in 1966 to become wildlife projects coordinator. A year later he was named assistant chief of the DNR Wildlife Section. Holmes became Wildlife Section chief in 1972 and continued in that position until being named Fish and Wildlife Division director in 1990.

Among Holmes' conservation achievements was helping to expand the state's nationally recognized system of more than 1 million acres of public wildlife management areas. He was also a force behind establishing Minnesota's Nongame Wildlife Program in 1980 and the system of managing the state's deer population by regulating the harvest of antlerless deer. Holmes also helped create and secure passage of the Reinvest in Minnesota Program.

Since it began in 1986, RIM has reinvested $130 million in state funds into more than 450,000 acres of public and private fish, wildlife and native plant habitat.

On a national level, Holmes and his wildlife colleagues were instrumental in providing information on the links between wildlife and farming practices that helped shape the Conservation Reserve Program of the 1985 federal Farm Bill.

A national expert on wetlands programs and public policy, Holmes was a member of the Mississippi Flyway Council from 1967 to 1994. There he repeatedly fought for fair, conservative waterfowl regulations. He twice served as chair of the Mississippi Flyway Council and also chaired the National Flyway Council.

In addition, Holmes helped colleagues in the Minnesota DNR, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies develop the federal waterfowl production area program, the state and federal water bank programs, and the North American Waterfowl Management Plan.

"I've been lucky over the years to work with so many outstanding and dedicated employees of the DNR," Holmes said. "I've also been fortunate to spend my career working in a state where citizens strongly support fish, wildlife and native plant conservation.

"The only unfinished business I have before retiring," Holmes added, "is to help ensure we get a much-needed hunting and fishing license fee increase to prevent the deterioration of Minnesota's fish and wildlife programs."

The DNR will search both within the state and nationwide to fill Holmes' position, which is appointed by DNR Commissioner Allen Garber.

Gatzke pool play matches were three-game affairs that day. The Wolverines opened with a 12-15, 15-11, 16-14 win over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. Host Red Lake County Central was a 15-8, 10-15, 15-4 winner in Round 2, but the Wolverines came back to beat Red Lake Falls 15-12, 14-16, 15-8.

"We started out kind of slow against Sacred Heart," explained Schulz. "But we picked it up against Red Lake County Central, and played well against Red Lake Falls and East Grand Forks. It was a pretty good day for us. I was pretty happy."

Minnesota state duck stamp winner selected

A red-breasted merganser will be featured on the 2000 Minnesota Migratory Waterfowl Stamp.

The painting by Kim Norlien from Blaine was chosen as the winning design from among 53 entries in the stamp contest sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. Norlien also won the 1999 Minnesota Pheasant Stamp Contest, but this was his first win in the highly-competitive state duck stamp contest.

Of a total of 53 entries, 26 advanced into the second stage of judging, from which six finalists were selected during judging at the DNR Headquarters Building in St. Paul on Sept. 2. The other finalists were David Chapman of Minnetonka, who finished in second place; Nick Reitzel of St. Louis Park, third; Brett Meredith of Minnetonka, fourth; Scott Storm of Sartell, fifth; and Robert Hautman of Delano, sixth.

Six Mississippi Flyway species were eligible as subjects for the 2000 Minnesota stamp, according to Dave Schad, the DNR stamp contest coordinator. "We are trying to get all flyway species onto a Minnesota stamp at least once," said Schad, "so next year we'll include the five remaining species (oldsquaw, ruddy duck, black duck, white-winged scoter and common merganser) in the contest."

Five-member panel of judges this year included John Schroers of the Minnesota Duck and Goose Callers Association; Steve Wilds, migratory bird coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; Randy Markl, DNR area wildlife manager from Windom; Dave Maas, senior editor for Creative Publishing; Doug Smith, outdoors reporter for the Star Tribune; and DNR Conservation Officer Bradley Schultz.

The $5 Minnesota Migratory Waterfowl Stamp is required of all Minnesota waterfowl hunters ages 18 through 64. Stamp sales generate between $400,000 and $600,000 per year for habitat enhancement projects in state wildlife management areas and designated waterfowl lakes.

DNR offers no prizes for the stamp contest winner, but the winning artist retains the right to reproduce the work, which is usually done as limited edition prints. The 2000 stamp, which will be the 24th Minnesota stamp, will be available for sale in March 2000.

OUTDOOR NEWS

Safety Savvy Hunting Partner

As hunting activity hits full stride, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources urges hunters to choose partners who possess a passion for safety as well as the outdoors.

"A best friend can be your worst enemy if he or she has even a momentary lapse in judgment," said Gary Guida, a DNR regional training officer for the Division of Enforcement. "And for that reason, it makes sense to be darn choosy about whom you hunt with."

Accident records reveal that a firearms hunter is more likely to be injured by someone in the same hunting party than by someone else. Last year, for example, 12 firearm accidents occurred while hunting deer. Of those, four injuries were self-inflicted and seven involved victims being injured by members of their own hunting parties.

"The numbers say the same thing year after year," said Guida. "Your hunting partner is more likely to harm you than other hunters."

In Minnesota, hunting accidents are low compared to the number of hunters. Some 500,000 big game licenses were issued last year but only 12 firearms-related accidents occurred during the deer hunting season. No fatal firearms hunting accidents were reported.

That shows that hunting is an extremely safe outdoor activity, Guida said, and it's getting even safer. Hunting safety has been the upward trend for many years. In 1961, for example, about half as many big game licenses were sold - 254,000 - yet 29 people died of firearm fatalities.

"Deer hunter numbers have been going up while accident numbers have been going down," Guida said. "That's the kind of trend we like to see."

Guida attributes the decrease in accidents to hunter education, firearms safety classes and the increased use of blaze orange.

Another contributing factor is improved equipment, especially a reduction in lever-action rifles with exposed hammers. These guns were given to young hunters because they were inexpensive, light and had a short stock that fit smaller bodies. The majority of hunting accidents, even in the last 10 years, have been with lever action rifles without a working safety. "The best use of an older gun is to hang it over a mantle," said Guida. "That's a far better place than in the hands of someone you love."

State statistics also reveal that most firearms accidents occur when the victim is out of the shooter's sight. More than a third of the firearms accidents occurred when the shooter did not see the victim. "That's why it's important to plan your hunt and hunt your plan," said Guida. "If you know the location of others in your hunting party, an accident is less likely to occur."

State Park Meetings

Meetings were held throughout Minnesota in September to enable the public to be part of the review process of the Minnesota State Park Land Study before that study goes to the Legislature.

In 1997, the Minnesota Legislature requested that the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources undertake a land study to determine the size and scope of the current state park system and what would be needed by state parks in the future to preserve a representation of all of Minnesota's landscape regions. The study was also charged with recommending how future demands for state park resources, environmental education and recreation opportunities would be met.

During the summer and fall of 1998, 20 public meetings were held around the state to discuss existing state park boundaries and future opportunities for state parks and state recreation areas. Surveys and questionnaires were used to gather data from the public and park visitors. Two advisory committees, which included resource professionals and citizens, helped analyze data and shape conclusions and recommendations.

Family Preservation Project wins award

The Pennington County Family Preservation Project and Northwest Medical Center of Thief River Falls have been named winners of the Minnesota Hospital and Healthcare Partnership (MHHP) 1999 Innovation of the Year Award for Patient Care Enhancement. The award was presented during MHHP's annual meeting near Brainerd on Sept. 22.

The award is presented annually to hospitals and health systems that have developed or implemented creative, new methods for health care delivery.

Northwest Medical Center, in collaboration with Pennington county, developed the Pennington County Family Preservation Project, which was designed to treat seriously emotionally disturbed children in their own community, thus ending the skyrocketing increases in out-of-county placements.

Northwest Medical Center took the lead in finding out what needs were not being met in the community, discovering that a resource center was needed for parents as were telephone information services which would make it possible for Pennington county parents to consult with a mental health professional free of charge.

NWMC also went forward with developing a 10-bed residential treatment center for disturbed children along with a respite care program that provides residents with breaks from parenting as well as emergency shelter services.

According to Richard Spyhalski, chief executive officer of NWMC, the establishment of the residential treatment center has caused a decrease in out-of-county group home and residential treatment center placements. Also, referrals to out-of-county group homes and treatment centers have decreased dramatically.

The program has already demonstrated its effectiveness in using family and well-orchestrated community resources to address a wide range of problems that the community had previously regarded as exceeding its capabilities.

MHFA housing rehab loans now available

Beginning immediately, the Inter-County Community Council, Oklee, will be accepting applications for the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency Rehabilitation and Revolving Loan programs.

The loans can be used for basic and necessary improvements such as wiring, plumbing, roofing, heating, insulation, doors and windows.

To be eligible, applicants must live in East Polk, Red Lake or Pennington counties and own the property to be improved. They must have lived there for at least six months and meet the minimum income and asset guidelines for each loan program.

A rehabilitation loan is a deferred loan without interest or monthly payments and must be repaid only if the applicant sells, transfers title or moves from the property within 10 years. A revolving loan is a simple interest, five percent loan which must be repaid.

Interested persons should contact Inter-County Community Council, Box 189, Oklee, MN 56742 for an application, or call (218) 796-5144 for more information.

UND Presidential Inauguration set

Inauguration ceremonies will be conducted Friday, October 15, to officially install Dr. Charles E. Kupchella as the 10th president of the University of North Dakota. The events will highlight this year's UND Homecoming weekend, October 14-17.

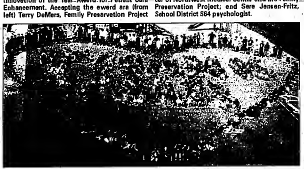
The main ceremony will take place at 2 p.m. in the Chester Fritz Auditorium. The inauguration in the Chester Fritz Auditorium and the reception following the ceremonies in Wilkerson Hall are open to the public.

One injured in accident Monday on Highway 59

Adeline Midthun, Thief River Falls, was taken to Northwest Medical Center, treated for injuries sustained in an accident one mile north of Thief River Falls on Highway 59 Monday evening.

Minnesota State Patrol received a report of the accident at 7:20 p.m. on October 11. According to the accident report, Harry Przybilski, Goodridge, was driving a semi, which was stopped facing south in traffic on Highway 59 for a flag person near the intersection with Highway 1. The flashers on the semi were operating when a car driven by Adeline Midthun, Thief River Falls, collided with the rear of the semi. Midthun was taken to Northwest Medical Center. Officials said there was extensive damage to the Midthun vehicle, but only minor damage to the semi. Przybilski was not injured.

The Pennington County Family Preservation Project was the recent winner of the 1999 Minnesota Hospital and Healthcare Partnership Innovation of the Year Award for Patient Care Enhancement. Accepting the award are (from left) Terry DeMers, Family Preservation Project program director; Phyllis Schmidt, director of Pennington County Welfare and Human Services; Richard Spyhalski, chief executive officer of Northwest Medical Center and the Family Preservation Project; and Sara Jensen-Fritz, School District 564 psychologist.



Students and faculty at Challenger Elementary and Preschool recently utilized a warm day to get into heart and "thank you" formation to extend their appreciation to parents, volunteers and the entire community for the new, recently constructed playground equipment at the school. While the "thank you" in the photograph is not quite as clear as Assistant Principal John Ruttan would have preferred, he assures us that the sentiments of the staff and students of the school are heartfelt.

NCTC announces fall music concert

Northland Community and Technical College Music Director Linda Samuelson recently announced the date and program for the annual fall concert.

On Tuesday, October 19 at 7 p.m. in the school's auditorium the chamber choir, jazz band and community band of NCTC will come together for an evening of "Music Around the World." The ensembles will be directed by Samuelson with Catherine Hagen assisting as accompanist.

Focusing on cultural diversity in the arts, the concert will include music from Belgium, Italy, England, Russia, Korea and Ireland.

The performance will be Samuelson's first as the college's music director. "I am a little nervous and extremely excited for this concert," she said. "Our performing ensembles are immensely talented, and the selections being performed are energetic and fun. The audience will leave the concert with a true flavor of music from around the world."

The concert is free and open to the public. A social hour in the auditorium lobby will precede the 7 p.m. curtain call.

FALL CARE CAR

SUPPLEMENT TO THE TIMES

Don't Be Left Out in the Cold...

Cold-Weather Car Care: Three Critical Concerns for Confident Winter Travel

It's here. 'Tis the season for Alberta Clippers. Is your car ready for Jack Frost's icy fingers?

All vehicles need attention from time to time, but when it's cold, your car needs extra care. There is no sense in putting yourself or loved ones at unnecessary risk. Compared to freezing your ears off, winterizing your vehicle is relatively painless.

For confident winter starts, it is important to keep a watch on three critical areas: the lubrication system, the cooling system and the battery. Let's take a quick look under the hood to see if you're ready for the worst of Old Man Winter.

Check Your Motor Oil

It is important to check your motor-oil levels on a periodic basis. Without lubrication, friction between moving parts leads to engine wear.

However, it also is important to think about the type of motor oil you are using. For severe cold, there is a significant performance difference between synthetic and conventional motor oils. Few people give much thought to the oil that they use.

Cold weather is tough on engines because of the limitations of traditional lubricants. Traditional motor oils and greases become thicker, thus slowing starting rpm (revolutions per minute), restricting oil flow to critical engine parts, increasing wear on bearings and rings, decreasing engine life, and increasing the burden on an already overtaxed starting system.

Through the use of additives, oil manufacturers began developing multi-viscosity oils that had a broader service range — 10W-30 motor oils and later 5W-30 oils improved fluidity in colder temperatures. The lower the number in front of the W, the better the cold-weather viscosity. However, even with additives, conventional petroleum-based motor oils flow or pump only down to about 13 F below zero. "Not good enough," say many Northerners who routinely see thermometers hover in the minus 30 F range.

For really cold weather, only synthetic motor oils offer the kind of performance that allows cars and trucks to start with greater ease. Many synthetic motor oils still flow or pump at temperatures up to 60 F and 70 F below zero. Synthetics have a broader service range than traditional petroleum.

In 1991, more than a half-dozen Chevrolet Corvettes snapped their crankshafts when they were started up to be moved from a lot in Bowling Green, Ky. After an investigation into the cause of these breakdowns, General Motors determined that it was lubricant failure. The solution was to mandate synthetic motor oil as the factory fill for this high-performance engine.

The admonition to check your motor oil is intended as a reminder to not only watch fluid levels, but to consider whether your motor oil is fulfilling its lubricating function in severe weather. No sense in being stranded on an isolated road because your engine couldn't turn over.

Check Your Antifreeze

Neglecting the antifreeze in your engine's cooling system also can result in serious damage to your vehicle. When water freezes it expands, putting high stress on the corridors where it travels. A cracked engine block is not unlikely in extreme cold. Water-pump failure and blown hoses also are common side effects from frozen cooling systems.

There are a number of relatively inexpensive antifreeze testers available for measuring the effective working temperature of your antifreeze. If you can't afford one of these gauges, have the radiator fluid checked at your local service station to make sure that it is suitable for severe cold temperatures.

In recent years there has been a growing awareness of the hazards associated with traditional ethylene glycol antifreeze. EG-based antifreeze not only is considered an environmental hazard and deadly for pets when spilled on the ground, it is toxic for children. What is especially bad is that EG-based antifreeze has a sweet taste that invites animals and children to ingest it.

An alternative to this antifreeze is the new propylene glycol, which generally is regarded as safe for accidental ingestion. In addition, it has an unpleasant taste, making it unlikely that animals or children will drink any appreciable amount. Propylene glycol provides excellent protection against freezing, boiling and corrosion.

Check Your Battery

The ideal operating temperature of your car battery is 80 F. As temperatures drop, so does the efficiency of the battery. In very cold weather, the battery's power output can be diminished to as little as 10 percent.

In addition, as batteries age their strength is further reduced. When it is very cold and your older battery has lost a measure of its cranking capacity, you have a situation where it may not have the power to turn over the engine.

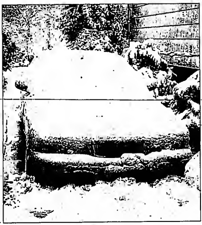
Cold winter starts are harsh. If the motor oil is not fluid, and the battery worn down, you may want to have your cellular phone handy in case you need to call for help.

Be Prepared

It never hurts to be prepared. In addition to these routine maintenance checks, it still is a good idea to stock the usual survival supplies as standard procedure for your vehicle — shovel, bag of sand or grit, toolbox, jumper cables, fuel line de-icer additive, large flashlight, and road flares. In regions where winters especially are severe, extra blankets, clothes, food, fluids and a first-aid kit are a life-insurance policy that you hope you won't ever need, but also can't afford to be without.

Good snow tires and a few seasons of experience driving on slippery roads also help ... and knowing when not to attempt driving at all.

No doubt there are times when it's best to take counsel from the poet, sage and motorist who prayed, "Lord, grant me the serenity to accept the weather I cannot change, the courage to accept the weather I cannot change, and the wisdom to know the difference."



Old Man Winter doesn't always come quietly. Oftentimes, his arrival is very sudden, giving homeowners quite a shock when they wake up to find the neighborhood buried under a blanket of snow. When winter hits, car owners who have prepared their vehicle for the harsh weather even before the first cold snap will be able to rest easy, knowing that they have done all they can to ensure that their car's engine will run smoothly. Don't wait for winter — avoid getting "buried" by the blues — winterize vehicles in the fall. After all, there won't be time to do it during the winter months, with all the shoveling and ice scraping to be done!

Stop-and-Go Driving Puts Stress On Your Motor Oil

According to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, 63 percent of all motor-vehicle trips equal six or fewer miles. The American Petroleum Institute, however, has indicated that engines require as much as six miles of travel to reach normal operating temperature, and the oil may take even longer. The end result of these frequent short trips is an accumulation of water, fuel and acids in the motor oil and the formation of sludge and varnish in the engine.

This is yet another reason why more passenger-car owners are turning to synthetic motor oils to protect their engines in stop-and-go service, often referred to as severe service driving conditions. The excellent acid control and molecular stability of synthetics keeps corrosion in check and inhibits the formation of sludge and varnish. Their extremely low pour points also help provide easier cold-weather start-ups and faster protection as the oil quickly circulates to critical engine components.

As new vehicles become more expensive to own and maintain, motorists are finding it increasingly important to take care of their current cars and trucks.

10 Things to Check Before You Buy a Used Car

That story about the friend of a friend who bought the total lemon of a car from the sweet grandmother is not always an urban legend! Many people are tricked into buying cars that should be junked and are worth nothing, but look fine on the outside, under the hood and started good on the test-drive. Buying a used car is often the best and most financially efficient choice for many consumers, however many used car buyers don't look close enough at the pre-owned vehicle or they look at the wrong things.

To stop that list of used car tragedies from including your story, read the following tips on checking out a used car properly. And remember, dealers are trustworthy, but that doesn't mean you shouldn't check out all aspects of a pre-owned vehicle on a dealer lot.

1) See the car in daylight. Not only will you be able to see the body better, you can examine all the other parts without hassling with a flashlight.

2) Start it first thing in the morning, after it has been sitting for a while.

3) Inspect the car to your satisfaction, and don't let a dealer or current owner tell you what to check and what is okay.

4) Test-drive it! If you live in a region where the winters are cold, do the test on a blustery, icy day to see how the vehicle will handle. On the drive, listen for sounds like hissing or clanging. Feel for a smooth acceleration and check that the vehicle idles well. Make a sudden stop as well as regular stops to check the brakes.

5) Look inside: Check out the upholstery, dashboard, seats and windows. In general be checking for damages and stains.

6) And out: Look for evidence of an accident (unless you were told that it had happened, which is a rare occasion!) such as unevenness in the seams of the trunk and hood, insides of the trunk and under the hood, and in the wheel wells. Also check for fluid leaks underneath the car.

7) Try out all of the dash controls like interior and exterior lights, turn signals and windshield wipers. Check to see that seats and windows move and are in proper condition (or as promised).

8) Check heat, air conditioning, audio system, alarm and other accessories that you would be paying for.

9) Be sure that there is a gas cap, owner's manual, service records and clear title to the car. Vehicle title fraud is a growing problem, don't be a victim!

10) If you are clueless, bring along a friend or relative who is car savvy to help you.

Whether you have found the car at a dealership, used-car lot or private residence, don't skimp on the tests and examinations. Take your time and pay attention to the details.

CUSTOMER CARE

Thousands of individual components make up a vehicle's operating systems. With normal use, these components are subject to wear, deterioration and corrosion.

Lubricants, fluids and filters are just part of these components which are vital to keeping a vehicle running smoothly and are also subject to deterioration and contamination over time.

Manufacturers recommend regular vehicle maintenance to inspect components that are particularly subject to wear and to replace the lubricants, fluids and filters that have reached the end of their service life.

All vehicle manufacturers have recommended maintenance intervals. Maintenance is recommended based on three factors: 1. Odometer reading (mileage), 2. Elapsed time (number of months since the last scheduled maintenance), 3. The condition under which the vehicle is regularly driven. Most vehicle owners should follow the mileage recommendations for maintenance. However, people whose driving consists primarily of short trips and who accumulate mileage slowly should follow the recommended time periods. Service intervals also depend upon whether the vehicle is driven under "normal" or "severe" conditions as listed in the owners manual. An item not listed in most owners manuals is severe cold. When a vehicle's engine and transmission temperature can range from -30 degrees up to 210 degrees (some vehicles several times a day) it can lead to premature wear on many of the components designed to help your vehicle run at its peak performance. In these extreme conditions it's best to follow the service maintenance schedule.

Whether it's called vehicle maintenance or preventative maintenance, the key purpose is to maintain a vehicle's performance. Contributing to longer life, better driving economy and more reliable operation.

Maintenance also prevents small problems from becoming bigger ones and ensures the vehicle is as safe as possible and conforms with safety and emissions laws and regulations.

Call or stop in and talk to Mark or Barry to discuss your vehicles recommended maintenance:

Take Care of the Family Car and It Will Take Care of You

Think back to when you first got a license to drive a car. You were probably a very eager teenager and your image of a car was all wrapped up in fantasies of fast times and new-found freedom.

Now you're older. Wiser. You are the owner and operator of ... The Family Car. And that means safety is your highest priority.

With so many luxuries built into vehicles these days, people sometimes forget that an automobile is a tremendous piece of machinery. You'd be horrified if someone asked you to take your family onto an airplane that was only serviced once-in-awhile, or if you knew airline crews occasionally overlooked routine maintenance. You should react the same way to a poorly maintained car!

Automobiles require regular maintenance to keep them in top shape. Between family vacations and shuttling kids back and forth to soccer practice and play dates, be sure to follow this list of simple tips so everyone can enjoy plenty of safe and happy travels in the days and years to come.

Start with a Safe Car

Don't wait until problems creep up to service your car. By then, small problems can turn into big repairs (and even bigger repair bills). Start by diligently following the maintenance schedule suggested in your car's owner manual.

- Regular fluid changes are a critical part of car care. Change your car's engine oil every three months, or 3,000 miles. Test the transmission fluid, power steering fluid, power brake fluid, etc., as often as the owner's manual suggests. Also pay attention to the sights and smells that alert you to a fluid leak.

- Tires are the key to staying safely on the road in snow, rain and other slick conditions. Buy the tire grade recommended for your car, and be sure to rotate them every 5,000 miles, or as often as the owner's manual recommends. (If you load the car with heavy objects, or you tow items, you should consider buying tires that are one grade higher than recommended.) Have tires checked if yours are worn unevenly, or if the tread is gone. The minimum acceptable tread depth is 2/32", which can be measured with a Lincoln-head penny. Insert the penny, Lincoln's head first, into the tread and if it does not come to the top of Lincoln's head, your tire's tread is too worn to be safe.

- The exhaust system has to run efficiently or else it will pollute the environment and pose a very serious safety threat called carbon monoxide poisoning. Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless gas that is produced by an automobile. If the car is moving, the poisonous gas escapes from beneath the car - but if the car is not moving, carbon monoxide can collect beneath it and seep into the area where passengers sit. Carbon monoxide poisoning can be deadly, so never sit in an idling car in a closed area such as a garage. Also limit how long you sit in an idling car in parking lots and traffic. Service the car's exhaust system on a regular basis as recommended by the manufacturer, and always take the car to a repair shop the instant you notice unusual smoke or fumes.

- Brakes are the most important safety feature on your car. It's much more important to know how to stop a car than it is to get one to move! Have a professional technician inspect your car's brakes once a year. If you notice any symptoms of failing brakes - for example, the car pulls to one side when you apply the brakes, or you have to really step hard on the brake pedal to stop the car - head to a professional immediately. Sometimes failing brakes also will make a high, whiny sound because they have a built-in sensor to clue you about a worn brake lining.

- Windows and windshields don't do you much good if you can't see through them. Replace wiper blades regularly to avoid streaks and blind spots. Clean oil build-up from windows with a good cleanser that won't scratch the glass. (I recommend Bon Ami.) And while you're cleaning the windows, run a rag over the headlights, parking lights, and turn signals, to prevent grimy build-up.

- Performance check is the updated term for "tune-up" so be sure to take your car to the repair shop on a yearly basis. A technician will check computer parts, electronic features, shocks and struts, the engine and transmission parts and make sure everything is working properly.

Emergency Situations

But even the most well-maintained car will eventually find itself facing an emergency on the road. Each and every member of the household who has a license should be prepared to change a flat tire, jump a dead battery, and deal with an overheated vehicle. If you do not already know how to perform these repairs, check out a basic car care manual (such as Lucille's Car Care: Everything You Need to Know from Under the Hood by America's Most Trusted Mechanic, Hyperion 1996).

You may also find yourself facing a car stuck in snow or mud - and if you have a couple of tired, cranky kids in the back seat this could be a catastrophe! Keep a cool head and follow these simple procedures if you find yourself in a sticky - or should I say slippery - situation.

- If you are stuck in the snow, mud or sand immediately apply the brakes, then turn off the engine and get out to evaluate the situation. (If you are on a busy roadway, be sure to exit on the safe side, away from traffic. If you do not feel there is a safe route to inspect the car, stay inside and hope a good Samaritan calls the police or a tow truck.) Do not continue to spin the wheels, or try to rock the car back and forth! Spinning the wheels may end up just digging the car in even deeper, and if you try to rock back and forth from drive to reverse, you might get out but you'd do it at great cost to the car. This causes such intense heat in the transmission that you might just destroy it - and that's a repair that can run into the thousands of dollars. If you do find yourself stuck, use a shovel to dig a path for your wheels, or create some traction by sprinkling cinders, salt or even kitty litter beneath the tires.

- If you are in a minor traffic accident, wait until you are certain you can safely exit the vehicle. If another vehicle is involved, exchange insurance information, and write down identifying information such as the driver's name and driver's license number, and the license plate number. Call for police assistance and give details for the accident report and insurance claim.

- If you are in a major accident, assess immediate dangers such as fire or serious injuries. Do not attempt to move a seriously injured passenger, since this may aggravate neck and internal injuries. Call for emergency assistance.

- Be aware of dangers that go hand in hand with auto ownership. Stay alert to car-jackers, suspicious behavior from other drivers who may be intentionally trying to force you off the road, and the risks of parking in isolated areas.

- Finally, be wise about driving! Don't engage in careless behavior like fiddling with the car stereo, dialing a cellular phone, or succumbing to road rage. Getting to your destination safely will always be more important than getting there quickly, so allow plenty of time for a trip and avoid the need to speed. And no matter how restless the kids are, don't let yourself be distracted by squabbling!

Don't slouch on safety. Whether you're behind the wheel or a happy passenger, don't forget the fact that automobiles deserve plenty of respect! Practice smart maintenance, observe common sense safety procedures and keep your head calm, clear and focused on the road.

May you and your family experience many happy travels!

Lease or Buy? Some Car Shopping Tips

It may not be an age-old question, but the decision whether to lease or buy an automobile is one that puzzles many consumers. Experienced car buyers may know the ins and outs of the lease vs. purchase question, but novice shoppers may not know of the leasing option or why they might want to choose that route.

Leasing is not for everybody; there are restrictions and guidelines that may not fit certain lifestyles. On the other hand, buying a car is a long-term financial commitment that many consumers would rather not make. Following are some pros and cons to consider when deciding whether to lease or buy.

Leasing: The Pros

- There is usually no down payment and monthly payments tend to be smaller than when buying a vehicle.

- Leases tend to last for 2-3 years, allowing for you to drive a new car every few years.

- The factory warranty on new cars will most often last for the entire term of the lease.

- A down payment can be made and the beginning of the lease period, reducing the monthly payments.

- You can lease luxury cars and other vehicles that you otherwise could not afford to buy.

- Generally, you can lease with an option to buy.

- You will not have to worry about trading or selling the car once you decide to obtain a new vehicle.

The Cons

- Because you are essentially paying for the use of the car, you cannot make any modifications to it, and this usually includes audio systems, tires and paint among other aspects of the vehicle.

- When you return the car, it must be in perfect condition. In addition to having no changes to it, there can be no damages to the interior or exterior. If there are any damages or anything wrong with the car, you will be charged some hefty repair costs.

- Cross-country drivers be aware-leases often have monthly mileage limits. Going over the top will result in a fee.

- There are also very heavy penalties for early termination of the lease, so be sure that this is what you want to do.

Many people prefer leasing to buying a car. There is no boredom of owning the same car for 10 years, no reselling responsibilities and the opportunity to drive some lavish automobiles!

However, for those who desire to own a car, it can be a more comfortable experience. Take note of the following:

Buying/Financing: The Pros

- Once the car is paid off, it's yours to sell, trade, junk, etc.

- You can make changes to the vehicle, even during the financing period. You can put in a CD player, paint it, tint the windows, whatever you'd like.

- There are no maintenance or mileage requirements. For anyone who drives long distances, that is certainly something to consider.

- There is no pressure to keep the car in dealer-perfect shape. If you have children or pets, keep this in mind. Accidents and spills do happen, even in the car.

The Cons

- There is usually a down payment necessary.

- Monthly payments are usually higher than when leasing and financing periods can last for up to 6 years, depending on your payment plan.

- Warranty periods may be shorter, and almost never last for the financing period.

- You will be responsible for the car once it has been paid off. If you choose to purchase a different car, it is your job to sell or trade your current vehicle.

When it comes to for you to decide on a plan for your next automobile, consider the above facts. Many people consider driving a good car more important than owning one. For others, the actual ownership and option to do as they please with their vehicle is the better way. If finances are your worries, remember that fines on leased vehicles can add up, so the myth that buying is more costly is often proven false. Whatever you choose, think about your lifestyle, how far you drive, who you drive and where you drive before you decide to lease or buy, and happy car hunting!

Changing Seasons Affect Damaged Windshields

Windshield dings love to travel. Driving means extra vibration. And vibration helps little dings grow into big cracks.

Extended driving also means running the heater or air conditioner, which causes radically different temperatures on the inside and outside of the windshield. Engineers call this temperature stress "thermal shock." Dings call it "growth food."

Fixing a small ding costs as little as $50 to $60. Replacing a cracked windshield can cost hundreds of dollars; on some cars, the cost is much more. Dings that have a cone shape, a circle deep in the glass, or a star shape with points spreading out are the most likely to expand into a cracked windshield.

Once a ding or star expands, windshield replacement is often the only option.

Repairing windshields without removing the glass from the car means the job is done faster and the factory installed seal between the windshield and the vehicle body remains intact. Since passenger side air bags deploy off the windshield, preserving the factory seal is an important safety consideration.

Often, a repair can be done at no cost to the vehicle owner. Many insurance companies pay the full cost of the repair by waiving the policyholder's deductible. Even so, some consumers prefer to pay the reasonable cost of repair directly and avoid filing an insurance claim.

Windshield repair appeals to cost conscious insurance companies because repair is the most economical solution to windshield damage. The savings generated by windshield repair help insurance companies keep their premium rates affordable and competitive. That means the policyholder benefits twice. Strength and clarity is restored to the windshield, and, repair contributes to the stability of auto insurance rates. Everybody wins.

The key to assuring an effective windshield ding repair is to act quickly. Do not attempt any repair yourself, without special equipment and training, all you will do is contaminate the ding, making repairs more difficult if not impossible. You can "band-aid" patch by putting a piece of clear packing tape over the ding. Make sure the tape doesn't obstruct your vision. The tape won't prevent the ding from spreading, but will protect it from contamination.

Until the ding is fixed, avoid washing the vehicle, the soap and water can contaminate the ding. Also, don't run the defroster, heater or air conditioning on high settings and don't park the vehicle in the sun. Rapid changes in interior temperature or prolonged exposure to sunlight can stress and weaken the windshield, causing the ding to expand.

If you get a ding while driving on vacation, don't wait until you get home to have it repaired. The longer you drive with a ding, the more likely it is to expand into a cracked windshield.

Take Care of the Family Car and It Will Take Care of You

Think back to when you first got a license to drive a car. You were probably a very eager teenager and your image of a car was all wrapped up in fantasies of fast times and new-found freedom.

Now you're older. Wiser. You are the owner and operator of ... The Family Car. And that means safety is your highest priority.

With so many luxuries built into vehicles these days, people sometimes forget that an automobile is a tremendous piece of machinery. You'd be horrified if someone asked you to take your family onto an airplane that was only serviced once-in-awhile, or if you knew airline crews occasionally overlooked routine maintenance. You should react the same way to a poorly maintained car!

Automobiles require regular maintenance to keep them in top shape. Between family vacations and shuttling kids back and forth to soccer practice and play dates, be sure to follow this list of simple tips so everyone can enjoy plenty of safe and happy travels in the days and years to come.

Don't wait until problems creep up to service your car. By then, small problems can turn into big repairs (and even bigger repair bills). Start by diligently following the maintenance schedule suggested in your car's owner manual.

- Regular fluid changes are a critical part of car care. Change your car's engine oil every three months, or 3,000 miles. Test the transmission fluid, power steering fluid, power brake fluid, etc., as often as the owner's manual suggests. Also pay attention to the sights and smells that alert you to a fluid leak.

- Tires are the key to staying safely on the road in snow, rain and other slick conditions. Buy the tire grade recommended for your car, and be sure to rotate them every 5,000 miles, or as often as the owner's manual recommends. (If you load the car with heavy objects, or you tow items, you should consider buying tires that are one grade higher than recommended.) Have tires checked if yours are worn unevenly, or if the tread is gone. The minimum acceptable tread depth is 2/32", which can be measured with a Lincoln-head penny. Insert the penny, Lincoln's head first, into the tread and if it does not come to the top of Lincoln's head, your tire's tread is too worn to be safe.

- The exhaust system has to run efficiently or else it will pollute the environment and pose a very serious safety threat called carbon monoxide poisoning. Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless gas that is produced by an automobile. If the car is moving, the poisonous gas escapes from beneath the car - but if the car is not moving, carbon monoxide can collect beneath it and seep into the area where passengers sit. Carbon monoxide poisoning can be deadly, so never sit in an idling car in a closed area such as a garage. Also limit how long you sit in an idling car in parking lots and traffic. Service the car's exhaust system on a regular basis as recommended by the manufacturer, and always take the car to a repair shop the instant you notice unusual smoke or fumes.

- Brakes are the most important safety feature on your car. It's much more important to know how to stop a car than it is to get one to move! Have a professional technician inspect your car's brakes once a year. If you notice any symptoms of failing brakes - for example, the car pulls to one side when you apply the brakes, or you have to really step hard on the brake pedal to stop the car - head to a professional immediately. Sometimes failing brakes also will make a high, whiny sound because they have a built-in sensor to clue you about a worn brake lining.

- Windows and windshields don't do you much good if you can't see through them. Replace wiper blades regularly to avoid streaks and blind spots. Clean oil build-up from windows with a good cleanser that won't scratch the glass. (I recommend Bon Ami.) And while you're cleaning the windows, run a rag over the headlights, parking lights, and turn signals, to prevent grimy build-up.

- Performance check is the updated term for "tune-up" so be sure to take your car to the repair shop on a yearly basis. A technician will check computer parts, electronic features, shocks and struts, the engine and transmission parts and make sure everything is working properly.

Emergency Situations

But even the most well-maintained car will eventually find itself facing an emergency on the road. Each and every member of the household who has a license should be prepared to change a flat tire, jump a dead battery, and deal with an overheated vehicle. If you do not already know how to perform these repairs, check out a basic car care manual (such as Lucille's Car Care: Everything You Need to Know from Under the Hood by America's Most Trusted Mechanic, Hyperion 1996).

You may also find yourself facing a car stuck in snow or mud - and if you have a couple of tired, cranky kids in the back seat this could be a catastrophe! Keep a cool head and follow these simple procedures if you find yourself in a sticky - or should I say slippery - situation.

- If you are stuck in the snow, mud or sand immediately apply the brakes, then turn off the engine and get out to evaluate the situation. (If you are on a busy roadway, be sure to exit on the safe side, away from traffic. If you do not feel there is a safe route to inspect the car, stay inside and hope a good Samaritan calls the police or a tow truck.) Do not continue to spin the wheels, or try to rock the car back and forth! Spinning the wheels may end up just digging the car in even deeper, and if you try to rock back and forth from drive to reverse, you might get out but you'd do it at great cost to the car. This causes such intense heat in the transmission that you might just destroy it - and that's a repair that can run into the thousands of dollars. If you do find yourself stuck, use a shovel to dig a path for your wheels, or create some traction by sprinkling cinders, salt or even kitty litter beneath the tires.

- If you are in a minor traffic accident, wait until you are certain you can safely exit the vehicle. If another vehicle is involved, exchange insurance information, and write down identifying information such as the driver's name and driver's license number, and the license plate number. Call for police assistance and give details for the accident report and insurance claim.

- If you are in a major accident, assess immediate dangers such as fire or serious injuries. Do not attempt to move a seriously injured passenger, since this may aggravate neck and internal injuries. Call for emergency assistance.

- Be aware of dangers that go hand in hand with auto ownership. Stay alert to car-jackers, suspicious behavior from other drivers who may be intentionally trying to force you off the road, and the risks of parking in isolated areas.

- Finally, be wise about driving! Don't engage in careless behavior like fiddling with the car stereo, dialing a cellular phone, or succumbing to road rage. Getting to your destination safely will always be more important than getting there quickly, so allow plenty of time for a trip and avoid the need to speed. And no matter how restless the kids are, don't let yourself be distracted by squabbling!

Don't slouch on safety. Whether you're behind the wheel or a happy passenger, don't forget the fact that automobiles deserve plenty of respect! Practice smart maintenance, observe common sense safety procedures and keep your head calm, clear and focused on the road.

May you and your family experience many happy travels!

Lease or Buy? Some Car Shopping Tips

It may not be an age-old question, but the decision whether to lease or buy an automobile is one that puzzles many consumers. Experienced car buyers may know the ins and outs of the lease vs. purchase question, but novice shoppers may not know of the leasing option or why they might want to choose that route.

Leasing is not for everybody; there are restrictions and guidelines that may not fit certain lifestyles. On the other hand, buying a car is a long-term financial commitment that many consumers would rather not make. Following are some pros and cons to consider when deciding whether to lease or buy.

Leasing: The Pros

- There is usually no down payment and monthly payments tend to be smaller than when buying a vehicle.
- Leases tend to last for 2-3 years, allowing for you to drive a new car every few years.
- The factory warranty on new cars will most often last for the entire term of the lease.
- A down payment can be made and the beginning of the lease period, reducing the monthly payments.
- You can lease luxury cars and other vehicles that you otherwise could not afford to buy.
- Generally, you can lease with an option to buy.
- You will not have to worry about trading or selling the car once you decide to obtain a new vehicle.

The Cons

- Because you are essentially paying for the use of the car, you cannot make any modifications to it, and this usually includes audio systems, tires and paint among other aspects of the vehicle.
- When you return the car, it must be in perfect condition. In addition to having no changes to it, there can be no damages to the interior or exterior. If there are any damages or anything wrong with the car, you will be charged some hefty repair costs.
- Cross-country drivers be aware-leases often have monthly mileage limits. Going over the top will result in a fee.
- There are also very heavy penalties for early termination of the lease, so be sure that this is what you want to do.

Many people prefer leasing to buying a car. There is no boredom of owning the same car for 10 years, no reselling responsibilities and the opportunity to drive some lavish automobiles!

However, for those who desire to own a car, it can be a more comfortable experience. Take note of the following:

Buying/Financing: The Pros

- Once the car is paid off, it's yours to sell, trade, junk, etc.
- You can make changes to the vehicle, even during the financing period. You can put in a CD player, paint it, tint the windows, whatever you'd like.
- There are no maintenance or mileage requirements. For anyone who drives long distances, that is certainly something to consider.
- There is no pressure to keep the car in dealer-perfect shape. If you have children or pets, keep this in mind. Accidents and spills do happen, even in the car.

The Cons

- There is usually a down payment necessary.
- Monthly payments are usually higher than when leasing and financing periods can last for up to 6 years, depending on your payment plan.
- Warranty periods may be shorter, and almost never last for the financing period.
- You will be responsible for the car once it has been paid off. If you choose to purchase a different car, it is your job to sell or trade your current vehicle.

When it comes to for you to decide on a plan for your next automobile, consider the above facts. Many people consider driving a good car more important than owning one. For others, the actual ownership and option to do as they please with their vehicle is the better way. If finances are your worries, remember that fines on leased vehicles can add up, so the myth that buying is more costly is often proven false. Whatever you choose, think about your lifestyle, how far you drive, who you drive and where you drive before you decide to lease or buy, and happy car hunting!

Changing Seasons Affect Damaged Windshields

Windshield dings love to travel. Driving means extra vibration. And vibration helps little dings grow into big cracks.

Extended driving also means running the heater or air conditioner, which causes radically different temperatures on the inside and outside of the windshield. Engineers call this temperature stress "thermal shock." Dings call it "growth food."

Fixing a small ding costs as little as $50 to $60. Replacing a cracked windshield can cost hundreds of dollars; on some cars, the cost is much more. Dings that have a cone shape, a circle deep in the glass, or a star shape with points spreading out are the most likely to expand into a cracked windshield.

Once a ding or star expands, windshield replacement is often the only option.

Repairing windshields without removing the glass from the car means the job is done faster and the factory installed seal between the windshield and the vehicle body remains intact. Since passenger side air bags deploy off the windshield, preserving the factory seal is an important safety consideration.

Often, a repair can be done at no cost to the vehicle owner. Many insurance companies pay the full cost of the repair by waiving the policyholder's deductible. Even so, some consumers prefer to pay the reasonable cost of repair directly and avoid filing an insurance claim.

Windshield repair appeals to cost conscious insurance companies because repair is the most economical solution to windshield damage. The savings generated by windshield repair help insurance companies keep their premium rates affordable and competitive. That means the policyholder benefits twice. Strength and clarity is restored to the windshield, and, repair contributes to the stability of auto insurance rates. Everybody wins.

The key to assuring an effective windshield ding repair is to act quickly. Do not attempt any repair yourself, without special equipment and training, all you will do is contaminate the ding, making repairs more difficult if not impossible. You can "band-aid" patch by putting a piece of clear packing tape over the ding. Make sure the tape doesn't obstruct your vision. The tape won't prevent the ding from spreading, but will protect it from contamination.

Until the ding is fixed, avoid washing the vehicle, the soap and water can contaminate the ding. Also, don't run the defroster, heater or air conditioning on high settings and don't park the vehicle in the sun. Rapid changes in interior temperature or prolonged exposure to sunlight can stress and weaken the windshield, causing the ding to expand.

If you get a ding while driving on vacation, don't wait until you get home to have it repaired. The longer you drive with a ding, the more likely it is to expand into a cracked windshield.

Rick Jensen, co-fire chief in Thief River Falls, explains the importance of a fireman's uniform to kindergarten students visiting the fire hall in Thief River Falls. The visit was part of Fire Prevention Activities in Thief River Falls and was open to kindergarten students from Challenger Elementary school, St. Bernard's, and Our Saviour's Christian Academy. Neil Gillespie is the fireman wearing the mask.

Local student spends month in Europe studying

Peter Johnson

From classrooms in Angers, France, to the European Commission in Brussels, Belgium from the Louvre, Eiffel Tower and Arc de Triomphe in Paris to the beaches of Normandy, Peter Johnson experienced the culture, politics, economics and history of Europe for one month this summer.

Johnson a senior majoring in agricultural and biosystems engineering at North Dakota State University, Fargo, ND, is the son of Harlow and Gloria Johnson, Thief River Falls. He was one of 19 NDSU students who studies at Ecole Superieure O'Agriculture in Angers and toured France and Belgium through the Federation des Ecoles Superieures D'Ingenieurs en Agriculture summer program. He earned six credits for the experience.

"It was a great opportunity to learn about myself, to meet other people and make some contacts on the other side of the ocean," Johnson said. "You've got to learn a lot about different people, their ideas, how to overcome language barriers to try to tell them your ideas but still respect theirs."

Johnson, who lived with a French student in Angers, spent the first two weeks studying the French language and attending lectures on topics such as European agriculture, business and international marketing. To supplement their classroom learning, he and his fellow NDSU students visited French agricultural industrial firms, vineyards, farms and gardens.

"It was interesting to see how they are so concerned about issues, like where their food comes from. They were very concerned about anything that was genetically engineered or sprayed with chemicals," Johnson said of Europeans. "I also enjoyed the tours that we went on of different production facilities.

The third week they became tourists, traveling to historic sites, museums and cultural events in Belgium and France. For the final week, they returned to Angers to continue their French language study and to focus on one of three areas: agriculture, horticulture or international marketing and finance.

NDSU and 10 other universities in the United States have exchange agreements with Ecole Superieure d'Agriculture. For every two NDSU students who spend a month in Angers, one French student spends a semester at NDSU.

Mesaba reports more passengers

Mesaba Airlines, which operates as a Northwest Airlink affiliate, has announced that it generated 123.8 million revenue passenger miles (RPMs) in September, an increase of 239.1 percent over the September 1998 results. Available Seat Miles (ASMs) increased 158.2 percent to 221.7 million from 85.9 million in the prior year. Systemwide Passenger Load Factor (PLF) rose 13.3 points to 55.8 percent over last year. The airline carried 462,900 passengers, a 217.1 percent increase over the same period last year. The 1998 figures were significantly affected by the pilot strike.

Kindergarten students from Mrs. Denise Nelson's class at Challenger Elementary school cover their ears and lean into wind from a fan at the fire hall in Thief River Falls. The students visited the fire hall during Fire Prevention Week in Thief River Falls. The children were introduced to various fire equipment used by the fire department, including a large fan used to remove smoke from buildings. The emphesis of Fire Prevention Week in Thief River Falls, however, was on how to escape from a fire in your home.

Peterson opposes hijacked farm relief bill

Collin C. Peterson (DFL, 7th district) voted against the Agriculture Appropriations Conference Report, which passed the House by a vote of 240 to 175.

"This bill was basically removed from the normal process by the Republican leadership and rewritten without any input from the membership. They 'hijacked' the bill from the committee members and shut us out of the process," Peterson said.

As passed, the bill provides $69 billion for the Agriculture Department's (USDA) agriculture, rural development, domestic food assistance, and foreign aid and export programs, as well as the Food and Drug Administration and several related agencies. Also included are $8.7 billion in "emergency" funds for disaster relief, which does not count against the Balanced Budget Act's spending caps, but consumers more than half of the expected non-Social Security surplus for Fiscal Year 2000.

"Spending $7.4 billion on market transition payments under 'Freedom to Farm' is not going to make our situation much better. There will be additional payments going out, but they won't be targeted to the people who have the greatest need for assistance."

"As far as I'm concerned, northwestern Minnesota farmers were totally ignored in this process. The Republican leadership refused to consider our amendments for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) or for multi-year disaster payments. The bill only adds another $1.2 billion for weather related losses, and that is clearly not enough."

The bill contained a farm relief package of roughly $8.7 billion, including $5.5 billion in market transition payments, $1.2 billion for weather-related crop losses, and other financial assistance for livestock, dairy, oilseed, cotton and specialty crop producers.

"Since we couldn't even get a hearing for the concerns of farmers in northwestern Minnesota, it looks like the only alternative we have left is to ask the President to veto the bill," Peterson said, "and I'm going to do just that."

Katy and Rudy Hirsch of Dickenson ND spent from Tuesday to Friday visiting her sister Helen and Joe Fisher.

Wayne Chries, an army buddy of Howard Greenwald and his friend Bertha of Orange Grove TX visited at Howard's home from Wednesday to Saturday morning. On Thursday Howard and Wayne drove to Hibbing to visit another army friend Dan Toppovich, and on Friday they made a short trip to Canada. Dan and Wayne had not seen each other since 1945, so it was a good reunion.

Donnie Hesse is spending some time with his mother Loretta Hesse, and other family members and friends.

Doris Malwitz, Marian Pearson, Harriet Norman and Peggy Hesse attended the Goose Festival in Middle River on Saturday. There they met nieces and their children and Esther Dahl and watched the parade together. They ate lunch at the senior center, and viewed the crafts set up in the building. It was too cold to be outdoors for the other crafts and events. They also spent time at Connie (Malwitz) Peterson's home and then came back in time to attend the turkey supper at Immanuel.

Immanual's turkey supper on Saturday was well attended in spite of many other events happening on that day. Many from the surrounding area like to come and visit with friends from near and far. All of the families in the congregation are involved in some way, and the church youth held a bake sale upstairs in the hall. Lutheran Brotherhood and Aid Association for Lutherans supplied matching funds.

Mrs. Wayne Langstraat of White Bear Lake, Ardell Wells and Holly Marie Anderson of Fargo, and Jon Anderson of Twin Valley were Saturday visitors of Sophie Anderson.

North Dakota Trip

My husband, Burnel and I left on Sunday after church for Davils Lake, ND, stopping for a quick peek at the new Cabella's store in East Grand Forks. The huge aquarium with all sorts of fish, the miniature mountain with many mounted animals, plus other walls with turkeys and more animals, made it a real show place. At Lakota we visited with Shannon (Froiland) Nelson and saw the fish farm that she and husband, Mike, have built. It was a real treat to see her feed the big tanks of fish! She invited us to their home for coffee, too! We went on to Davils Lake and spent the rest of the day and overnight with granddaughter, Lisa (Vigstol) Miest and her husband, Jim. Since we hadn't seen them for years, it was an enjoyable visit. On Monday, we went on to Cando and happened to meet cousin Mario Lockhart at restaurant, and then on to cousin Lucille Robeson's home. We were dinner guests of her son, Martin and Loralee Robeson, who live next door. We came on home that evening. North Dakota has many lakes now, and water everywhere, very different from the years I spent there in the 30's and 40's. The farmers there are struggling to harvest their crops, just like here. It was good to see the wide open spaces of the prairie state again. We came home the north route, through Park River, Grafton, and Warren.

Housewarming Party

Herb and Esther Walter, Ray and Reinette Walter of Thief River Falls, Iona Markley and family, and Barbara and Andrea Pine of Hastings gathered at a housewarming party for the David Walter family at Pine City on Sunday. Herb and Esther drove down on Thursday and spent time visiting, but had the misfortune of being hit by a speeding car which totaled theirs. They suffered some bruising, but were able to return home with Ray and Reinette. We're thankful it wasn't worse and that they are safely back home again.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gerardy and Rachel of Fargo spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of his parents, Jerry and Carol Gerardy. Other guests who came for dinner on Sunday were Tammie and Josh Gerardy, Kevin, Kyle and Jeremy Gerardy, Mike and Barbie Konickson, and Charles and Ronnie Gerardy, all of Thief River Falls.

Albert and Evelyn Torvo spent the weekend in the Twin Cities with daughter, Renae and Robb Vaulee of Minnetonka.

On Monday evening, the Hesse family that included Marian Pearson, Harriet Norman, Peg and Mel Hesse, and Ivan Hesse enjoyed dinner at Doris Malwitz's home. Good food and good visiting!

Celebration of 50 years together

Ron and Kathy Juneau of Plummer were two of over 400 people who helped Ron and Dellas Paradis celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. Ron and Dellas were married on November 3, 1949 at St Joseph's Church in Brooks with Father Louis Proulx officiating. Ron and Dellas have five children including Bryan, Roger, Carol, Arnie, and Lonnie, thirteen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. Ron and Dellas renewed their vows October 2 at St. Joseph's Church in Brooks with Father Tim Bushy officiating. Their original attendants were Henrietta Stich, Donna Bergeron, Grace Stucy, Madeline Tilbert, Ione Lessard, Bob Paradis, Willard Bergeron, Onazime Champagne, Clarence Gagner, and Gary Morcil. After the Mass, a reception and program was held at the Paradis shop. The food was great. The program master of ceremonies was Clarence Gagner. What fun when Herold Cyr sang a love song to Ron and Dellas in French. He had all the ladies swooning. Ha! We all wish Ron and Dellas many more happy years together.

RLCEDC Meeting

On October 4, the Red Lake County Economic Development Corporation met at Memories Worth Repeating of Red Lake Falls. President Kathy Juneau welcomed special guest, Al Foley, superintendent of Lafayette High School. After Lois served a wonderful suppor we had a very good presentation by Mr. Foley. Our October meeting was on education and we were pleased that one of our superintendents was able to attend our meeting. The education committee members include Linda Mickelson, Barbara Harmoning, Velma Oakland and Michael Mueller. Our business meeting followed the presentation. Attending the meeting was Nancy Haglund, Michael Mueller, Gemme Drees, Barbara Harmoning, Velma Oakland, Deb Whalen, Kathy Juneau, and Hans Kandel, Extension educator.

Exchange students at MCC

Two foreign exchange students are members of the junior class at Marshall County Central this year and are staying with families in the area. Kostadinka Vangelova of Bulgaria is staying with David and Marlys Moose of Viking, and Wanja Seifert, 16, of East Germany is staying at the Virgil and Cathy Erickson home near Holt. Kostadinka arrived on August 17 and Wanja (Vanya) arrived on September 5. His flight from Amsterdam, Netherlands to Minneapolis was a non-stop 12 hour flight on a jumbo jet. He is welcomed at the Erickson home by a 16-year-old host brother, Andy, who is also a junior at Marshall County Central.

Kosta is from Montana, Bulgaria where her parents, and two older sisters live and operate a family cafe. Her father is also a bus driver. She is welcomed at the Moose family by two older brothers who are out of high school.

Wanja is from Neuendorf, Sachon-Anhalt, located in East Germany and he is the oldest of three boys. His mother is a bankruptcy attorney and his father is in marketing. Wanja also has his own publishing business in his home and also organized the first newspaper at his school.

Through the modern elements of e-mail, both students are able to communicate quickly with family back home.

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota must be the answer to the farmers' prayers as it is cold and dry again. They are busy in the fields combining and lifting and hauling beets. The incessant wind in this country can chill to the marrow in your bones and make you get warm jackets out of the closets again. As long as the snow and rain stay away for a few weeks we don't complain so the harvest can be completed.

On Saturday, Roy and I decided to take in the tomatoes and box them to ripen and dig the dahlia corms and store them for next spring planting. We had about 60 plants but it went real well as he used the shovel on one side of the plants and I used the fork on the other side and pried them loose. When I got the dirt off them Roy would clip the stems off about four inches from the mother corm and I'd pack them in boxes. The next day we both felt our ages or that's what they say elderly folks should feel after a hard days work; all bent out of shape.

Rev. Eric Heskin, pastor of Bethesda Lutheran Church and Salem Lutheran Church was the speaker at the Karlstad Community Center on Wednesday. We did appreciate his message and hope to have him back again soon.

The Strandquist seniors had their meeting last Thursday. They have been helping Pete and Shelley Lafrooth who had the misfortune to have their house gutted by fire a couple of weeks ago. They are busy getting things together before winter sets in.

Supper guests at the Isaac Thompson's Wednesday evening in honor of Nelson LaDoux's 80th birthday were Nelson, Palmer Olstad, Richard Thompson, and Andrew Thompson. Robert and Cathy Thompson stopped to wish Nelson a happy birthday.

Pearl Thompson and Elsie Lefrooth attended the Harvest Festival at the Gospel Tabernacle on Sunday afternoon to hear the "Overtones" a quartet from Roseau. Later they went to the nursing home and visited Mary and Donna Renstrom.

Denny and Becky Johnson, Jeremy and Jake helped Peter and Pearl Thompson celebrate their 64th wedding anniversary on Friday evening. Earlier in the day they were invited to Isaac and Betsy Thompson's home for coffee and cake. In the afternoon, Faye Lyberg of Lancaster visited them. LaVonne and Brian Johnson called on Thursday and brought greetings.

Paul and Shirley Anderson, Cindy and Jim Wetterlund, and Kathy Britten visited Hazel Anderson at a Grand Forks hospital on Sunday. Hazel is so short and petite that she only cast a shadow late in the afternoon. Glad to hear she is feeling better. I tied a white sign on the dahlia corm that she had picked out for herself last summer. With it comes a few ladybugs that have escaped from Roy's domicile. His beans froze and now he plans to raise climbing tomatoes on that patch. He gets all sorts of ideas from all the literature he receives since he got that composter and tiller from the Gardner magazine.

Deer Diary: We're Moving to the 'Burbs

By F.R. Duplantier
Behind the Headlines

(Editor's note: The following editorial by F.R. Duplantier arrived in time for the deer-hunting season. I feel it makes at least one point I can agree with -- that humans, whether intended or not, are caretakers who fail to exercise proper management on a regular basis.)

"Many environmentalists worry that suburban growth is reducing the diversity of wildlife," observes environmental consultant James Dunn. The truth, however, is quite the opposite. "When our agricultural lands are abandoned because they are no longer competitive, they usually reforest naturally," Dunn reports. "Subsequently, when these lands near cities become residential areas, people typically plant trees and shrubs, often in places where there have been none before. Deer habitat improves," he contends, "as does habitat for robins, woodpeckers, chickadees, grouse, finches, hawks, crows, and nuthatches, as well as squirrels, chipmunks, opossums, raccoons, foxes, and rabbits."

Writing in a recent issue of PERC Reports, published by the Political Economy Research Center, Dunn argues that so-called "urban sprawl" has contributed to dramatic increases in the deer population in New York State, where he lives. "The improvement in deer habitat began with the loss of farmland during the 20th century," he recalls, "as modern agricultural technology led to greater food production from less land and the prime farming areas shifted westward. It continued as people in the cities became wealthier and began moving out into land that had been previously farmed. The best areas for most wildlife," Dunn notes, "are the places with abundant wood edges - fragmented landscapes of suburbia."

Dunn explains why suburbs are actually more congenial environments for deer than are forests. "At first, as farms returned to forest, the fragmented landscape, as in suburbia today, was good for wildlife, and deer proliferated," he affirms. "However, as the forests matured, the food available for deer began to drop off. In many areas," Dunn asserts, "wildlife did not fare so well. In the Adirondack wilderness, where much of the forest is over 100 years old," he points out, "the deer count is down."

It may be counterintuitive, but the fact remains that deer and other wildlife actually prefer the suburbs to the forests. Dunn argues that conservationists have had little to do with the increase in wildlife populations. The credit, he claims, belongs to "the entrepreneurs and innovators behind Dow Chemical, International Harvester, Monsanto, Caterpillar Tractor, and John Deere," whose agricultural improvements have reduced the need for farmland and encouraged the growth of suburbs.

Deer Crossing signs are common in the suburbs where we live west of St. Louis. Believe it or not, an acquaintance of my wife's once asked her how the deer know to cross at the signs. As it turns out, quite a few of these adorable ungulates are illiterate and wreak havoc on cars and passengers by crossing in unmarked spots. I nearly lost my entire family a year ago when two deer ran into my wife's van as she and the children were driving in the speed lane of a six-lane highway just minutes from home. Yes, the deer ran into her, not vice versa, after traversing two lanes and being struck by another car first. Fortunately my family was unharmed. Not so the deer. If only they'd learned to read!

Crosswind runway necessary?

by David Hill
Editor

The City of Thief River Falls tried to market its airport a few years ago. It offered all kinds of incentives to fly, including a few free tickets, and lots of advertising. It met with very limited success because it was torpedoed by an air carrier which had a different marketing strategy, and an service provider, which said it wasn't in control of determining its air fare rates. It's very satisfying to see now, that with coordination of marketing efforts, passenger enplanements are increasing significantly.

A crosswind runway at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport has been a topic of discussion for many years. Last year, the council approved expenditures on a study which now says a crosswind runway is needed and justified, not just for service providers but to ensure the safety of those who use the airport.

Protecting the safety of its citizens is a part of what government does. There are some difficult questions, however, to be answered before the city jumps into a project even if the FAA picks up about 90 percent of the projected $2 million cost. I don't think it's necessary to receive a commitment from local businesses to participate in the cost of the project, even if they are the major users. As costs are shared through increased landing fees, big business and local citizens would all participate in the cost of the project.

Future costs must also be weighed. Although it is possible that this airport could be making money in the future, the city has been funneling money into it for many years. Advisors have told the council that it would be necessary to hire one more full-time individual to make it work, which means expenses at the airport will increase. The city has been very frugal. It operates the airport with a small staff. The questions the city council must ask is whether one more person will allow the airport to function properly and within safety parameters, and whether the city can afford more expenses at the airport? Staffing is a question, that needs to be investigated very thoroughly before the city proceeds with a construction project.

I strongly believe that a good airport contributes to the overall financial health and success of a community. Thief River Falls has a vested interest in making sure that the local airport is successful, because the region has very limited bus service, no passenger train service, and local manufacturers, businesses, and a general public that relies on the air service to deliver people and packages. It's part of the city's necessary infrastructure. Without it, people by-pass Thief River Falls, spending their money and working elsewhere.

While we believe that an airport is important we must ask, if it is so important, why didn't the city give serious consideration to constructing a crosswind runway last year, or 10 years ago? I guess the question that really gets at the heart of the issue — is it really necessary, or can we do without it?

As the City of Thief River Falls has observed at the airport, the mentality that if you "build it and they will come," doesn't quite work without a good marketing plan. The city also should have learned Thief River Falls cannot do it alone. If the city council decides to proceed with the project, I hope everyone sees that it will take careful planning and coordination of effort with air carriers, service providers, businesses, and the public to make it work.
